

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

THE present is eminently a proper time in which to prepare a GAZETTEER OF THE UNITED STATES. The progress of the country in population, in agriculture, in commerce, in manufactures, and in education, has recently been ascertained with great labor and expense by the census, and it is important that this, and other continually accumulating information, should be widely diffused. All former gazetteers are rendered obsolete by the census, which has but recently become available, and by the rapid changes which the country is undergoing, particularly in its newer portions.

The progress of the United States is unexampled in the history of the world. A little more than two hundred years since, the country was an unbroken forest, inhabited by a sparse population of savages, who camped on its streams or roamed through its woods, to obtain a precarious subsistence from fishing and the chase. No plough had furrowed the soil, no flocks and herds of domestic animals spread over its hills or grazed in its valleys, no fields of grain covered its fertile plains; no roads connected distant parts of the country, no bridges spanned its rivers, no mills plied on its waterfalls. Its large rivers rolled in mighty volume to the ocean, but they bore on their surface nothing but the clumsy raft and the frail canoe of the Indian. But what a change has two centuries wrought! The little bands of Jamestown and of Plymouth have become a mighty nation, whose commerce whitens every ocean and penetrates every sea, whose name is known and respected to the ends of the earth, and whose institutions and improvements attract the attention of the civilized world. Great have been the toil and privation and hardship which were necessary to fell this immensity of forest, to change the wilderness into cultivated fields, to rear villages and cities, and to overspread the country with its various and noble works of improvement. But the pioneers of civilization were a body of men who shrunk not from labor and suffering, that they might perpetuate their principles, and rear a country which should constitute a noble legacy to their posterity.

The following work is designed to exhibit the present condition of the United States;—its progress in agriculture, in commerce, in manufactures, and in general improvement. To do this, the best sources of information have been resorted to. The materials of American geography have been accumulating for a long course of years, by the labor and research of many gifted minds; and he who should attempt to construct a gazetteer independently of the labors of his predecessors, would be chargeable with great folly. It would be a long and ostentatious catalogue to present the names of the authors who have been consulted in the preparation of the following work. It is sufficient to say that the best works on American geography have been consulted, and such use has been made of them as is consistent with the rights of others; while much new and valuable information has been derived from a written correspondence, continued for several years, with intelligent gentlemen in various parts of the country, for whose communications a respectful acknowledgment is tendered.

Hundreds of new counties, towns, and post-offices, are described in this work, which are not to be found in any preceding gazetteer. All the existing post-offices in the United States, at the date of this publication, will be here found, with their bearing and distance from the capital of the state in which they are located, and their distance from Washington. To effect this, the new post-office book was obligingly furnished by the Hon. Charles A. Wickliffe, Postmaster-General, as the sheets were issued from the press, which is greatly more complete and correct than the similar work previously in existence. Distances have been more correctly ascertained, and the whole brought down to the present time. The greatest source, however, from which this gazetteer has been enriched, is the recent census of the United States, and its very minute and valuable statistics: and an acknowledgment is due to the Hon. Daniel Webster, Secretary of State, for generously transmitting the volume of the statistics, before it could have been otherwise obtained. The above work, in its present form, published by Congress, is voluminous and inconvenient to consult for general purposes, though exceedingly valuable as a public document; and had the following work done nothing more than furnish an abstract of this, in a form suitable for general reference and use, it would have accomplished an important object.

That great labor has been encountered in the preparation of this work, will be evident to all persons acquainted with such undertakings. It is not constructed upon the basis of any former work. Every article has been prepared expressly for this gazetteer; and it will be found to have all the originality which can be reasonably expected. That in a work involving such an immense number of particulars no mistakes have occurred, it would be presumptuous to affirm; though the utmost pains have been taken to avoid them. The United States census may have some errors; it is, however, the nearest approximation to the truth, in regard to the whole country, which can be obtained for ten years to come.

The authors commit their work to the public, in the confident expectation that the great amount of labor employed in compiling it will not have been spent in vain.

EXPLANATION

OF THE

ABBREVIATIONS MADE USE OF IN THIS WORK.

In the preparation of this work, in order to a great condensation of its matter, many ellipses and abbreviations have been necessary. It is presumed that every reader would prefer an accumulation of facts, to smoothness, and even regularity of periods. A little attention will render them familiar, and in most instances their import will suggest itself, without explanation.

AUBURN, post village, capital of Cayuga county, New York, 154 miles west of Albany, 333 miles from Washington City. There are 59 stores, with a capital invested of $341,447 ; 1 woollen factory, 1 cotton factory, 1 tannery, 1 distillery, 1 brewery, 4 flouring mills, 2 saw mills, 3 furnaces, 4 printing offices. In the Northern states, every county is divided into townships, generally from 4 to 6 miles square, though their dimensions vary. In New England, the principal village takes the name of the township in which it is situated ; but in some parts of the township, a village occasionally has a different name from that of the township. In New York, the villages have frequently an incorporation distinct from that of the township in which they are situated, and the village is often more prominent than the township ; and in some instances, persons who know well the location of a prominent village, might not be able to name the township in which it is situated. The same is to a degree true in the states of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana. In the states south of Pennsylvania and of the Ohio river, and in Illinois, there is no such subdivision as townships ; as an incorporated district, and a collection of houses, whether few or many, is called a town. In the following work, t. denotes a township, and v. a village, or collection of houses, whether few or many, whether with or without an incorporation. In South Carolina, districts answer to counties in other states, and in Louisiana, parishes. In Delaware, hundreds answer to towns. In those states where the division of townships does not obtain, the census was taken only by counties, and the statistics, therefore, will be found under the heads of the counties.

GENERAL DESCRIPTION

THE UNITED STATES.

THE United States of America occupy the middle division of North America, and are bounded north by British and Russian America; east by New Brunswick and the Atlantic ocean; south by the Gulf of Mexico, Texas, and Mexico; and west by the Pacific ocean. It lies between 25° and 54° of north latitude, and between 66° 50' and 125° west longitude from Greenwich; or between 9° 30' east, and 48° 30' west longitude from Washington. Its greatest length is 3,000 miles, and its greatest breadth is 1,700 miles, containing about 2,300,000 square miles. It has a frontier line of about 10,000 miles; a sea coast of 3,600; and a lake coast of 1,200 miles. It contains about one twentieth of the habitable land of the whole earth. The population in 1790 was 3,929,328; in 1800, 5,309,758; in 1810, 7,239,903; in 1820, 9,638,166; in 1830, 12,856,165; in 1840, 17,062,666; of which 2,487,113 were slaves. Employed in agriculture, 3,717,756; in commerce, 117,575; in manufactures and trades, 791,545; navigating the ocean, 56,085; navigating rivers, lakes, canals, &c., 33,067; in mining, 15,903; learned professions, 65,236.

The territory of the United States is divided into 26 states and three territories, each of which has a separate government, and the District of Columbia. The following is a list of the states,—which are divided into the northern or eastern, the middle, the southern, and the western,—their population in 1840, and their capitals.

NORTHERN, OR EASTERN STATES.—Maine, 501,793, Augusta; New Hampshire, 284,574, Concord; Vermont, 292,948, Montpelier; Massachusetts, 737,699, Boston; Rhode Island, 108,830, Newport and Providence; Connecticut, 309,978, Hartford and New Haven.

MIDDLE STATES.—New York, 2,428,931, Albany; New Jersey, 373,306, Trenton; Pennsylvania, 1,724,033, Harrisburg; Delaware, 78,065, Dover; Maryland, 469,232, Annapolis.

SOUTHERN STATES.—Virginia, 1,239,797, Richmond; North Carolina, 763,419, Raleigh; South Carolina, 594,398, Columbia; Georgia, 691,393, Milledgeville; Alabama, 590,756, Tuscaloosa; Mississippi, 375,651, Jackson; Louisiana, 352,411, New Orleans.

WESTERN STATES.—Ohio, 1,519,467, Columbus; Kentucky, 779,828, Frankfort; Tennessee, 822,210, Nashville; Michigan, 212,267, Detroit; Indiana, 685,866, Indianapolis; Illinois, 476,183, Springfield; Missouri, 383,702, Jefferson City; Arkansas, 97,574, Little Rock.

TERRITORIES.—District of Columbia, 43,712, Washington; Florida, 54,477, Tallahassee; Wisconsin, 30,945, Madison; Iowa, 43,112, Iowa city.

WASHINGTON, on the Potomac river, in the District of Columbia, is the capital of the United States, and became such in the year 1800.

The country has every variety of surface and of soil. It has two principal, and a number of lesser ranges of mountains. The two principal are the Alleghany and the Rocky mountains. The Alleghany mountains commence in the south, in Alabama, and run in a northeast direction, generally in a number of separate ridges, with a breadth of from 60 to 120 miles, and at a distance from the sea coast of from 250 to 80 miles, and terminate in the Catskill mountains, on the west of Hudson river. The general height of the Alleghany range is about 2,000 or 3,000 feet above the level of the ocean, but not more than one half of this above the level of their base. The highest peak in this range is Black mountain, in the west part of North Carolina, which is 6,476 feet. Round Top, the highest peak of the Catskill mountains, is 3,804 feet.

The Rocky mountains may be regarded as a part of the great chain of the Cordilleras, and extend from Mexico to 70° north latitude, running at an average distance of 600 miles from the Pacific, and with a general height of about 9,000 feet, though some peaks are much higher. Some have estimated them from 20 to 25,000 feet.

The Green mountains commence near New Haven, in Connecticut, and run north through this state, Massachusetts, and Vermont, to Canada. Mansfield mountain, the highest peak, in a town of the same name, in Vermont, is 4,280 feet high.

The White mountains in New Hampshire are very elevated, the highest peak, Mount Washington, being 6,428 feet high. West of Lake Champlain, in the state of New York, are some high mountains, the highest peak of which, Mount Marcy, is 5,460 feet.

The waters west of the Rocky mountains generally flow into the Pacific, though north of the United States, Unjigah, or Peace river, passes this great barrier, and enters the Northern ocean. The Mississippi, with its great tributaries, drains the country between the Rocky and Alleghany mountains, excepting a few of an inferior class, which flow into the great northern lakes. East of the Alleghanies, the rivers flow into the Atlantic ocean. A great portion of the vast valley of the Mississippi is level, or moderately uneven. The surface of the Eastern, or New England states, is hilly or mountainous. The Atlantic coast south of Long Island, to the distance generally of 100 miles from the ocean, is a sandy plain, but little elevated above the level of the ocean. But back of this, the country is hilly, until it rises into mountains.

The soil of New England, with the exception of the valley of the Connecticut river, is generally rocky and rough, though in some parts fertile, better adapted to grazing than to grain. The low country on the Atlantic coast, has a light and rather barren soil, excepting on the margins of the rivers; but the hilly country back of this is fertile. The soil, generally, in the valley of the Mississippi, is fertile. But toward the Rocky mountains, the country is barren; though the extensive prairies are adapted to grazing, as is proved by the vast herds of buffaloes which have found a subsistence there. The soil west of the Rocky mountains is in some parts fertile, but generally but moderately productive.

Beef, pork, butter, and cheese are the principal productions of the Eastern states; though grains of various kinds are raised for home consumption. Wheat is the staple of the Middle states. In the northern portion of the Southern states, wheat and tobacco are chiefly cultivated; and further south, cotton, rice, and sugar. Throughout the United States, Indian corn, an indigenous grain, is extensively cultivated, and forms a most important crop.—(For the Agricultural statistics, see the particular states.)

Among the minerals, iron ore, coal, limestone, and salt are exceedingly abundant. The lead region in Missouri, Illinois, Wisconsin, and Iowa, is probably the finest in the world. Gold is found to a considerable extent in Virginia, North Carolina, and Georgia; and marble and gypsum are very extensive.

Extending, as the United States does, through 20 degrees of latitude, differing greatly in different parts in the elevation of its surface, it must, of course, have a great variety of climate. In the northern part, it is subject to great extremes of heat and cold, but the climate is generally healthy. In the southern portion, along the Atlantic coast, and the Gulf of Mexico, the climate from July to November is unhealthy. The elevated portion of the country is generally healthy. The Western states, with the exception of some low and marshy portions, have a fine and salubrious climate.

There are many large and extensively navigable rivers, furnishing an immensity of water power for mills and manufactories, and great facilities for navigation and commerce. The following are the principal rivers which flow into the Atlantic, with about their length in miles: Penobscot, 250; Kennebec, 200; Androscoggin, 170; Saco, 160; Merrimac, 200; Connecticut, 410; Hudson, 324; Delaware, 300; Susquehanna, 450; Potomac, 500; James, 500; Roanoke, 400; Cape Fear, 350; Pedee, 450; Santee, 450; Savannah, 500; Altamaha, 400; St. Johns, 300. The following rivers flow into the Gulf of Mexico: Appalachicola, 500; Alabama, 600; Tombigbee, 450; Mississippi, 3,000. The following are tributaries of the Mississippi: Red river, 1,500; Arkansas, 2,150; White river, 1,200; Missouri, 2,180; Kansas, 1,100; Platte, 1,600; Osage, 500; Yellowstone, 1,100; Ohio, 1,350; Illinois, 500; Des Moines, 800; Tennessee, 900; Cumberland, 600; Wabash, 500. The following rivers are west of the Rocky mountains: Columbia, 1,500; Multnomah, 900; Lewis's, 900; Clarke's, 600. The above, include their remote sources.

The two largest lakes which lie wholly in the United States are Michigan, 330 miles long and 60 broad; and Champlain, 120 miles long and 15 broad. But the great lakes Superior, 380 miles long, and 130 broad; Huron, 240 by 150; Erie, 240 by 60; and Ontario, 190 by 55, are one half in the United States, the boundary passing through the middle of them. There are many smaller lakes, for an account of which, see the particular states.

The Gulf of Mexico, on the south of the United States, is a large branch of the Atlantic ocean, which receives the waters from the great Mississippi valley. The Chesapeake, Delaware, Massa-

Massachusetts, and Penobscot are the largest bays. The principal sounds are Long Island, Albemarle, and Pamlico. The principal capes are Cape Ann, Cod, May, Henlopen, Charles, Henry, Hatteras, Lookout, Fear, and Sable.

Among the principal harbors, proceeding from north to south, are Portland, Portsmouth, Boston, Newport, New London, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Norfolk, Charleston, Savannah, Mobile, and New Orleans.

The following are the most populous towns in the United States, with the number of inhabitants of each in 1840. New York, 312,710; Philadelphia, 228,691; Baltimore, 102,313; New Orleans, 102,193; Boston, 93,383; Cincinnati, 46,338; Brooklyn, 36,233; Albany, 33,721; Charleston, 29,261; Washington, 23,364; Providence, 23,171; Louisville, 21,210; Pittsburg, 21,115; Lowell, 20,796; Rochester, 20,191; Richmond, 20,153; Troy, 19,334; Buffalo, 18,213; Newark, 17,890; St. Louis, 16,469; Portland, 15, 218; Salem, 15,082.

The people of the United States are principally an agricultural people. The extent of their territory, and the fertility of the soil, contribute to this result. Their agricultural resources are already immense, and they are but partially developed: they are capable of becoming the granary of the world. The following agricultural statistics, derived from the census of 1840, show a progress, remarkable as it is encouraging.

There were in the United States in 1840, 4,335,669 horses and mules; 14,971,586 neat cattle; 19,311,374 sheep; 26,301,993 swine; poultry to the value of $9,344,410. There were produced 84,823,372 bushels of wheat; 4,161,504 of barley; 123,071,341 of oats; 18,645,567 of rye; 7,291,743 of buckwheat; 377,531,875 of Indian corn; 35,802,114 pounds of wool; 1,238,502 of hops; 688,303 of wax; 108,298,060 bush. of potatoes; 10,248,108 tons of hay; 95,251 of hemp and flax; 219,163,319 pounds of tobacco; 80,841,422 of rice; 790,479,275 of cotton; 61,552 of silk cocoons; 155,100,809 of sugar; value of the products of the dairy, $33,787,008; of the orchard, $7,356,904; of lumber $12,943,507. There were made 124,734 gallons of wine.

In its commerce this country is the second on the globe, being inferior only to Great Britain. In 1840 the capital invested in foreign trade, by importing and commission merchants, was $119,295,367; in domestic retail dry goods and other stores, $250,301,799; in the fisheries, $16,429,620. The registered tonnage of the United States is 899,764; the enrolled and licensed, 1,176,694; fishing vessels, 104,304; total, 2,180,764. Of the registered and enrolled tonnage there were employed in the whale fishery, 136,926.

The following table exhibits the imports and exports of the several states and territories, for the year ending September 30th, 1840.

The manufactures of the United States, though inferior to its agriculture and its commerce, have recently received much attention, and have risen to great respectability. A large amount of capital has been invested in them, and they not only supply a great resource for home consumption, but also, to a considerable extent already, for exportation.

This great source of national wealth and prosperity has but recently begun to be developed. During the colonial state, and even long after, there were few manufactures excepting those of the domestic and family kind. Before the revolution, it was the policy of the mother country to discourage colonial manufactures, and a distinguished statesman expressed the sentiment of the government when he said, "that he would not suffer America to manufacture a hob-nail for herself, if he could prevent it." But the state of things is wonderfully altered now.

Home-made or family goods were produced in 1840 to the amount of $29,023,330.

The cotton manufactures were 1,240, with 2,284,631 spindles; employed 72,119 persons; produced articles to the value of $46,350,453; and had a capital employed of $51,102,359. The woollen manufactures employed 21,342 persons, produced goods to the amount of $20,696,999, and employed a capital of $15,765,124; and paper manufactures a capital of $4,745,239. Hats and caps were manufactured to the amount of $8,704,342; straw bonnets to the amount of $1,476,505; tanneries, &c. employed 26,018 persons, and a capital of $15,650,929; and saddleries and other leather manufactories, a capital of $12,881,262; carriages and wagons employed 21,994 persons, and produced the value of $10,897,887, and employed a capital of $5,551,632; mills of various kinds employed 60,788 persons, produced to the amount of $76,545,246, and employed a capital of $65,858,470. Vessels were built to the amount of $7,016,094. Furniture was made to the amount of $7,555,405, by 18,003 persons, and a capital was employed of $6,989,971. There were 1,552 printing offices, 447 binderies, 138 daily newspapers, 125 semi or tri-weekly, 1,141 weekly, 237 periodicals, the whole employing 11,523 persons, and a capital of $5,873,815. The capital employed in the manufacture of iron, was $20,432,131; in glass manufactures, $2,084,100, which produced articles to the amount of $2,890,293. The anthracite coal employed a capital of $4,355,602; and the bituminous, of $1,868,862; the lead, a capital of $1,346,756. The total amount of capital employed in manufactures of every kind, was $267,726,579.

The revenue of the United States has arisen chiefly from customs on imports, and from the sale of the public lands. The National Government has rarely resorted to direct taxation. By these means, the government was enabled, January 1st, 1837, not only to complete the payment of the public debt, contracted during two wars with Great Britain, but had, after reserving $5,000,000, a surplus of $37,468,859, which, agreeably to an act of Congress of June 23d, 1836, was mostly deposited with the States, according to the number of their electoral votes, liable to be recalled in case of necessity, but with little expectation probably that it would ever be called for. The great expense of the Indian war in Florida, and the diminution of the customs arising from the stagnation of trade, have caused the expenses of the government to exceed the income, so that a small debt has been contracted.

The public lands have recently been a great source of revenue. These lands have been ceded to the United States by the new States, or have been derived from the purchase of Louisiana in 1803, and of Florida in 1819. These lands are considered as belonging to the native tribes of Indians who inhabit them, until the title has been regularly extinguished by purchase and by treaty. When this has been done, they are surveyed and sold at a dollar 25 cents the acre, as the lowest price. The amount paid into the Treasury of the United States in 1839, arising from the sale of public lands, was $7,076,447. For the first three quarters of 1840, it was $2,630,217. By an act of Congress of 1841, it was ordered that the amount of these sales should hereafter be divided among the States. The revenue for 1840 was $28,234,512; and the expenditure for the civil, military, naval, and other expenses, was $26,643,656. The U. States have about 100,000,000 acres of public land surveyed and unsold, and vastly more which is not surveyed.

The Mint of the United States is established at Philadelphia; and recently, branches have been established at Charlotte, North Carolina; Dahlonega, in Georgia; and at New Orleans, Louisiana. The Mint and its branches received for coinage, gold found in the United States, from 1824 to 1840, to the amount of $6,373,025. The amount of gold, silver, and copper coins produced at the Mint in Philadelphia, in 1840, was $2,260,667.

The following table exhibits a general view of the regular army of the United States, according to the law of 1842, which consists of—

The navy of the United States, though not large in comparison with those of some other nations, is undoubtedly the most efficient in proportion to its size of any in the world. It consisted, in July 1841, of 11 ships of the line; 15 frigates of the 1st class; 3 frigates of the 2d class; 21 sloops of war; 4 brigs; 8 schooners; besides 2 steam frigates, and several smaller steam vessels.

The United States have navy-yards at the following places: Portsmouth, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Norfolk, and Pensacola.

There were in the Navy, 30th September, 1841, 68 Captains; 97 Commanders; 328 Lieutenants; 70 Surgeons; 57 Assistant Surgeons and Passed Assistant Surgeons; 63 Purser; 24 Chaplains; 103 Passed Midshipmen; 370 Midshipmen; 30 Masters.

There were in December, 1840, 13,638 Post Offices. The revenue in 1840 was $4,539,265; and the expenditure was $4,759,111.

The following are the rates of postage by mail.

On a single letter composed of one piece of paper, for any distance not exceeding 30 miles, 6 cts. Over 30, and not exceeding 80, 10 ct. Over 80, and not exceeding 150, 12½ cts. Over 150, and not exceeding 400, 18½ cts. Over 400 miles, 25 cents.

A letter composed of two pieces of paper, is charged with double these rates; of three, with triple; of four, with quadruple. One or more pieces of paper, mailed as a letter, and weighing one ounce, shall be charged with quadruple postage; and at the same rate, should the weight be greater.

For each newspaper not carried out of the State in which it is published, 1 cent, or if carried over 100 miles out of the State in which it is published, 1½ cents.

Magazines and pamphlets, if published periodically, and distance not exceeding 100 miles, 1½ cents per sheet; do. over 100 miles, 2½ cents. If not published periodically, and the distance not exceeding 100 miles, 4 cents; do. over 100 miles, 6 cents.

Every printed pamphlet or magazine, which contains more than 24 pages on a royal sheet, or any sheet of less dimensions, shall be charged by the sheet; and small pamphlets, printed on a half or quarter of a sheet, of royal or less size, shall be charged with half the amount of postage charged on a full sheet.

The President of the United States, and the officers of the general government at Washington, receive newspapers and letters free of postage.

The members of both houses of Congress are not charged, excepting for a letter or package weighing over two ounces, when the excess is charged. Postmasters have also the privilege of receiving newspapers and letters free of postage under certain restrictions; and printers of newspapers, receive newspapers without charge, with certain limitations.

The constitution of the United States forbids the establishment of religion by law; but every person, who does not interrupt the peace of society, is protected in the exercise of his religion. The voluntary principle, as it is sometimes called, has been found to be more efficient than any legal enactment for the support of religious institutions.

The following table exhibits the numbers of the different religious denominations in 1840.

The people of the United States, from the first settlement of the country, have been attentive to the cause of popular education, not only by making provision for the support of common schools and academies, and grammar schools, but by founding (perhaps too many) higher seminaries of learning. In less than 20 years after the first tree was felled, and the first log-house was erected in the wilderness, by the Pilgrim Fathers of New England, Cambridge College was founded; and the cause of education has been, from year to year, obtaining continually, a stronger hold upon the community. A general impression exists in the public mind, that the perpetuity and prosperity of free institutions, depends upon the general intelligence of the people. A particular reference to the colleges will be found under the states, and a description of them under the towns where they are located.

According to the census of 1840, there were in the United States 173 universities and colleges, with 16,233 students; 3,242 academies and grammar schools, with 164,159 students; 47,209 common and primary schools, with 1,845,244 scholars. In the above enumeration, theological and medical institutions, where they are separate from colleges, are ranked among universities and colleges.

Theological institutions for a professional education, to succeed the collegiate, have been founded in different parts of the country, and by different denominations. They will be described under the places where they are located.

One of the earliest law schools in the United States was founded in Litchfield, Conn., in 1798, by the Hon. Tapping Reeve, and taught afterwards by him, in connection with the Hon. James Gould. At this institution many of the principal civilians in the country have been educated. It is now discontinued. Others have been established in different places. An account of them will be found under the places where they are located.

Numerous medical institutions have been founded for the education of physicians and surgeons. Many of the students have received an education at some college; but this is not generally indispensable, where the acquirements of the candidate are respectable, in order to membership. They will be described under the places where they are located.

The government of the United States is that of a confederated Republic, formed by a union of states, each of which has a local government, for the management of its immediate concerns. The powers of the general government are defined by the constitution, formed by delegates from the original states, submitted to the people, the only acknowledged sources of power, and by them adopted in state conventions, assembled for the purpose. It went into operation by the election and inauguration of Gen. George Washington, as first President, in 1789.

The President of the United States, who possesses the supreme executive power, is chosen for the term of 4 years, by electors from each state, equal to the whole number of senators and representatives in the state. No person holding an office of trust under the government of the United States can be an elector. The person who has a majority of all the votes, is President; but if no one has such majority, the House of Representatives choose a President from 3 candidates, having the greatest number of votes. In the election of President, the votes are given by states. A Vice-President is chosen at the same time, and in the same form.

No person can be elected as President, who is less than 35 years of age, who is not a native born citizen of the United States, or was not a citizen at the time of the adoption of the constitution, and who has not been a resident in the United States for 14 years. The same qualifications are necessary for a candidate for the Vice-Presidency.

The President is commander-in-chief of the army and navy, and of the militia when in the actual service of the United States. With the advice and consent of the Senate, he makes treaties, appoints ambassadors, and judges of the supreme court, and other officers of the national government, whose appointment is not otherwise provided for by the constitution. He takes care that the laws be executed, and commissions all officers. He has power to grant reprieves and pardons for all offences against the United States, except in case of impeachments. In making treaties, the concurrence of two thirds of the Senate is necessary.

In case of the death, removal, or resignation of the President, the Vice-President succeeds to the duties of his office.

The Senate consists of 2 members from each state, chosen by the legislature, for the term of 6 years. One third of the Senate is chosen every year. To be eligible as a senator, a person must be not less than 35 years of age; and must have been a citizen of the United States for 9 years. It belongs to the Senate to try all cases of the impeachment of the President or Vice-President.

The representatives are chosen for 2 years. No person can be a representative who is not 25 years of age, and who has not been for 7 years a citizen of the United States. The representatives are proportioned according to the number of inhabitants, and since the census of 1840, has been fixed at 70,680. In the enumeration, three fifths of the slaves are omitted.

Congress has power to lay and collect taxes; to provide for the common defence and general welfare; to borrow money; to regulate foreign and domestic commerce; to establish uniform laws of naturalization and bankruptcy; to coin money, and regulate its value; to fix the standard of weights and measures; to establish post-offices and post-roads; to grant patent and copy-rights; to constitute tribunals inferior to the supreme court; to define and punish piracies, and offences on the high seas, and against the law of nations; to declare war, and grant letters of marque and reprisal; make rules respecting captures; raise and support armies; provide and maintain a navy; provide for the calling out of the militia, to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections and repel invasions; and to exercise exclusive jurisdiction over the District of Columbia.

No member of Congress is allowed to hold any office under the Government of the United States, while he continues such. All bills for raising money must originate in the House of Representatives.

The Judicial power of the United States is vested in a Supreme Court, consisting of a Chief Justice, and 8 Associate Justices; of 9 District Courts, consisting of a Judge of the Supreme Court, and a District Judge; and 34 District Courts, held by a District Judge alone; from whose decisions there is, in certain cases, an appeal to the Circuit Court, and from this to the Supreme Court. The Judges hold their offices during good behavior; and their salaries cannot be diminished, during their continuance in office.

The Supreme Court meets annually at Washington, on the 2d Monday of January.

The national existence of this country commenced July 4th, 1776, when the delegates from the states, in congress assembled, declared that "the United States are, and of right ought to be, free and independent;" but long and arduous was the struggle by which they made good the declaration. With a population of about 3,000,000, and unprovided with the means of carrying on a war with one of the most powerful nations in the world, with stout hearts, indomitable perseverance, and a devoted patriotism, they persevered in the contest, until complete success crowned their exertions.

There was much in the colonial history of the country, which was well fitted to train up its inhabitants for freedom. In their early state, the colonies were much neglected by the mother country, and were left, in a great measure, to manage their own affairs in their own way; and they were thus prepared to resist all the encroachments of the mother country and the royal governors, and finally to assert their independence. The Indian and French wars had trained them extensively to military operations; and some of the colonial commanding officers in the French war, had fought side by side with British officers, to whom they were afterwards opposed in mortal combat. The hero who led the American armies to victory and triumph, had received the best possible military education, by being called to lead the colonial militia against the French at Fort du Quesne, (now Pittsburg.) After Braddock's defeat, he conducted the retreat of the shattered forces, in a masterly manner; and if his advice had been followed in time, the British army would not probably have fallen into an ambush, and been defeated. President Davies, then a distinguished clergyman in Virginia, afterwards of Princeton College, in a sermon on this subject, uttered more of a prophecy than he was aware of when he said, "that he could not but think, that heaven had preserved that brave youth, Col. Washington, for some signal service to his country." Washington refused all compensation for his arduous services in the revolutionary war, excepting his expenses of which he kept an accurate account.

The following are the principal battles of the revolution, with the commanders, and loss on each side. The war commenced with the battle of Lexington, April 19th, 1775. American loss, 84; British loss, 245. Bunker Hill, June 17th, 1775, American, Prescott, loss, 453; British, Howe, 1,054. Ft. Mifflin, August 13th, 1776, British, Howe, loss, 400; American, Putnam & Sullivan, 2,000. White

The war closed by the surrender at Yorktown, by Cornwallis, October 19th, 1783, of 7,073 British soldiers to Washington. The whole amount of the expenses of the revolutionary war, estimated in specie, was $135,193,703.

The following table will show what proportion of the war was borne by the several states, to which the population in round numbers in 1790, is subjoined.

Vermont, which was not then admitted to the Union, bore her full share in the revolutionary war. Provisional articles of peace were signed in Paris, Nov. 30th, 1782, by John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, John Jay, and Henry Laurens, on the part of the United States; and Mr. Fitzherbert and Mr. Oswald on the part of Great Britain. The definitive treaty was signed September 30th, 1783. The independence of the United States was acknowledged by Holland, April 19th, 1782; by Sweden, February 5th; by Denmark, February 25th; by Spain, March 24th; by Russia in July 1783, and by Prussia in 1785.

On the second Monday of May, 1787, delegates from the several states assembled at Philadelphia, for the purpose of forming a constitution; and George Washington was appointed to preside over them. On the 17th of September, after a debate of 4 months, a constitution was adopted, signed by all the members, and sent to the several states for their approval. It was provided that the ratification of nine states should be sufficient for its establishment. It was warmly debated by the state conventions, but finally adopted by them all. (For the vote in the several states, see the particular articles on the states.) In several of the states amendments were recommended.

The adoption of the constitution forms a most important era in the history of the United States, and its happy operation has perpetuated the blessings secured by the blood and treasure expended in the revolution. The following history of its adoption is extracted from Morse's Geography, published in 1789, and written when the event was transpiring. It deserves to be perpetuated.

"In the small state of Delaware, a convention was called in November, which, after a few days' deliberation, ratified the constitution without a dissenting voice.

"In the convention of Pennsylvania, held the same month, there was a spirited opposition to the new form of government. The debates were long and interesting. Great abilities and firmness were displayed on both sides; but, on the 13th of December, the constitution was received by two thirds of the members.

"In New Jersey, the convention which met in December, were unanimous in adopting the constitution; as was likewise that of Georgia.

"In Connecticut there was some opposition; but the constitution was, on the 9th of January, 1788, ratified by three fourths of the votes in convention, and the minority peaceably acquiesced in the decision.

"In Massachusetts, the opposition was large and respectable. The convention, consisting of more than three hundred delegates, were assembled in January, and continued their debates, with great candor and liberality, about five weeks. At length the question was carried for the constitution by a small majority, and the minority, with that manly condescension which becomes great minds, submitted to the measure, and united to support the government.

"In New Hampshire, the federal cause was, for some time, doubtful. The greatest number of the delegates in convention were at first on the side of the opposition; and some, who might have had their objections removed by the discussion of the subject, were instructed to reject the constitution. An adjournment was therefore moved and carried. This gave the people opportunity to gain a further knowledge of the merits of the constitution, and at the second meeting of the convention, it was ratified by a respectable majority.

"In Maryland, several men of abilities appeared in the opposition, and were unremitting in their endeavors to persuade the people, that the proposed plan of government was artfully calculated to deprive them of their dearest rights; yet in convention it appeared that five sixths of the voices were in favor of it.

"In South Carolina, the opposition was respectable; but two thirds of the convention appeared to advocate and vote for the constitution.

"In Virginia, many of the principal characters opposed the ratification of the constitution with great abilities and industry. But after a full discussion of the subject, a small majority, of a numerous convention, appeared for its adoption.

"In New York, two thirds of the delegates in convention were, at their first meeting, determined to reject the constitution. Here, therefore, the debates were the most interesting, and the event extremely doubtful. The argument was managed with uncommon address and abilities on both sides of the question. But during the session, the ninth and tenth states had acceded to the proposed plan, so that by the constitution, Congress were empowered to issue an ordinance for organizing the new government. This event placed the opposition on new ground; and the expediency of uniting with the other states—the generous motives of conciliating all differences, and the danger of a rejection, influenced a respectable number, who were originally opposed to the constitution, to join the federal interest. The constitution was accordingly ratified by a small majority; but the ratification was accompanied here, as in Virginia, with a bill of rights, declaratory of the sense of the convention, as to certain great principles, and with a catalogue of amendments, which were to be recommended to the consideration of the new congress, and the several state legislatures.

"North Carolina met in convention in July, to deliberate on the new constitution. After a short session they rejected it, by a majority of one hundred and seventy-six against seventy-six. This was the first state that had, in a formal manner, rejected the constitution.

"Rhode Island was doomed to be the sport of a blind and singular policy. The legislature, in consistency with the measures which had been before pursued, did not call a convention, to collect the sense of the state upon the proposed constitution; but in an unconstitutional and absurd manner, submitted the plan of government to the consideration of the people. Accordingly it was brought before town-meetings, and in most of them rejected. In some of the large towns, particularly in Newport and Providence, the people collected and resolved, with great propriety, that they could not take up the subject; and that the proposition for embracing or rejecting the federal constitution, could come before no tribunal but that of the state in convention or legislature."

(North Carolina finally adopted the constitution in Nov. 1789; and Rhode Island in May, 1790.)

"From the moment the proceedings of the general convention at Philadelphia transpired, the public mind was exceedingly agitated, and suspended between hope and fear, until nine states had ratified their plan of a federal government. Indeed, the anxiety continued until Virginia and New York had acceded to the system. But this did not prevent the demonstrations of their joy on the accession of each state.

"On the ratification in Massachusetts, the citizens of Boston, in the elevation of their joy, formed a procession in honor of the happy event, which was novel, splendid, and magnificent. This example was afterwards followed, and in some instances improved upon, in Baltimore, Charleston, Philadelphia, New Haven, Portsmouth, and New York, successively. Nothing could equal the beauty and grandeur of these exhibitions. A ship was mounted upon wheels, and drawn through the streets; mechanics erected stages, and exhibited specimens of labor in their several occupations, as they moved along the road; flags with emblems, descriptive of all the arts and of the federal union, were invented and displayed in honor of the government; multitudes of all ranks in life assembled to view the majestic scenes; while sobriety, joy, and harmony, marked the brilliant exhibitions, by which the Americans celebrated the establishment of their Empire."

The constitution was finally ratified by Congress, July 14th, 1788. On the first Wednesday of January, 1789, electors of President and Vice-President were appointed. The electors met on the 1st Wednesday of February, 1789, and George Washington was unanimously chosen President, and John Adams was chosen Vice-President. Gen. Washington was inaugurated as first President, on the 30th of April, 1789, in the open gallery of the old Federal Hall in New York, where the Customhouse now stands; and at the conclusion, the mass of citizens in Wall-street, and far down Broad-street, rent the air with the hearty and universal shout, "Long live George Washington!"

The following is a list of the Presidents of the United States.

Gen. Washington died suddenly, at his residence at Mount Vernon, December 14th, 1799, of an inflammation of the throat, at the age of 68 years; and the nation everywhere mourned for him, as for a father. Funeral processions were formed, and funeral orations were delivered in almost every considerable place in the country; and the respect of the world has added its sanction to the nation's tears.

In 1803, Louisiana was purchased of the French, for $15,000,000; and Florida was ceded to the United States in 1821 by Spain, in compensation for spoliations on American commerce, for $5,000,000.

On the 4th of June, 1812, war was declared with Great Britain by the American Congress, by a vote in the House of 79 to 49; and in the Senate by a vote of 19 to 13. This war continued with varied success, until peace was concluded at Ghent, December 24th, 1814, leaving the parties in the condition in which the war was commenced, except the expenditure of money and of life.

The original 13 states that adopted the constitution, were New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia. To these, 13 new states have been added; Vermont in 1791, Kentucky in 1792, Tennessee in 1796, Ohio in 1802, Louisiana in 1812, Indiana in 1816, Mississippi in 1817, Illinois in 1818, Alabama in 1819, Maine in 1820, Missouri in 1821, Arkansas in 1836 Michigan in 1836.

The whole amount of capital employed in manufactures was $2,130,064.

The Mobile is the principal river in the state. It is formed by the union of the Tombigbee and the Alabama, 40 miles above the city of Mobile. The Alabama is a large river, and is navigable for vessels drawing 6 feet of water to Claiborne, 60 miles above its junction; 150 miles further to the mouth of the Cahawba, it has 4 or 5 feet of water; and to the junction of the Coosa and Tallapoosa, of which it is formed, it has, in its shallowest places, three feet of water. The Tombigbee is navigable for schooners 120 miles to St. Stephens, and for steamboats to Columbus, Miss. It is 450 miles long, and boatable for a greater part of its course. The Black Warrior forms a large branch of it, and is navigable to Tuscaloosa. The Chattahoochee river forms a part of the eastern boundary of the state; and the Tennessee runs through the northern part.

Alabama has only 60 miles of sea coast. But this includes Mobile Bay, which is 30 miles long, and from 3 to 18 broad.

Mobile, on the w. side of Mobile Bay, is the most commercial place in the state, and has an extensive trade, particularly in cotton. The other principal places are St. Stephens, Tuscaloosa, Cahawba, Montgomery, Wetumpka, Florence, and Huntsville.

The University of Alabama at Tuscaloosa was founded in 1820, has been liberally endowed by the state, and is a flourishing institution. La Grange College in the county of Franklin, was founded in 1830. In these institutions there were in 1840, 153 students. There were in the state, 114 academies and grammar schools, with 5,018 students; and 639 common and primary schools, with 16,243 scholars. There were 22,592 free white persons over 20 years of age, who could neither read nor write.

In 1835 the Baptists had 250 churches, 109 ministers, and 11,445 communicants; the Methodists had 60 ministers and 13,845 communicants; the Presbyterians had 45 churches, 49 ministers, and 2,268 communicants. The Roman Catholics had 1 bishop and 5 ministers; and the Episcopalians had 7 ministers.

At the commencement of 1840, there was one bank in this state, with a capital of $3,399,739, and a circulation of $696,855. At the close of 1840, the state debt amounted to $10,359,556.

The constitution of this state was formed in 1819, preparatory to its admission to the Union, in 1820. The governor is elected by the people for two years, but is eligible only 4 years in 6. The senators are elected for 3 years, and one third are chosen every year. Their number cannot be more than one third, nor less than a fourth of the number of the representatives. The representatives are elected annually, and are apportioned among the counties in proportion to their white population. They cannot be more than 100 nor less than 60 in number. The representatives and one third of the senators are elected annually, on the first Monday in August, and the day following; and the governor is elected biennially, at the same time. The legislature meets annually at Tuscaloosa, on the 4th Monday in October. The judiciary consists of a supreme court, a circuit court, and such inferior courts as the general assembly may, from time to time, direct and establish. The judges are elected every six years, by the joint vote of both houses of the general assembly. The right of suffrage is possessed by every white male citizen of 21 years of age, who has resided within the state one year next preceding an election, and the last three months within the county, city, or town in which he offers his vote.

The Muscle Shoals Canal is designed to overcome the obstruction in the Tennessee river. It extends from the head of the falls, 35½ miles to Florence, and cost $571,835. But to extend the work to its completion will cost $1,361,057. The Huntsville canal extends from Triana on the Tennessee, 16 miles to Huntsville.

The Alabama and Florida railroad extends from Pensacola, 156½ miles to Montgomery, and cost $2,500,000. The Selma and Cahawba railroad is a branch of the Alabama and Florida railroad, extending from Selma 10 miles to Cahawba.

The Montgomery and Westpoint railroad extends from Montgomery, the northern termination of the Pensacola and Montgomery railroad to Westpoint, at the head of the rapids of the Chattahoochee river, 30 miles above Columbus. It is 87 miles long. The Tuscumbia, Cortland, and Decatur railroad extends from Tuscumbia 44 miles to Decatur. The Wetumpka railroad extends 10 miles, and is designed to connect, when completed, the Tennessee and Alabama rivers, at Wetumpka.

The French formed a small settlement, and built a fort where the city of Mobile now stands, early in the 18th century. Most of the territory of Alabama was included in the original patent of Georgia. In 1802 Georgia ceded all her territory w. of the Chattahoochee river to the United States; and extending to the Mississippi river, it was erected into the Mississippi territory, in 1817. It continued a part of the Mississippi territory until 1819, when a state constitution was formed; and in 1820 it was admitted to the Union, as an independent state.

ALABAMA, p-t. Genesee co., N. Y., 12 n. w. Batavia, 263 Albany, 388 W. It is watered by the Tonawanda creek, which in the n. w. part of the town furnishes a feeder to the Erie canal, near which the creek has falls of 30 feet. There is an Indian reservation and settlement in the town. It has 1 store, cap. $9,000; 2 tanneries, 2 saw m. Cap. in manufac. $6,138. Pop. 1,796. The village at the p-o. has 12 or 15 houses.

ALACHUA SAVANNA, a grassy and marshy plain in Alachua co., Florida, which is supposed to discharge its waters by an underground passage into Lake Orange.

ALACHUA, county of E. Florida, situated on the w. part of the peninsula, and contains about 2,500 square miles. It embraces one of the largest tracts of good land in the ter., and has long been densely populated. It has a number of ponds and prairies, and furnishes excellent pasture for numerous herds of cattle. Suwanee river runs on its w. border, and Withlacoochee river through its s. part. Wakasassee river passes through it. Some part of the surface is rolling, but toward the coast it is flat and wet. Capital, Newmansville. There were in 1840, neat cattle 5,665, sheep 87, swine 2,441; ind. corn 27,365 bush. produced, potatoes 9,652, sugar 2,000 lbs. Pop. whites 1,719, slaves 562; total, 2,282.

ALAUQA, v., Walton co., Flor., 161 n. of w. from Tallahassee. It is situated on Alauqa river. Pop. 221.

ALATAMAHA or ALTAMAHA, a navigable river of Georgia, formed by the union of the Ockmulgee and the Oconee. After the junction, the Altamaha becomes a large river, flowing with a gentle current through forests and plains, upwards of 100 miles, and enters by several outlets into Altamaha sound, 60 s. w. Savannah, through which it passes into the Atlantic. This sound contains a number of beautiful islands. The Altamaha is navigable on the Oconee branch, 300 m. from the ocean, for boats of 30 tons, and for steamboats to Milledgeville; and to an equal distance on the Ockmulgee branch. The bar at the mouth has 14 feet, at low water. The whole length of the river to its source, is about 500 miles.

ALBA, p-v., Bradford co., Pa., 143 n. by E. Harrisburgh, 250 W.

ALBANY, t., Bradford co., Pa., the surface is hilly; soil gravelly loam. Drained by Towanda cr. and the w. branch of Mahopony cr. It contains 1 store, cap. $2,500; 1 grist m., 3 saw m. Cap. in manufac. $4,050.

ALBANY county, N. Y., is situated 150 n. of the city of New York. It was organized in 1683. It lies on the w. side of Hudson r. The surface is uneven, and in the s. w. part hilly and mountainous. On the river the soil is good, and well cultivated, but in the interior it is sandy and unproductive. Among its mineral productions are bog iron ore, and water limestones. There are also several mineral springs. Besides the Mohawk, on its n., and the Hudson on its e. boundary, its streams are Normanskill, Viamanskill, Haivankrauskill and Coeyman's cr., which enter the Hudson, and some others. It has an area of 515 sq. miles. The Erie and Champlain canals form a junction in the n. e. part of this county. Capital, Albany. There were in 1840, neat cattle 25,784, sheep 57,478, swine 49,068; wheat 21,008 bushels produced, rye 145,941, ind. corn 127,162, buckwheat 103,562, barley 155,902, oats 653,794, potatoes 540,582, sugar 24,366 pounds; 47 commission houses, cap. $650,000; 1,166 stores, capital $1,244,903; 27 lumber yards, cap. $464,000; 1 furnace, 11 fulling m., 8 woollen fac. 2 cotton fac., 5,160 sp., 20 tanneries, 8 breweries, 4 potteries, 6 flouring m., 22 grist m., 84 saw m., 1 paper factory, 11 printing offices, 5 binderies, 1 periodical, 3 daily, 5 weekly, 2 semi-weekly newspapers. ALBANY city, N. Y., the capital of the state, is situated on the Hudson r., 145 miles, by the course of the river, above the city of New York, in 42° 39' 3" n. lat., and 73° 32' w. lon., and 3° 12' e. long. from W. 164 w. by N. Boston, 230 s. Montreal, 370 W. The population, in 1810, was 9,356; in 1820, 12,630; in 1830, 24,238; in 1840, 33,721. Employed in agriculture 144; manufactures and trades 1,621; navigating the ocean 8; do. rivers and canals 106; in the learned professions 237. The ground on which Albany is built has a flat alluvial tract along the margin of the river, from 15 to 100 rods wide, back of which it rises abruptly, and in half a mile in the direction of State-street, attains an elevation of 153 feet; and in 1 mile of 220 feet, above the level of the river. Beyond this, the surface is level. The older parts of the city were not laid out with much regularity, and some of the streets are narrow, but the parts more recently laid out, have spacious and regular streets. State-street, one of the early streets, from the meeting of Court and Market streets, is from 150 to 170 feet wide, and has a steep ascent, at the head of which the capitol, which fronts it, has a commanding position. Many of the private, and more especially the public buildings of Albany, have fine situations, and overlook an extensive and a beautiful prospect.

The capitol is a large stone edifice 115 feet long and 90 feet broad, fronting e. on a fine square, at the head of State-street. It contains spacious and richly furnished apartments for the accommodation of the Senate and Assembly, and various rooms for other public purposes. The City Hall is on the e. side of the same square, facing w., and is a large marble building, with a gilded dome. The State Hall, for the public offices, is a corresponding building on the same side of the same square, and is a splendid edifice. The Albany Academy is a fine building of freestone, and has a park in front of it, adjoining the public square; and both squares are surrounded by an iron fence, and in fact, constitute one large and beautiful public ground, divided by a street, laid out with walks, and ornamented with trees. The other public buildings are a Medical College, a Female Academy, the Albany Exchange, a large building of granite at the foot of State-street, and the county jail.

The Albany Academy, in its course of instruction, approaches to a college, and has 400 students, and eminent instructors. The Albany Female Academy has obtained an extensive and a deserved celebrity, and has from 300 to 350 pupils. The Albany library contains 9,000 volumes. The Young Men's Association, established for mutual improvement, occupies rooms in the exchange building, and has 1,500 members. It has a fine reading room, liberally furnished, has a library of 3,200 volumes, and supports, through the winter season, an able course of lectures. The Albany Orphan Asylum is situated one mile w. of the city hall, and generally supports 80 or 90 male and female children. The poorhouse, in the s. w. part of the city, has a number of large buildings, and a farm of 150 acres, cultivated by its inmates. St. Joseph's Orphan Asylum is a Roman Catholic institution, for females only, and has about 40 inmates, under the charge of the Sisters of Charity.

Albany has about 100 streets and alleys built on, 11 public squares, 3 markets, 10 public school buildings, containing also dwellings for the teachers, and 11 engine houses, all built substantially of brick.

The city contains 30 places of worship, of which the Presbyterians have 4, the Associate Reformed 1, the Dutch Reformed 3, the Methodists 4, the African Methodist 1, the Episcopalians 3, the Baptists 2, the colored Baptists 1, the Lutherans 2, the Universalists 1, and the Roman Catholics 2. There are 1 Independent church, 1 Mission church, 1 Bethel church, 1 Friends meeting-house, and 2 Jewish synagogues.

The old state hall on the s. side of State-street, is now converted into a museum, for the situation of the geological cabinet, collected by the state geologists in their surveys. The Albany Institute is a respectable scientific association, which has a valuable library and cabinet.

The situation of Albany for trade and commerce, is commanding. Being on one of the finest rivers in the United States, and having a rich back country, its natural advantages are great; but these advantages have been vastly increased by the Erie and the Champlain canals, which give it a ready access to a widely extended country to the n. and w.; and its connection to Boston by railroad, will add to these advantages. The Mohawk and Hudson railroad terminates here, and connects with other lines to the west. The Erie canal, comprising also the Champlain canal, enters the city in its n. part, and flows into a spacious basin, formed by a pier built in the river, a mile and a quarter long, which produces a safe harbor, not only for boats, but also for vessels, to defend them against the ice in the spring floods. These advantages have been improved. There are in the city 53 commission houses, 35 importers, 137 wholesale houses, 440 retail stores, and 612 grocery and provision stores. There are 8 banks, with an aggregate cap. of $2,751,000; 4 insurance companies, with a total cap. of $700,000.

The manufactures of Albany are not less flourishing than its commerce. There are 15 manufactories of carriages, some of them very extensive; 20 of hats and caps, producing articles to the amount of $900,000 annually; 4 of tobacco, 2 of morocco leather, 5 rope-walks, 15 of soap and candles, 5 of musical instruments, 2 of combs, 20 of copper, tin, and sheet iron; and a great many others. There are 2 type foundries, 1 stereotype, 2 manufactories of oil cloth, 8 of stoves, 4 of carpets, &c. There are 10 furnaces, 3 steam sawing and planing machines, 4 plane manufactories, 1 manufactory of philosophical instruments, and 1 of coach lace. There are 3 malting houses and 9 breweries. According to the late census there were in Albany in 1840, 47 commission houses engaged in foreign trade, with a cap. of $650,000; 976 retail drygoods and other stores, with a cap. of $975,000. The total cap. employed in manufactures was $1,735,500. In 1840, 20 steamboats and 51 towboats regularly plied between Albany and New York, and the intermediate places on the river. A large number of sloops also navigate the river. It is estimated that over 1,000 persons arrive at, and depart from Albany, daily, by its various lines of communication.

Albany was founded by the Dutch in 1614, and by them called "Beaver Wyck," and afterward "Williamstadt." It capitulated to the English in 1664, who gave it its present name, in honor of the Duke of York and Albany, its proprietor. It was incorporated in 1686.

ALBANY, t., Berks co., Pa. The surface is hilly; soil gravelly and poor. It has 1 Presbyterian and 1 Lutheran church, and several forges. Drained by Maiden cr. and its tributaries. It has 1 tannery, 6 grist m., 6 saw m., 1 oil m. Cap. in manufac. $3,000. Pop. 1,057.

ALLEGHANY, r., the principal head branch of the Ohio r., which see.

ALLEGHANY OR APPALACHIAN MOUNTAINS, constitute a range of great length, and from 50 to 200 ms. in breadth, and reach from the Catskill mountains in the state of New York, their most elevated part, to Georgia. The course of this great chain is nearly parallel with the Atlantic, and about from 50 to 130 m. distant from it; and it consists of a number of parallel ridges, denominated the Blue Ridge, North mountain, Jackson's mountain, Laurel mountain, Cumberland mountain, &c. These mountains, for the most part, are not over 2,500 feet high, and they divide the waters which flow into the Atlantic on the E., from those which flow into the Mississippi and the lakes to the N. and W. These ridges rarely present naked summits, but are generally wooded to the top; and between the ridges are often valleys of fertile land, though the country among them is generally rocky and rough. They consist of granite, gneiss, mica and clay slate, primitive limestone, &c.

ALLEGANY, county, N. Y., is one of the southern tier of counties, being bounded s. by Pennsylvania. It was taken from Genesee co. in 1846. It is watered by Genesee r., which flows nearly through the middle of it, from s. to n., and a number of smaller streams or creeks, which flow into it on each side. The valley of the Genesee contains much excellent land, and the country on each side rises, and in the E. and W. part of the co. consists of an elevated table land, from 1,500 to 2,500 feet above tide water in the Hudson r. The area of the county is about 1,185 sq. ms. The Genesee Valley canal passes through the county, from s. to n., and commences at Olean, in Cattaraugus co., on the Alleghany r., and will form a line of communication from the Erie canal at Rochester to Pittsburg. The New York and Erie railroad will also pass through this county by a circuitous course, from E. to W. The soil of this county is generally fertile, but better adapted to grazing than to grain. Among the minerals are limestone and bog iron ore. The growth of timber is large, consisting of oak, maple, beech, basswood, ash, elm, and white and yellow pine, and hemlock, the last 3 being found chiefly in the s. part. Capital, Angelica. There were in 1840, neat cattle 45,864, sheep 129,655, swine 30,043; wheat 232,471 bush. produced, buckwheat 20,068, Ind. corn 60,137, potatoes 583,945, oats 354,566; 13 stores, cap. $376,400; 24 fulling m., 4 woollen fac., 31 tanneries, 2 distilleries, 3 flouring m., 36 grist m., 204 saw m., 1 oil m., 6 furnaces, 3 printing offices, 2 weekly papers. Cap. in manufac. $403,370. Pop. in 1830, 26,218; in 1840, 40,975.

ALLEGHANY, county, Pa. This important county lies on the W. border of Pennsylvania, and contains the Monongahela and Alleghany rs., where they unite to form the Ohio, which runs 14 ms. in this county. Pittsburg, its capital, situated at the confluence of these rivers, is one of the most important places of the west. The country, though hilly, is fertile, and the natural growth is dense and large. The agriculture, manufactures and commerce of the county are in a very flourishing state. There were in 1840, neat cattle 21,512, sheep 56,459, swine 34,635; wheat 461,167 bush.

produced, rye 59,045, buckwheat 29,894, Ind. corn 289,797, potatoes 409,210, oats 770,378. It contains 7 common houses, in for. tr., and 32 com. $1,241,110; 551 stores, cap. $4,369,290; 5 fulling m., 5 woollen fac., 5 cotton fac., 17,270 sp., 32 tanneries, 14 distilleries, 6 breweries, 17 glass houses, 1 pottery, 37 flouring m., 32 grist m., 81 saw m., 2 oil m., 26 furnaces, 18 printing offices, 4 daily and 11 weekly newspapers, 10 periodicals. Cap. in manufac. $3,554,562. It has 2 colleges, 81 students, 21 acad. 1,186 students, 202 sch. 10,281 scholars. Pop. in 1830, 40,506; in 1840, 81,235.

ALLEGHANY, county, Md., lies in the extreme western part of the state. The main branch of the Alleghany mountains passes through it, and its surface is extremely rough and broken, though much of the soil is fertile. It forms the dividing ridge whence the Youghiogony proceeds n. w. into the Monongahela; and the head branch of the Potomac proceeds s. w. toward the Atlantic. It is by this route that the Chesapeake and Ohio canal and the Baltimore and Ohio railroad are to proceed. The great national road, constructed by the general government, at a great expense, and leading into the western states, commences at Cumberland, the capital of this co. There were in 1840, neat cattle 10,031, sheep 13,763, swine 11,490; wheat 86,648 bush. produced, Ind. corn 191,747, potatoes 67,193, oats 213,581; 63 stores, cap. $211,400; 2 fulling m., 2 woollen fac., 8 tanneries, 8 distilleries, 11 flouring m., 18 grist m., 44 saw m., 1 oil m., 1 furnace, 3 printing offices, 3 weekly newspapers. Cap. in manufac. $99,410. Pop. in 1830, 10,609; in 1840, 15,690, of which 812 were slaves.

ALLEGHANY county, Va., lies in the central part of the state, among the Alleghany mountains, and is drained by the head waters of James r. It contains an area of 521 sq. ms. Soil is rich on the streams, and on the "rich patch mountain" is highly productive, and densely populated. On the other mountains, the land is poor, and covered with pines. A stream issuing from a spring, after a short, tranquil course, has a fall of 180 feet, and proceeds from cataract to cataract, until its entrance into Jackson's r. The passage of Jackson's r. through Waite's mountain, is regarded as a curiosity. Its mountainous situation, and great elevation, give it a cooler temperature than might be expected from its latitude. Capital, Covington. There were in 1840, neat cattle 2,686, sheep 3,647, swine 4,578; wheat 25,449 bush. produced, rye 2,142, Ind. corn 70,828, oats 58,860, potatoes 9,372, tobacco 42,500 pounds; 5 stores, cap. $2,400; 4 tanneries, 5 distilleries, 1 pottery, 4 flouring m., 20 grist m., 21 saw m., 1 furnace. Philips' Academy was founded in 1788 by the Hon. Samuel and John Philips. It has funds to the amount of over $50,000. The number of students is limited to 130, which is its usual number, all of whom study the learned languages, under a principal and three assistants. The academic building is of brick, 80 by 40 feet, on a range with the theological buildings, 40 rods distant. This is the best endowed academy in the state.

The Andover Theological Seminary was founded in 1807, and opened in the autumn of 1808. It has an elevated and commanding location. The buildings consist of three dwelling houses for professors; a steward's house, containing a dining hall; and three public edifices of brick; Phillips' Hall, 90 by 40 feet, 4 stories, containing 32 rooms for students; Bartlet chapel, 94 by 40 feet, containing a chapel, library, and three lecture rooms; and Bartlet Hall, 104 by 40 feet, 4 stories, containing 32 suits of rooms for students. The institution is under a president and four professors: the associate professor of sacred literature; the Abbott professor of Christian theology; the Bartlet professor of sacred rhetoric; and the Brown professor of sacred rhetoric and ecclesiastical history. The students on entering are required to have a liberal education, and testimonials of good character and talents, and complete their course in three years. They are divided into the junior, middle, and senior classes. Tuition and room rent are free to all, and further aid is furnished to the indigent. A public examination and commencement are held on the 4th Wednesday of Sept. It has 142 students; 785 have completed their education here since its first establishment; and the libraries contain 17,500 volumes. The whole amount contributed by its donors is about $400,000. A seminary for teachers was founded in Andover in 1830, which gives a thorough education, and promises to be of great use in preparing competent teachers for schools. Manual labor is connected with the institution. 4 acad. 379 students, 23 sch. 1,153 scholars. Pop. 1830, 4,540; 1840, 5,207.

H.; VAN BUREN, 1,518, Clinton; WASHINGTON, 7,148, Fayetteville; WHITE, 929, Searcy; BRADLEY, erected since census, Warren.

Little Rock, on the s. bank of the Arkansas, 300 miles from the Mississippi, is the seat of government.

In the eastern part of the state, bordering on the Mississippi and the large rivers which empty into it, the country is low and swampy, with a heavy growth of timber, and is frequently overflowed. In the central part, it is undulated and broken; and in the western parts, the Ozark mountains, rising sometimes to the height of 1 or 2,000 feet, cross the n. w. part of the state. The Black Hills, north of the Arkansas, and the Washita Hills, north of the Washita river, have considerable elevation. The soil is of every variety, from the most productive to the most sterile. On the margins of the rivers, it is exceedingly fertile; but back of this, the land is generally poor. Prairies are abundant, of immense extent; but in many parts, there is a scarcity of water. Cotton and Indian corn are the staple productions; but the country is well calculated for raising cattle. Wild animals and fowls, as the buffalo, deer, elk, otter, beaver, rabbit, racoon, wild-cat, catamount, wolf, bear, and wild-geese, turkeys, and quails, are abundant. Near the centre of the state there are numerous hot-springs, the temperature of which sometimes rises nearly to the boiling point, though subject to considerable variation. Iron ore, gypsum, coal, and salt are found.

There were in this state in 1840, 51,472 horses and mules; 188,786 neat cattle; 42,151 sheep; 393,058 swine; poultry to the value of $109,468. There was produced 105,878 bushels of wheat; 6,219 of rye; 4,846,632 of Indian corn; 189,553 of oats; 293,608 of potatoes; 64,943 pounds of wool; 1,079 of wax; 148,439 of tobacco; 5,454 of rice; 6,028,642 of cotton; 1,542 of sugar; 586 tons of hay; 1,039 of hemp and flax. The products of the dairy were valued at $59,205; of the orchard, $10,680; of the forest, $176,617.

There were 10 commercial and 10 commission houses engaged in foreign trade, with a capital of $91,000; 263 retail dry goods and other stores, with a capital of $1,578,719; 263 persons employed in the lumber trade, with a capital of $12,220.

The amount of home-made or family manufactures was, $489,750; 2 cotton manufactories with 90 spindles, employed 7 persons, and had a capital of $2,125; 7 persons produced 5,500 bushels of bituminous coal, with a capital of $605; 25 persons produced 8,700 bushels of salt, with a capital of $20,800; 30 persons produced granite and marble to the amount of $15,500; 3 persons produced hats and caps to the amount of $1,400, with a capital of $400; 37 tanneries employed 70 persons, and a capital of $43,510; 545 other manufactories of leather, as saddleries, &c., produced articles to the amount of $17,400, with a capital of $8,830; 51 persons produced machinery to the amount of $14,065; 66 persons produced bricks and lime to the amount of $319,696; 6 persons produced 142,775 pounds of soap, and 16,541 pounds of tallow candles, and 632 pounds of wax or spermaceti candles, with a capital of $200; 53 distilleries produced 26,415 gallons, employing 38 persons, and a capital of $10,205; 15 persons produced carriages and wagons to the amount of $2,675, with a capital of $1,555; 1 powder mill made 400 pounds of gunpowder, with a capital of $700; 10 flouring mills produced 1,430 barrels of flour, and with other mills employed 400 persons, producing articles to the amount of $330,847, and employing a capital of $288,257; 45 persons manufactured furniture to the amount of $20,293, with a capital of $7,810; 21 brick or stone houses, and 1,063 wooden houses built, employed 1,251 persons, and cost $1,141,174; 9 printing offices, 1 bindery, 3 semi-weekly and 6 weekly newspapers employed 37 persons, and a capital of $13,100. The whole amount of capital employed in manufactures was $424,467.

In the eastern part of the state, particularly in the country bordering on the rivers, and especially on the Arkansas, the climate is moist and unhealthy. But toward the middle and in the western part, the climate becomes healthy.

This state is well situated for commerce, having an easy communication, by means of its rivers, with the Mississippi. The Arkansas, the principal river, rises in the Rocky Mountains, and flows with a broad and deep current through the state, in a s. eastwardly direction. It is navigable for steamboats, 300 miles to Little Rock; and in time of high water, 350 miles farther to Fort Gibson, which is west of the limits of the state. The Red river passes through the s. w. part of the state. The St. Francis, the White, and the Washita, are other important rivers.

Little Rock; Arkansas, an old French settlement on the Arkansas; Columbia and Helena on the Mississippi; Batesville on White river; Fayetteville in the n. w. part of the state; and Fulton on Red river, are considerable and growing places.

This state is too young to have done much for education in its higher departments. There is no college in this state. There were in 1840, 8 academies, with 300 students; and 113 common and primary schools, with 2,614 scholars. There were 6,567 white persons over 20 years of age who could neither read nor write.

The Methodists and Baptists are the most numerous religious denominations, though there are some Presbyterians, Episcopalians, and Roman Catholics.

At the commencement of 1840, there was 1 bank with 3 branches, and a capital of $1,501,888, and a circulation of $301,310.

At the close of 1840, the state debt was $3,755,362.

The constitution of this state was formed in 1836. The governor is chosen by the people for 4 years, but cannot hold the office more than 8 years in 12. The members of the Senate are elected by the people for 4 years, and the representatives for 2 years. The elections are visa voce. The Senate can never consist of less than 17, nor more than 33 members; the House of Representatives of less than 54, or more than 100 members. The judges of the Supreme Court are appointed for 8 years, and of the Circuit Courts for 4 years. These judges are chosen by the legislature. The judges of the county courts are chosen by justices of the peace. The legislature meets once in 2 years. Every white male citizen of the United States, and who has resided in the state 6 months, is entitled to vote.

No lotteries can be established, or lottery tickets sold. No debtor can be imprisoned, without strong presumption of fraud. The legislature may establish one bank with branches, and one banking institution to promote the interests of agriculture. It cannot emancipate slaves, without the consent of their owners. Slaves have the right of trial by jury, and suffer the same degree of punishment for a crime as white persons, and no other. Courts of justice are obliged to assign to slaves, counsel for their defence.

Arkansas was a part of the Louisiana purchase. It was made a separate territory in 1819, and was admitted to the Union in 1836. It derives its name from the great river which runs through it.

ARKANSAS county, Ark., lies on both sides of Arkansas r., near its mouth. White r. runs on its n. e. boundary. It is watered on the n. parts by Bayou Agnew r., which enters White r., and Big Meter r., which enters the Arkansas. The south end of Grand Prairie is in this county, and is very rich land. The surface is generally level, though rising some in the w. part. There were in 1840, neat cattle 6,251, sheep 413, swine 6,810, Ind. corn 70,834 bush. produced, potatoes 3,164, tobacco 1,422 pounds, cotton $61,404; 2 stores, cap. $27,250; 5 grist m., 1 saw m., 1 sch. 24 scholars. the soil a gravelly loam. On its eastern boundary is Ballston or Long lake, 4 ms. long, and half a mile wide, the outlet of which affords some water power. Organized in 1788. There are several post-offices and small villages in the place. The Schenectady and Saratoga railroad passes through the t. It contains 2 stores, cap. $4,500; 1 fulling m., 1 woollen fac., 3 tanneries, 1 saw m. Cap. in manufac. $12,800. 1 acad. 23 students, 11 sch. 269 scholars. Pop. 2,044.

BALLSTON CENTRE, p.-v., Ballston t., Saratoga co., N. Y., 25 Albany, 396 W. It has 1 Presbyterian church, 1 store, and 10 or 12 dwellings.

BALSTON SPA, p.-v., and capital of Saratoga co., N. Y., is situated in Milton t., 28 Albany, 399 W. Through the village flows a small branch of the Kayaderoseras creek. Incorporated 1807. It has a brick court house and jail, a county clerk's office, 4 churches, 1 Presbyterian, 1 Episcopal, 1 Baptist, and 1 Methodist, 1 banking house, 20 stores, 300 dwellings, and about 1,500 inhabitants. It has 2 flouring m., 1 saw m., 1 iron foundry, 1 machine shop, 2 tanneries, and 1 distillery. There are several mineral springs at the place, more celebrated formerly than at present, as they have lost some of their properties, and the Sans Souci Hotel, a large building, erected for the accommodation of visitors, and which is much frequented in the summer season. It is connected by rail roads with Troy, Schenectady, and Saratoga.

BALLSVILLE, p.-o., Powhatan co., Va., 48 W. Richmond, 151 W.

BALTIMORE, county, Md., situated in the n. part of the state, contains 900 sq. ms. The surface is hilly, but not mountainous. It is watered by Gunpowder and Patapsco rivers. The capital is Baltimore. There were in 1840, neat cattle 13,723, sheep 16,826, swine 23,883; wheat 153,181 bushels produced, rye 79,132, Ind. corn 523,423, buckwheat 9,116, oats 300,978, potatoes 183,684, tobacco 9,417 pounds; 70 for commercial, and 108 commission houses, cap. $4,404,500; 1,310 ret. stores, cap. $6,795,038; 2 forges, 4 fulling m., 2 woollen fac., 13 cotton fac. 34,102 sp., 3 dyeing and printing estab., 27 tanneries, 5 distilleries, 3 breweries, 5 powder m., 1 glass fac. 9 potteries, 33 flouring m., 48 grist m., 34 saw m., 8 rope walks, 4 paper fac., 19 printing offices, 6 daily, 7 weekly, and 5 semi-weekly newspapers, 6 periodicals. Population 1830, 190,876; 1840, whites 105,331, slaves 7,595, free colored 21,453; total, 134,379.

BALTIMORE, the third city in population and commerce in the United States, and capital of Baltimore county, in Maryland, is situated on the n. side of the Patapsco river, 14 miles from its entrance into the Chesapeake Bay, and 300 ms. from the ocean, by ship channel; and is in 39° 17' n. lat., and 76° 36' w. lon. from Greenwich, and 0° 26' e. lon. from Washington. It is 40 miles n. e. from Washington, 97 a. w. from Philadelphia, 183 a. w. from New York, 396 a. w. from Boston, 160 n. e. from Richmond, 230 e. a. e. from Pittsburg, 590 n. n. e. from Charleston. The population in 1790, was 13,503; in 1800, 26,514; in 1810, 35,583; in 1820, 62,738; in 1830, 80,625; in 1840, 102,313, of which 3,199 were slaves. Employed in commerce, 1,991; in manufactures and trades, 8,847; learned professions, 554. It had 4 colleges with 395 students; 50 academies and grammar schools, with 2,044 students, 63 common schools with 3,401 scholars; and 1,191 white persons over twenty, who could neither read nor write. The city is pleasantly situated, on a slightly undulating ground, with commanding elevations on the n. and e. As laid out it includes 4 miles square, and is built around a bay which sets up from the n. side of the Patapsco. The streets are regular and spacious, and the houses are neat, most of them of brick, and some of them are splendid. The harbor, which is very fine, consists of three parts. The entrance to it, between Fort M'Henry and the Lazaretto, is about 600 yards wide, with 22 feet of water. This depth is continued, with an increased width, for a mile and a quarter, to near Fell's Point. Opposite Fell's Point, the width is contracted to one fourth of a mile. This is the entrance to the second harbor, and is about 12 feet deep; but it widens above into an ellipse, a mile long, half a mile broad, and 15 feet deep. The third or inner harbor has a depth of 10 feet, and penetrates to near the centre of the city. It is well defended by Fort M'Henry, at the entrance to the outer harbor, which was proved by a powerful attack that was made upon it and repulsed, in the last war with Great Britain. Jones' Falls, a small stream from the n., divides the city into 2 parts, and over it are erected 3 elegant stone bridges and 4 wooden ones. Vessels of 500 or 600 tons can lie at the wharves near Fell's Point; but those of 200 tons can come up to the town in the inner harbor. The amount of the tonnage of this port in 1840, was 76,022.

Among the public buildings, the City Hall, on Holliday-street, is a plain building, 3 stories high, having a portico with 4 massive pillars; and is occupied by the city council and several offices. The Court House, corner of Monument square and Lexington-street, is a large and commodious building, and is appropriated to the city and county courts, with their connected offices. It is 145 feet long and 65 wide, two stories high, constructed of marble and brick. In front are several Tuscan columns, and the whole is surmounted by a cupola of an imposing appearance. There are six markets. The State Penitentiary consists of three large buildings, besides workshops and some other buildings, and occupies 4 acres, containing gardens and walks, surrounded by a stone wall 20 feet high. The prisoners work together by day, and are confined in separate cells at night. The County Prison, near the Penitentiary, is a neat building, with embattled towers at the ends, and has an appropriate cupola. The House of Refuge is well fitted for its purpose. But the most imposing public structure is the Washington Monument, at the intersection of Charles and Monument streets. Its base is 50 feet square and 20 feet high, on which is a pedestal supporting a Doric column, 140 feet high, on the top of which is a statue of Washington, 13 feet high. The column is 20 feet in diameter at the bottom and 14 feet at the top, and is ascended by a circular stair-case on the inside. The Battle Monument, corner of Calvert and Fayette streets, was erected in 1815, in commemoration of the successful defence of the city against an attack of the British in September, 1814, and is 52 feet high, including an elegant statue on the top, emblematical of the city of Baltimore. The names of those who fell in the battle are inscribed on the column in letters of gold.

Baltimore is well supplied with pure and wholesome water. In several parts of the city are public springs or fountains, accessible to all the citizens. These fountains are enclosed by circular railings, and covered by small, neat, open temples, consisting of columns supporting a dome. These are denominated the City Spring, Western Fountain, Centre Fountain, and Eastern Fountain; and they are an ornament as well as a convenience to the city. But there is a still more copious supply of water from an elevated part of Jones' Falls, in an aqueduct half a mile long, to a reservoir on Calvert-street, whence it is distributed in pipes through the city. The harbor of Baltimore is accessible through a great part of the year, though sometimes obstructed by ice.

The commerce is great, for which it enjoys peculiar facilities. It possesses most of the trade of Maryland, about half that of Pennsylvania, and a portion of that of the Western States. In its shipping, it is the third city in the Union. It is the greatest market for tobacco in the United States, and the greatest flour market in the world. Its tonnage in 1840 amounted to 76,022. Its manufactures are not less extensive than its commerce. A vast amount of water power is concentrated in its vicinity. Jones' Falls, though a small stream, has a succession of falls which afford considerable water power. The Patapaco, though not a large river, has a fall of about 900 feet in a course of thirty miles; and it affords many valuable mill sites. There are within 20 miles of the city, 60 flouring mills, besides numerous cotton manufactories, and other manufactories of cloth, powder, paper, iron, copper, glass, steam engines, chemicals, tobacco, &c. There were in 1840, 70 commercial and 108 commission houses, with a cap. of $4,404,500; 1,254 retail stores, cap. $6,708,611; 20 lumber yards, cap. $267,500; machinery manufac. to the amount of $284,000; hardware and cutlery $10,300; precious metals $13,000; of various metals $310,000; 1 woollen fac., cap. $20,000; 1 cotton fac. 3,600 sp.; 1 dyeing and printing establishment, total cap. $16,200; tobacco, cap. $118,900; 13 tanneries, cap. $132,800; 3 distilleries, 3 breweries, capital $87,000; 1 powder m., cap. $30,000; paints, drugs, &c., cap. $79,000; 1 glass factory, capital $30,000; 9 potteries, cap. $22,300; 6 sugar refineries produced $176,000; 3 paper fac. prod. $59,000; 8 rope walks, cap. $66,550; 1 grist m., 2 saw m., cap. $27,000; furniture to the amount of $268,300; 213 brick and stone houses, and 1 wooden house, employed 845 persons, and cost $548,400; 19 printing offices, 10 binderies, 6 daily, 7 weekly, 5 semi-weekly newspapers, and 6 periodicals, employed 279 persons, and a cap. of $119,900. Total cap. in manufactures $2,729,983. 4 univ. and colleges, 395 students, 50 acad. or gram. sch., 2,044 students, 63 com. and prim. schools with 3,401 scholars.

The Baltimore and Port Deposit railroad extends 36 miles to Havre de Grace, and there connects with a chain of railroads to Philadelphia, making the whole distance 95 miles. The Washington branch of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad extends 38 miles to Washington city. The Baltimore and Ohio railroad is completed over 80 miles to Harper's Ferry, and is designed to be continued to Wheeling, on the Ohio. It already brings much trade into Baltimore and when completed will form the most direct communication which exists between the Atlantic coast and the Mississippi valley. The Baltimore and Susquehanna railroad extends to York in Pennsylvania, and connects with a chain of railroads to Philadelphia and Baltimore. There are lines of steam packets to Philadelphia and to Norfolk, and other packets to New York and to various parts of the Atlantic coast.

There were in 1840, 9 banks, besides savings institutions, with an aggregate cap. of $2,500,000.

The University of Maryland was incorporated in 1812, and the Baltimore College has since been merged in it. It has an academical and scientific, a medical and a law department. The medical department has 6 professors and 65 students. St. Mary's College is a flourishing Catholic institution; has 25 instructors and 73 students, and 12,000 volumes in its libraries. The Maryland Institute has for its object the diffusion of scientific and mechanical knowledge, by means of lectures and otherwise. It has a fine chemical laboratory, and a complete philosophical apparatus. The Maryland Academy of Science and Literature, located in the Athenaeum buildings, which were erected for scientific purposes, has collections in the several departments of natural history, plaster casts, &c. Other institutions are Aabury College, and several free schools, founded by donations from benevolent individuals. The City Library, the Apprentices Library, and the Exchange Reading Room are valuable institutions.

There is a number of public schools, some of which have fine buildings, and are well provided with all the means of instruction.

There are in the city 43 churches, of which the Episcopalians have 5, the Roman Catholics have 6, one of which is a splendid cathedral, the Presbyterians have 3, the Scotch Presbyterians 2, the Baptists 4, the Methodists have 3, and there are various others.

There are various benevolent institutions, among which are the hospital, the building of which cost $150,000; the almshouse, 375 feet long, with spacious grounds; several dispensaries and several orphan asylums, and some others. There are 2 theatres, a circus, a museum, with some other places of amusement.

Baltimore was first laid out as a town in 1729, and in 1765, it contained but 50 houses. It received a charter as a city in 1797. Few towns in the United States have risen more rapidly; and its growth is of a substantial and permanent character.

BALTIMORE, p-v., Liberty t., Fairfield co., O., 32 s. w. Columbus, 378 W. It is on high ground, on both sides of the Ohio canal. It has 3 stores and 2 warehouses, 1 large flouring m., 2 tanneries, 1 woollen factory, over 100 dwellings, and more than 500 inhabitants. It has a printing office, at which a weekly paper is issued.

BALTIMORE, t., Windsor co., Vt., 65 s. Montpelier. Organized in 1794. The surface is stony, and the soil warm. Hawk Mountain divides it from Cavendish, to which it originally belonged. It has 1 sch. 40 scholars. Pop. 155.

BALTIMORE, Hundred, Sussex co., Del. It has 7 stores, cap. 6,400; 2 grist m., 3 saw m., 6 sch. 185 scholars. Pop. 2,241.

BALTIMORE, p-v., Warren co., Ia., 77 n. w. Indianapolis, 648 W. Situated on the w. side of the Wabash r.

BANGOR, city and p-t., the capital of Penobscot co., Me. It is situated at the head of the navigation on the w. side of Penobscot river, 60 miles from the ocean. It is in 44° 47' 50" n. lat., and 68° 47' w. lon. 68 e. n. e. Augusta, 120 n. e. by e. Portland, 230 n. e. Boston, Mass., 663 W. Pop. 1790, 169; 1800, 277; 1810, 850; 1820, 1,221; 1830, 2,868; 1840, 8,627. Kenduskeag, a stream 190 yards wide at its mouth, divides the city into 3 parts, which are connected by bridges. This stream has falls about 1 mile from the city, which afford many mill seats. Just above the city, is a bridge across the Penobscot r., 1,320 feet long, connecting it with Orrington, which cost $50,000. The harbor, which is at and below the mouth of the Kenduskeag, is spacious; the tide here rises 17 feet, and is of itself sufficient to float vessels of a large class.

The principal article of trade is lumber, which comes down the river in immense quantities. 1,200 vessels, of over 100 tons burden each, are employed, in the season of navigation, in the lumber trade, besides a large number of vessels engaged in the coasting and foreign trade. It has an extensive back country, in which there is much good land. The city occupies a pleasant and commanding situation, affording a fine view of the river and surrounding country. The buildings, both public and private, are not only neat, but many of them elegant. Steamboats regularly ply between this place and Portland, and Boston, when the river is open, which is about eight months in the year. Bangor has 7 churches, 1 Congregational, 1 Episcopal, 1 Baptist, 1 Methodist, 1 Lutheran, 1 Universalist, and 1 Roman Catholic. It was incorporated as a town in 1791; as a city, in 1834. The Bangor Theological Seminary, originally called the "Maine Charity School," and first located at Hampden, 6 ms. s., was opened in 1816. It is designed to give a classical and theological education for the ministry, in a shorter time than is ordinarily employed in a collegiate and theological course, and is under the direction of the Congregationalists. It has 3 professors, 43 students, 139 alumni, and 7,000 vols. in its libraries. 11 commercial and commission houses in foreign trade, cap. $98,500; 134 ret. stores, cap. $318,500; value of lumber produced $305,500; 1 tannery, 2 grist m., 42 saw m., 3 printing offices, 1 daily, 2 weekly newspapers. BARNSTABLE, county, Mass., includes the whole of Cape Cod, in the E. part of the state. The cape is 65 ms. long, and has a medium breadth of 5 ms. A greater portion of the cape is sandy and dry, and incapable of furnishing the necessary subsistence to the inhabitants, who depend chiefly upon the cod, mackerel, and other fisheries. Salt is extensively made from sea water, evaporated by the heat of the sun. Most of the male inhabitants are sailors; and the dangers of the sea are evinced by the great number of widows found in the population. There are 13 towns in the county. Capital, Barnstable. There were in 1840, neat cattle 6,797, sheep 6,207, swine 4,153; wheat 3,107 bush. produced, rye 13,256, Ind. corn 59,554, oats 10,281, potatoes 75,759, domestic salt 314,326; 186 stores, cap. $303,925; cap. in fisheries $739,455; 3 fulling m., 1 woollen fac., 9 tanneries, 1 glass fac., 1 pottery, 1 ropewalk, 61 grist m., 1 saw m., 3 printing offices, 2 weekly newspapers. BELLOWS' FALLS, p-v., Rockingham t., Windham co., Vt., 98 s. by e. Montpelier, 445 W. It is a pleasant village, in a romantic situation. The falls in the Connecticut here, are a curiosity. In the midst of the channel worn in the rocks, a huge rock remains, on each side of which is a passage for the water. As the e. side, however, is more elevated than the w. side, the water, excepting when the river is high, passes wholly on the w. side. The river above, which is about 350 feet wide, is here compressed into a channel 16 feet wide, and descends by successive pitches, 44 feet in the course of half a mile. A canal has been cut in the rock, around these falls, three quarters of a mile long, with 9 locks on the w. side, through which boats and small steamboats pass. A bridge passes over the river here, supported in the middle by the rock, built in 1785, 365 feet long, the view from which is wildly picturesque.

BOEWICK'S MILLS, p.o., Richmond co., N. C., 122 s. w. by w. Raleigh, 396 W.

Boston, city, the capital of Massachusetts, in Suffolk county, is principally situated on a peninsula, 3 miles long and 1 broad, at the western extremity of Massachusetts Bay. It lies in 42° 21' 23" n. lat. and 71° 4' 9" w. lon. from Greenwich, and 5° 59' e. lon. from Washington. It is 115 s. s. w. from Portland, Me.; 63 s. s. e. Concord, N. H.; 153 e. by s. Albany; 40 n. n. e. Providence, R. I.; 97 e. n. e. Hartford, Ct.; 207 n. e. by e. New York; 440 n. e. from W. The population in 1790 was 18,038; in 1800, 24,937; in 1810, 33,250; in 1820, 43,293; in 1830, 61,391; in 1840, 93,363. Employed in commerce 2,040; in manufactures and trades, 5,333; in navigating the ocean, 10,813; do. canals and rivers, 19; learned professions and engineers, 536.

Boston consists of three parts, Old Boston, on the peninsula; South Boston, formerly a part of Dorchester, but united to Boston in 1804; and East Boston, formerly Noddle's Island. The only original communication of the peninsula with the main land was denominated the "Neck," a little over a mile in length, which connected it with Roxbury. By the fortification of this neck, at the commencement of the revolutionary war, the British were able to control the intercourse between Boston and the surrounding country. But by a number of bridges a communication is now opened in various directions. Charles River bridge, 1,503 feet long, connects Boston to Charlestown; West Boston bridge, 2,758 feet, with a causeway 3,432 feet, leads to Cambridge; South Boston bridge, 1,550 feet, leads from the "Neck" to S. Boston; Canal Bridge, 2,796 feet, leads to E. Cambridge, from the middle of which an arm extends to States Prison Point, in Charlestown; Boston Free Bridge, 1,828 feet, connects Boston with S. Boston; Warren Bridge, 1,390 feet, leads to Charlestown. Besides these, the Western Avenue, a mile and a half long, leads to Brooklyn, and constitutes a tide-dam, enclosing a pond of 600 acres, which, by a partition, makes an avenue from the main dam to Roxbury, and forms a full and receiving basin; so that the flowing of the tide creates a great water power, at all times available.

The peninsula of Boston had originally an uneven surface; and the necessity of the case, and the good taste of the inhabitants, have extensively prevented the attempt to level these inequalities of surface; and from various points of view, the city presents a picturesque appearance. The streets, however, were originally laid out upon no systematic plan; and accommodated to the convenience of the ground, they are often crooked and narrow; though modern improvements have greatly remedied these inconveniences. The Common, originally a town pasture, has escaped a private appropriation, and is one of the finest public grounds in any city of the United States. The numerous eminences, rising from 50 to 110 feet above the level of the sea, furnish many admirable sites for buildings. Some of the public buildings are commanding, but are exceeded by some in other principal cities; but many of the private residences are unsurpassed in elegance and taste by those of any other city of the Union.

South Boston extends about 2 miles along the s. side of the harbor. It contains about 600 acres, regularly laid out into streets and squares, with a diversified surface. About in the centre of this tract are the "Dorchester Heights," 130 feet high, famous in the Revolutionary war, as the site of a fortification which compelled the British to abandon the harbor.

East Boston is on an island, containing about 660 acres of land, and a large body of flats. Its connection with Old Boston is by a steam ferry, which starts every five minutes from each side. It is connected to Chelsea on the main land by a bridge of 600 feet; and the Eastern railroad commences here. This portion of the city has wholly grown up since 1833. The surface is agreeably diversified. A wharf 1,000 feet long is devoted to the use of the Liverpool steamships.

These several parts of Boston, with the town of Chelsea, constitute the county of Suffolk.

The harbor of Boston is one of the best in the United States, being spacious, safe, and easily and well defended. The whole passage to it is not more than four miles in width, with several islands obstructing it, so that the main entrance will scarcely admit two vessels to pass abreast; while within, 500 vessels may ride at anchor, with a good depth of water. The outer harbor has about 40 small islands, about 15 of which afford excellent pasture.

The wharves of Boston are extensive and convenient, and some of them are very long. Long wharf, at the termination of State-street, is 1,650 feet long; and Central wharf is 1,940 feet.

Among the public buildings, the State House is the principal. It was built in 1798, and has a fine location on Beacon Hill, 110 feet above the level of the sea, and fronting the spacious common. It is 173 feet long and 61 wide, built of brick, but painted to imitate stone; and has a fine dome 52 feet in diameter, and a cupola 230 feet above the level of the harbor, from which the view is probably the finest in the United States, and scarcely surpassed in the world. From this grand elevation, the spectator looks down upon the city as upon a map; before him stretches the extensive harbor and bay on the e., sprinkled over with islands; and in other directions, numerous beautiful villages, and a highly cultivated country, with many elegant country seats, are visible. Faneuil Hall Market is built of granite, 536 feet long, 50 feet wide, and two stories high; and is the most elegant market-house in the U. States. Faneuil Hall is in Dock Square, 100 feet long by 80 feet wide, 3 stories high, and is celebrated as the spot where the revolutionary orators roused the people to resist British oppression. The hall is 76 feet square, with deep galleries on three sides. The City Hall or Old State House, is another venerable building of revolutionary memory, and is used for public offices. The Massachusetts Hospital, in the western part of the city, is a beautiful granite building, 168 feet long and 54 feet wide, with an open ground of 4 acres around it, on the bank of Charles river. The Custom House, near the head of Central wharf, is a splendid granite building of Grecian architecture. The houses of Industry, Correction, and Reformation, are valuable establishments, situated in South Boston. Trinity church, and St. Paul's church, are considered fine specimens of architecture; and Park-street church has a lofty and beautiful steeple. The Tremont House is one of the finest hotels in the United States.

Among the public places, the Common is by far the most distinguished. It occupies the southern declivity of Beacon Hill, and contains nearly 50 acres of ground, surrounded by a wall, shaded by trees. The whole is enclosed by an iron fence about 1 mile in length, on the outside of which is a broad street. A Botanical Garden of 25 acres is on the western side of the Common.

Boston, in point of commerce, is the second place in the Union. Her wealth and enterprise have long been actively employed in foreign commerce, to which her fine harbor has materially contributed. Several large steamships form an important packet line between this city and Great Britain, stopping at Halifax. This line has generally performed its trips in the short space of 12½ days. Lines of packets exist to every port of importance throughout the U. States, making about fifty in the whole. And by means of the Middlesex canal, which extends to the Merrimac, it has a notable communication to Concord, N. H.; and recently a railroad communication has been completed to Albany, which will enable it to share in the vast trade of the west. The capitalists of Boston are large proprietors in the manufacturing establishments at Waltham and at Lowell.

The tonnage of Boston in 1840 was 230,243 tons. The imports are about $16,000,000; and the exports about $10,000,000. There were in 1840, 142 commercial houses and 89 commission houses engaged in foreign trade, with a capital of $1,676,000; 572 retail stores, with a capital of $4,184,280; 31 lumber yards, with a capital of $371,010; cap. in fisheries $25,000; machinery manufactured to the amount of $135,900; precious metals $26,650; various metals $284,400; 6 furnaces, cap. $130,000; 17 distilleries and 2 breweries, with a cap. of $320,000; paints, drugs, &c., cap. $20,000; 3 glass fac., cap. $37,000; 2 sugar refineries, 3 rope walks, cap. $101,500; 1 grist m., cap. $50,000; furniture to the amount of $329,000. There were built 217 brick and stone, and 148 wooden houses, to the value of $1,061,100; 24 printing offices, 28 binderies, 7 daily, 11 weekly, and 7 semi-weekly newspapers, and 7 periodicals, employed 437 persons, with a cap. of $236,450. Total amount of cap. in manufac. $2,770,250. There were 15 acad., or gram. sch., with 2,629 students, 137 com. and primary sch. with 14,003 scholars.

The are 25 banks, with an aggregate capital of $17,300,000, and 23 insurance companies, with a capital of $6,600,000.

Boston has long been celebrated for the excellence of its schools. About a quarter part of the inhabitants are kept at school throughout the year, at an expense of $200,000. In addition to numerous private schools, the public free schools are a Latin grammar school; a high school, in which the mathematics and higher branches of learning are taught; 10 grammar and writing schools; 75 primary schools, and one African school.

The Medical Branch of Harvard University has its seat in Boston, where its professors reside. It was founded in 1782, has 6 professors and 88 students, and a library of over 5,000 volumes. There is a highly respectable institution for the blind, which has a handsome edifice. The Boston Athenæum has two large buildings, one containing a library of about 30,000 volumes, the other a picture gallery, and a hall for public lectures, and other rooms for scientific purposes. This city has about 100 literary, religious, and charitable societies. Among the literary societies of a high order are the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, which has published four volumes of transactions; the Massachusetts Historical Society, which has published 22 volumes of collections; and the Boston Natural History Society, which has a fine cabinet. Among the religious and charitable societies, are the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, which has an agency, and holds its anniversaries in the city of New York; the Baptist Board of Foreign Missions; the American Education Society; the American Unitarian Association; the American Peace Society; the Seamen's Friend Society; the Massachusetts Bible Society; the Prison Discipline Society; and various others.

There are (1842) 30 newspapers published in Boston, 8 of which are daily. Besides these, there is a number of Magazines and Reviews, the most important of which is the North American Review, which has long had a high reputation, not only in the United States, but in Europe.

There are 75 churches, of which 15 are Unitarians, 13 Congregationalists; 8 Episcopalians; 11 Baptists; 9 Methodists; 4 Universalists; 4 Roman Catholics; 3 Freewill Baptists; 2 African, one of which is Baptist, and the other Methodist. There are also some New Jerusalem, German Protestants, and Friends, and a few others.

There are two theatres in Boston, the Tremont and the National Theatre.

This city continued a town, and was governed by a body of elect men, according to the common custom of the towns of New England, until 1821. Before this, the people could not be brought to consent to adopt a city government. But the vote was at length carried, and the city has since been governed by a mayor, 8 aldermen, and a common council of 48 members. Besides these, each ward has 1 warden, 1 overseer of the poor, 1 clerk, 5 inspectors, and 2 school committee men.

Boston was founded in August, 1630. The first church was built in 1632. The American revolution had its commencement in Boston. The British army in 1775, to the number of 10,000, had possession of the place. From this place the troops went out to open the war at Lexington, and to engage in the hard-fought battle of Bunker Hill. They were compelled at length, by the American troops, entrenched on Dorchester Heights, to withdraw from the town and harbor, in March, 1776, whence they proceeded to New York.

No portion of the United States engaged more actively in the cause of American freedom than the inhabitants of Boston, or contributed more largely towards its accomplishment. John Hancock, who was first president of the American Congress, and first set his bold hand to the Declaration of Independence, was a citizen of Boston; as were also several other of the leaders of the revolution. It has, also, the honor of being the birth-place of Benjamin Franklin, who was born here Jan. 17th, 1706.

BROOKLYN, city, p-t., and capital of Kings co., N. Y., 146 s. Albany, 226 W. Situated on the w. end of Long Island, opposite the lower part of the city of New York. Population, 1810, 4,402; 1820, 7,175; 1830, 15,396; 1840, 36,233. Employed in commerce, 1,673; in manufactures and trades, 4,666; navigating the ocean, 978; do. canals and rivers, 302; learned professions and engineers, 307. It is the second place in population in the state, and the seventh in the United States. It is separated from New York by an arm of the ocean, three fourths of a mile wide, generally denominated the East River, which connects the Bay of New York with Long Island Sound. The ground on which the city is built was originally quite uneven, and though much has been done by grading, to destroy its unevenness of surface, yet, happily, nature has presented too great obstacles to be overcome, and many of the natural beauties of its situation remain, to a considerable extent, unimpaired. The vicinity of the city of New York presents no finer situations than are to be found on the high grounds of Brooklyn. The city is regularly laid out. The streets, with the exception of Fulton-street, are generally straight, 60 feet wide, and cross each other at right angles. Some of the streets have a greater width. Fulton-st., the principal thoroughfare, though crooked, has been widened to an ample width; the old houses with which it was formerly lined near the ferry, have been replaced by rows of lofty brick buildings, and present an entrance to the city quite as imposing as any single entrance to the city of New York. Brooklyn is one of the finest built cities, of its extent, in the United States. Its beautiful situation, good air, and excellent water, have made it a favorite place of residence to many persons who do business in New York, as it is nearer to the centre of business in that city, than residences in the upper parts of the city of New York; and have given it a most rapid growth. The increase of population from 1830 to 1840 was 20,917. Brooklyn is connected with New York by 4 steam ferries, on each of which several commodious boats continually run. The ferry from Fulton-street in Brooklyn, to Fulton-street in New York, is 731 yards wide; that from Main-street, Brooklyn, to Catharine-street, New York, is 736 yards; the Jackson-street, or Navy Yard ferry, is 707 yards; the South ferry, from Atlantic-street, Brooklyn, to Whitehall, New York, is about 1,300 yards wide. The time of crossing is generally from 4 to 5 minutes. The city limits have the same extent as the former town of Brooklyn, having an irregular shape, 6 miles long, and 4 broad, at its greatest breadth. This large territory has been laid out into blocks and streets, and the corner posts fixed by commissioners, appointed by the Legislature; but the thickly settled parts are confined to a small part of this territory. Brooklyn was chartered as a city in 1834. It is divided into 9 wards, and is governed by a Mayor and Common Council. A new city hall, projected a number of years since, on a magnificent plan, to be built of white marble, but badly located, has never progressed beyond the basement story, and is altogether beyond the present wants of the city. The Common Council and city offices are at present well accommodated at the City Buildings, (formerly Apprentices' Library,) purchased for the purpose, in the centre of business. The jail is a handsome building of freestone, and the county clerk's office is a fire-proof brick edifice. There are in the city 30 churches—7 Presbyterian, 7 Episcopal, 3 Dutch Reformed, 2 Baptist, 7 Methodist, 2 Roman Catholic, 1 Unitarian, and 1 Friends'. There are 3 banks in Brooklyn, with an aggregate capital of $1,000,000, besides a Savings bank. There are 3 insurance companies, with a total capital of $452,000. The Lyceum in Washington-street, is a fine granite building, with a spacious lecture room. The city library of 3,000 volumes, has a fine reading room, and is open daily. The Hamilton Literary Association, composed of young men, is a flourishing institution, and supports, annually, an able course of lectures, which are numerously attended.

There were in 1840, 5 for commercial houses, cap. $109,500; 154 retail stores, cap. $353,000; several lumber yards, cap. $40,000; products of the dairy $197,000, machinery $182,000, hats and caps $102,000, 1 tannery, manufacture of leather $162,600, 5 distilleries, 1 brewery, cap. $257,000; paints, drugs, &c., cap. $322,000; 1 glass house, employing 100 persons, capital $15,000; 4 rope walks, cap. $65,000; 3 printing offices, 1 daily, 2 weekly, 1 semi-weekly newspapers. Capital in manufac. $1,386,500. 19 acad. 1,121 students, 33 schools, 4,683 scholars.

The United States' Navy Yard, situated on Wallabout Bay, covers 40 acres of ground, enclosed by a brick wall on the land side, and contains 2 large ship houses, 7 extensive timber sheds built of brick, and several workshops, offices for the officers, and extensive storehouses. A dry dock will soon be constructed at this place. Connected with the Navy Yard, is the United States Naval Lyceum, a flourishing institution, which has a valuable library and museum. The Naval Hospital occupies a commanding eminence, half a mile E. of the Navy Yard, and has a large building surrounded by 33 acres of cultivated ground, enclosed by a brick wall. The Greenwood Cemetery is in the S. part of Brooklyn, has 200 acres of land, of a variety of surface, and in its higher parts, commands an extensive and beautiful view of the harbor and city of New York, of the surrounding country, and of the Atlantic ocean. It is designed to embellish the grounds, and to make it an ornament to the city. The "Atlantic Dock Company" are constructing a large basin, within Red Hook Point, which will contain 424 acres, and the outside pier of which will extend 3,000 feet, fronting on Buttermilk channel, and the depth of which will accommodate the largest ships; the whole estimated to cost $624,527. This additional wharf-room is rendered necessary, by the crowded state of the docks at New York. At the foot of Brooklyn Heights, the finest water is obtained from wells and reservoirs for the supply of the shipping of New York harbor.

In August, 1776, this part of Long Island became the seat of the Revolutionary war, and the remains of the fortifications then thrown up, are still to be seen in Brooklyn; though many of them have been obliterated in the regulation of streets. At the close of the Revolutionary war, there were but 56 houses in the place. Near the Navy Yard at the Wallabout, are interred the remains of 11,000 Americans, who perished in the British prison ships, moored in the bay, during the Revolutionary war.

BUFFALO, city and p.-t., port of entry, and capital of Erie county, N. Y., lies on the outlet of Lake Erie, at the head of Niagara river, and on Buffalo creek, which constitutes its harbor, 288 w. Albany, 363 by the Erie canal; 73 w. Rochester, 22 s. e. Niagara Falls, 103 e. Cleveland, O.,

381 W. Pop. 1810, 1,508; 1820, 2,095; 1830, 8,653; 1840, 18,213. Employed in commerce, 771; in manufactures and trades, 1,851; in navigating the ocean, 71; canals, lakes, and rivers, 347; learned professions and engineers, 211; 1 academy with 64 students; 28 common and primary schools, with 2,676 scholars. The land rises, by a very gentle ascent, 2 miles from the water to an extended plain, and from the elevated parts of the city are fine views of the lake, of Niagara river, of the Erie canal, and the Canada shore. The city has broad and regular streets. Main-street is 2 miles long, and 180 feet wide, and is splendidly built with large stores, dwellings, and hotels, and presents a very imposing appearance; and other parts of the city are built with neatness and taste. There are 3 public squares, which add much to the salubrity and beauty of the city.

The public buildings of the city are a court house, jail, and county clerk's office, 2 markets, in the second story of one of which are the city offices; 17 churches, of which the Presbyterians have 3, the Episcopalians 2, the Baptists 1, the German Protestants 3, the Methodists 1, the Roman Catholics 2, the Unitarians 1, the Universalists 1; there are also 1 Bethel and 2 African churches. There are an orphan asylum, 2 banking houses, an insurance company, a theatre, and several hotels, of which the American is one of the finest in the country. Among the useful institutions of the city, the Young Men's Association, who have a choice library of 3,500 volumes, and the public schools, under the control of the common council, for the education of the whole population, without charge for tuition, deserve to be mentioned. Buffalo stands as a great gate between the East and the West, through which much of their commerce must pass; and it is a great depot for the western country.

The harbor of Buffalo is spacious and safe, having 12 or 14 feet of water a mile from its entrance into the lake; but it originally had a bar across its mouth. To obviate this, and the better to protect the harbor, a pier has been constructed of wood and stone, by the United States, extending 1,500 feet from the s. side of the mouth of the creek, upon the end of which a light-house is erected, 20 feet in diameter at its base, and 40 feet high. This pier operates as a breakwater, and, by confining the creek, has served to clear its channel, so that vessels drawing 8 feet of water pass freely. But the greatest difficulty of the harbor of Buffalo arises from the accumulation of ice, on the breaking up of the lake, driven into it by the strong westerly winds, so that it often remains obstructed after the lake is clear.

There are 50 or 60 steamboats, and 300 schooners and other craft which navigate Lake Erie and the connected lakes, engaged in the commerce between Buffalo and the west. The tonnage in 1840, was 4,916. The arrivals of steamboats and other vessels in 1840, were, 4,061; clearances, 4,851. The amount of property sent e. on the Erie canal from Buffalo, at the same date, was 177,607 tons. The amount of goods, including domestic manufactures, salt, &c., received by the canal, and shipped to the west, was 93,733 tons. Tolls received amounted to $376,417. Buffalo is connected with Black Rock, and with Niagara Falls, by railroads. There were in 1840, 23 for. commission houses, cap. $94,000; 231 ret. stores, cap. $736,335; 1 woollen fac., 3 tanneries, 2 distilleries, 1 pottery, 4 flouring m., 1 grist m., 2 saw m., 2 oil m., 10 printing offices, 5 daily, 4 weekly, 1 semi-weekly newspapers, and 6 periodicals. Cap. in mannfac. $630,300. It was originally laid out by the Holland Land Company, in 1801. It was entirely burned by the British in 1814, excepting 2 buildings. It then contained 200 dwellings. The inhabitants, however, received $80,000 from Congress as a compensation for their losses. The commencement of the rapid growth and great importance of this place may be dated from the opening of the Erie canal, though as the eastern limit of lake navigation it was gradually rising before that event.

BURLINGTON, p.-t., port of entry, and capital of Chittenden co., Vt., 40 w. n. w. Montpelier, 80 s. e. Montreal, L. C., 23 s. e. Plattsburg, 75 n. Whitehall, 513 W. Situated in 44° 27' n. lat. and 73° 10' w. lon. Pop. 1830, 3,525; 1840, 4,371. This beautiful village is situated on a bay which, in the form of a regular curve, sets up a little on the e. side of Lake Champlain. Toward the s. part of the village, the shore is low, put toward the n. it rises to a high bluff, on the level top of which, the barracks for the U. S. soldiers were situated during the last war, and on the brow of which, was a powerful battery. From the s. part of the village, the ground rises, by a gradual slope, for the distance of a mile, to its western boundary, which is 250 feet above the level of the lake. The streets extend from e. to w. to the lake shore, and are crossed by others at right angles, dividing the whole into regular squares. Near the centre of the village is a handsome public square, on which the court house is situated. The village contains many elegant houses, generally surrounded by shrubbery, with fine gardens in the rear; and many large and commodious stores and warehouses. It has a rich and extensive back country, and is the largest and most commercial place in the state. A steamboat from Whitehall to St. Johns, stops daily at this place. There are 3 substantial wharves, and on Juniper Island, which contains about 11 acres of ground, and 4 miles from the shore, is a light-house. The U. S. has also erected a break-water here, as a protection against westerly winds. The lake is here 10 miles across, with several islands in view; and a more beautiful sheet of water cannot well be conceived. The view from the cupola of the college, as respects natural scenery, is second to none in the United States. In addition to the beautiful village, the meanderings of Onion river, the broad water view of the lake with its islands, its vessels, and its steamboats; it has in front, on the opposite shore of the lake, in the state of New York, the grand Adirondack mountains, nearly or quite as high as the White mountains; and on the e., in full view, the Green mountains, with their two highest peaks, Camel's Rump, and Mansfield mountain. This mountain scenery elevates the beautiful into the sublime, and contributes to form an assemblage of objects which never becomes tame by familiarity.

The buildings of the University of Vermont, 4 in number, are on high ground at the w. side of the village. This institution was founded in 1791, and received as an endowment from the state about 30,000 acres of land, located in the various towns granted by the state of Vermont. It has a President and 5 professors, or other instructors, 241 alumni, 110 students, and 9,300 volumes in its libraries. The commencement is on the first Wednesday in August. It has a medical department attached to it, and is flourishing.

Here is a court house, a jail, 3 banking houses, 6 churches, for Congregationalists, Episcopalians, Unitarians, Methodists, and Roman Catholics, some of which are elegant buildings, an academy and a female seminary, which are fine edifices.

About a mile and a half n. e. of the court house, is a fine manufacturing village, on the falls of Onion r., denominated Winoski city. Beside rapids, the river here has a perpendicular fall of about 90 feet, and affords a great water power. This village is situated partly in Burlington, and partly in Colchester, and the parts are connected by a fine covered bridge across Onion r. The mills and manufactories of this place are already considerable.

The t. contains some good land, and some less fertile. The first had a natural growth of hard wood, and the latter of pine. The first permanent settlement was made in 1783. It has 49 stores, cap. $352,830; 1 tannery, 1 rope fac., 1 brewery, 1 glass fac., 1 pottery, 1 grist m., 3 saw m., 3 printing offices, 3 weekly newspapers. Cap. in manufac. $34,408. 1 acad. 104 students, 17 sch. 835 scholars.

BURLINGTON, p-t, Middlesex co., Mass. 13 n. w. by n. Boston, 453 W. Watered by a branch of Shawshon r. It has a light soil. It contains 2 stores, cap. $7,000; 1 grist m., 1 saw m. Cap. in manufac. $5,100. 4 sch. 180 scholars. Pop. 510.

CAMBRIDGE, p.-t., semi-capital of Middlesex co., Ms., 3 n. w. Boston, 437 W. In 43° 23' n. lat., and 74° 40' 30" w. lon. This is one of the early towns in New England, having been first settled in 1631, under the name of Newtown. It is the seat of Harvard University, formerly called Harvard College, the oldest college in the United States, having been founded in 1639, which was less than 20 years after the first landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth. Cambridge contains a court house and jail, state arsenal, and 5 churches—2 Unitarian, 1 Episcopal, 1 Baptist, and 1 Universalist. The courts are alternately held here and at Concord. The court house and jail are at E. Cambridge, at Lechmere's Point, a village at the s. e. extremity of the town, which is connected with Boston and Charlestown by bridges. Here is a large glass manufactory.

Harvard University has a president and 27 professors, or other instructors; has had 5,546 alumni, of whom 1,406 have been ministers of the gospel; has 246 classical students, and 53,000 volumes in its libraries. The commencement is on the 4th Wednesday in August. The philosophical and chemical apparatus are very complete, as well as its cabinet of minerals. It has an excellent anatomical museum and a botanical garden, of eight acres, richly stored with an extensive collection of trees, shrubs, and plants, both native and foreign. The University buildings are extensive and commodious, situated on a beautiful plain, where is a neat village. The irregularity in the position of the edifices, renders them less imposing in their appearance than they otherwise would be, but not less adapted to their purposes. They are University Hall, an elegant granite building, 140 by 50 feet, and 42 feet high, containing the chapel, dining hall, and lecture rooms; Harvard Hall, containing the library, philosophical apparatus, museum, &c.; 4 spacious brick edifices, containing rooms for students, and several other buildings for the accommodation of the president, professors, and students; Divinity Hall, for the accommodation of the theological students; and the Medical College, in Boston, a Law School, a Theological Seminary, and a Medical School, are attached to the institution, the last of which is located in Boston. The Law School has 115, the Theological 26, and the Medical 86 students. The whole number of students attached to the institution, including resident graduates, is 478. This institution is more richly endowed than any other similar institution in the United States. There are in the town 1 commercial and 1 commission house, cap. $40,000; 27 stores, cap. $93,950; 8 lumber yards, capital $85,000; 3 rope fac., 2 printing offices, 1 bindery, 5 periodicals, 1 university, 341 students, 2 acad. 45 students, 16 sch. 2,455 scholars. Pop. 8,409.

mills, and a cotton fac. with 1,200 sp., 24 looms, and which employs 60 hands. The soil around Camden is fertile, yielding good crops of cotton and corn, but liable to be overflowed. In a good season, peaches and apples are sold at from 12½ to 25 cents a bushel, and fine melons equally cheap. Two celebrated battles were fought here during the revolution, one August 16th, 1780, between Gen. Gates and Lord Cornwallis, and another, April 23d, 1781, between Gen. Greene and Lord Rawdon. At the end of De Kalb-street, opposite the Presbyterian church, is a fine, white marble monument, erected to the memory of Baron De Kalb, of revolutionary celebrity, the corner-stone of which was laid by the venerable Lafayette, in 1825. Two miles w. of Camden is a large Indian mound, supposed to mark the site of an ancient town of the Catawbas.

Pine Orchard, a favorite summer resort, is situated on the brow of the Catskill mountains, in the s. e. part of the town, where is a large and commodious hotel, called the "Mountain House," elevated 2,212 feet above the Hudson r., and commanding a very extensive and beautiful view of the Hudson r., and the country to the e., extending to the Green mountain range, in Massachusetts and Vermont. Nowhere can more wild and romantic scenery be found than at this spot. A little to the w. of the hotel are 2 ponds, the outlets of which unite, and proceed by falls and rapids, in a deep ravine, to the plain below. The first fall is 180 feet perpendicular, and within a short distance is a second fall of about 80 feet. By a circuitous path the traveller can pass down and go under the rock, and behind the water of the first fall, which presents a singular and interesting view. The spectator in this mountain eyrie often sees thunder storms discharging themselves on the valley beneath him, while he enjoys a clear sky. A road is constructed from the steamboat landing on the Hudson, on which stages constantly run for the transportation of travellers, to and from the Mountain House, which is 12 ms. distant from Catskill village.

CATSKILL MOUNTAINS, N. Y., rise in Ulster co., and extending through Green and Schoharie counties, bend, in crescent form, toward the Mohawk r. Round Top, the highest peak, measured by the barometer, is 3,904 feet above tide water, and a second peak is 3,718 feet. On the e. front the mountain is precipitous; but on the w. side, the descent is comparatively gentle. In these mountains the bear, the wolf, the wildcat, and the deer, are still to be found.

CATTARAUGUS, county, N. Y., situated in the w. part of the state, contains 1,232 sq. ms. The surface is elevated. Cattaraugus cr. and its tributaries flow n. into Lake Erie, while the Alleghany r. with its tributaries, in the s. part, flows toward the Gulf of Mexico. The soil is fertile, and adapted to grazing. Cattle and lumber are extensively exported. Peat, marl, bog iron ore, manganese and sulphur, and saline springs are found. The Genesee Valley canal extends from Rochester to Olean, in this county, and the New York and Erie railroad is designed to pass through it. Capital, Ellicottville. There were in 1840, neat cattle 35,566, sheep 66,525, swine 22,533; wheat 127,665 bush. produced, rye 1,112, Ind. corn 81,202, buckwheat 8,377, barley 10,134, oats 254,339, potatoes 452,353, hops 1,050 pounds, sugar 553,235; 59 stores, cap. $214,900; 6 fulling m., 2 woollen fac., 24 tanneries, 1 pottery, 1 distillery, 26 grist m., 135 saw m., 2 printing offices, 2 weekly newspapers. CHAMPLAIN LAKE, lies between the states of New York and Vermont. It extends from Whitehall, N. Y., to the 45° n. lat. 116 miles, and extends about 4 miles further into Canada, making its whole length 120 miles. It is navigated to St. John's, Canada, 20 miles from the line. Its breadth is from half a mile to 10 miles; but including the expanse which contains its large islands, it is 15 ms. wide. Its broadest part, unobstructed by islands, is opposite to Burlington, Vt. Its chief islands are North Hero, South Hero, and La Motte, which, with some smaller islands, and the peninsula of Albury, constitute Grand Isle county, Vermont. This lake was discovered by Samuel Champlain, a French nobleman, in 1609. It was the theatre of many important military operations, in the French, Revolutionary, and late war. The scenery along its shores is highly picturesque, and rendered grand by the lofty mountains, at a little distance from it, on both sides. It forms an important medium of commerce, and is navigated by steamboats, and by many sloops, generally from 80 to 100 tons burden. It receives a number of considerable rivers, the largest of which are from Vermont, its outlet is Sorelle or Richelieu r., by which it discharges its waters into the St. Lawrence. The Champlain canal, 64 miles long, connects it with Hudson r. on the s., and cost $1,079,872. It abounds with fish, among which are salmon, lake shad, pike, and other fish. It is generally frozen entirely over, and is passed on the ice, in winter. The broad lake closes about the first of February, and opens early in March. The narrow parts continue frozen considerably longer.

CHARLESTON, city and seaport of S. Carolina, and capital of a district of the same name, is the largest city in the Atlantic states S. of the Potomac, and the 9th in population in the United States, and is situated on a tongue of land formed by the junction of Ashley and Cooper rivers. It is in 32° 47' N. lat. and 79° 64' W. lon. from Greenwich; and 3° W. lon. from W. It is 124 S. S. E. from Columbia; 118 N. E. from Savannah; 590 S. S. W. from Baltimore; 780 S. S. W. from New York; 540 S. S. W. from W. The population in 1790 was 16,359; in 1800, 18,711; in 1810, 24,711; in 1820, 24,780; in 1830, 30,289; in 1840, 29,261; of which 14,673 were slaves. Employed in commerce 676, in manufactures and trades 1,025, in navigating the ocean 292, learned professions 226. Academies and grammar schools 14, with 861 students; 13 common and primary schools, with 574 scholars, of which 568 were at the public charge. 5 white persons over 20 could neither read nor write.

The bay formed at the junction of Ashley and Cooper rivers is 2 miles wide, and extends S. of E. 7 miles to its entrance into the Atlantic, below

Sullivan's Island. Ashley is 2,100 yards wide opposite the town, and Cooper is 1,400; and both are deep, and navigable for large vessels. A sand bar extends across the mouth of the harbor, but has two entrances, the deepest of which, passing very near Sullivan's Island, has 16 feet of water at low tide. It is defended by fort Moultrie, which, though then comparatively a weak fortress, repulsed a powerful attack of the British fleet, June 28th, 1776, under Sir Peter Parker. It is further defended by Fort Pinkney, on an island 2 miles below the city, and by Fort Johnson 4 miles below. The harbor is open to easterly winds, and storms from that quarter are often troublesome to the shipping at the wharves. The ground on which Charleston is built is raised but about 7 feet above high tide, so that parts of the city have been overflowed, when the wind and tide have combined to raise the waters, though it has not often occurred. The streets, which are from 35 to 70 feet in width, extend from E. to W. from the Cooper to the Ashley r., and are intersected by others at nearly right angles, running from N. to S. Many of the houses are of brick, while others are of wood, many of them painted white, which, with the profusion of foliage by which they are commonly surrounded, gives them a beautiful appearance. The houses are generally elegant, and they are often furnished with piazzas which extend to the roof, and are ornamented with vines. The gardens are adorned with orange, peach, and other trees, and a variety of shrubbery; while the streets are often lined with the Pride of India, and other beautiful trees. Refinement and hospitality characterize the Society of Charleston; the city is considered more healthy during the summer months than the surrounding country, and at that season it is much resorted to by the planters in the vicinity, and by the inhabitants of the West Indies.

Among the public buildings are the city hall, the exchange, a court house, jail, a circular Congregational church, 88 feet in diameter, 2 arsenals, a theatre, 2 college halls, an almshouse, and an orphan asylum. A fire-proof edifice for the security of public documents, has been erected at an expense of $60,000. The orphan asylum accommodates 150 destitute children. The literary and philosophical society has a fine collection of objects in natural history, and the academy of fine arts possesses some valuable paintings. The city library contains about 15,000 volumes.

The neck to the N. of the city is adorned with plantations in a high state of cultivation, and may be regarded as a suburb of the city. Moultrieville, on Sullivan's Island, at the mouth of the harbor, is a small, but pleasant town, and the refreshing breezes from the ocean cause it to be much resorted to from the city during the summer and autumnal months.

The commerce of Charleston is extensive, comprising that of nearly the whole of the state. Its tonnage in 1840, was 29,250.

There were in 1840, 27 for. commercial and 34 commission houses, with a cap. of $3,563,750; 428 retail stores, cap. $3,317,450; 7 lumber yards, cap. $50,000; 3 grist m., 4 saw m., with a total cap. of $334,000; 8 printing offices, 5 binderies, 3 daily, 3 weekly and 2 semi-weekly newspapers, and 4 periodicals, with a cap. of $120,000; 84 brick and stone houses, and 26 wooden, built at the cost of $927,700. Total capital in manufac. $770,500.

There are three lines of packets which ply between this city and New York. One line has 6 ships, one of which sails from each place, every 5 days. Another consists of 8 brigs, one of which sails every 4th day. There is another line consisting of 6 brigs. A canal of 22 ms. in length, connects the harbor with the Santee r. A railroad extends 136 miles to Hamburg, on the Savannah.

The college of Charleston has in its scientific department, 60 students, and a library of 3,000 volumes. There are in the city 20 churches, of which the Episcopalians have 4, the Presbyterians 3, the Methodists 3, the Congregationalists 2, the Roman Catholics 2, and various others. There are 6 newspapers published here, 3 of which are issued daily, 1 semi-weekly, and 2 weekly. The city is divided into 4 wards.

Charleston was first settled in 1690. In 1690 a colony of French refugees, exiled in consequence of the revocation of the edict of Nantz, settled in Carolina, and some of them in Charleston, from whom some of its present respectable inhabitants are descended. At the close of 1779, the city was captured by the British, who had possession of it until the middle of the following May. In 1778, a fire consumed 252 houses, and another in 1796, destroyed about one third of the city, at a loss of $2,500,000. From 1830 to 1840, the population diminished 1,028.

CHARLESTOWN, p-t., and, with Boston, a part of entry, Middlesex co., Mass., 1 n. Boston, 441 W. Situated on a peninsula lying between Charles and Mystic rivers, and connected with Boston by Charles and Warren bridges. There are two other bridges across Mystic river, one of which connects it with Chelsea, and the other with Malden. There is another which connects it with Craigie's bridge, leading to Cambridge. The streets, though not laid out with great regularity, are wide, and ornamented with trees. The public buildings are a state prison, on the most improved model, the Massachusetts insane hospital, called, from a distinguished benefactor, McLean Asylum, an almshouse, town house, and 9 churches—3 Congregationalists, 2 Bap. 1 Meth. 2 Univer. and 1 R. Catholic—a United States Navy Yard, in the s. e. part of the place, with a dry dock built of hewn granite. The Navy Yard covers 60 acres of land, on which are erected a marine hospital, a spacious warehouse, an arsenal, powder magazine, and a house for the superintendent, all of brick; and 2 immense wooden edifices, under which the largest vessels of war are built. Breed's Hill, commonly called Bunker Hill, is immediately in the rear of the place, where a bloody battle was fought at the commencement of the revolution, June 17, 1775, in which the Americans lost, in killed and wounded, 449, and the British, 1,055. To commemorate this important event, a granite obelisk has been erected on the spot, which is 30 feet square at the base, 220 feet high, and 15 feet square at the top, ascended within by a winding stair-case, estimated to cost about \$100,000. The t. has 3 commercial and 8 commission houses, cap. \$125,000; 78 stores, capital \$346,000; 6 lumber yards, capital \$32,000; 5 printing offices, 1 bindery, 1 weekly newspaper, 4 tanneries, 3 distilleries, 1 brewery, 3 potteries, 3 rope walks, 5 grist m., 4 saw m., 1 oil m., 24 sch. 2,202 scholars. CHICAGO, r., Ill., which forms the harbor of Chicago, near the s. end of Lake Michigan, is composed of two branches; the n., which is about 40 miles long, rises near the n. boundary of Illinois, and unites with the s. branch  $\frac{1}{2}$  of a mile from its entrance into the lake. The s. branch is only about 6 miles long, but is sufficiently deep to afford a secure harbor for vessels of any burden, which navigate the lake. The natural portage from the Chicago r. to the Des Plaines r., a head branch of Illinois r., is only 6 ms., and is so low that, at high water, it is often overflowed, so that boats can pass from river to river.

CHICAGO, city, p-v., and capital of Cook co., Ill., 204 n. n. e. Springfield, 717 W. It is beautifully situated on level ground, sufficiently elevated to secure it from ordinary floods, on both sides of a r. of the same name, between the junction of its n. and s. branches and its entrance into Lake Michigan, a distance of  $\frac{1}{2}$  of a mile. It extends along the lake shore for a mile. The r. is here from 50 to 75 yards wide, and from 15 to 25 feet deep. The bar at the mouth has only about 3 feet of water. An artificial harbor has been made by the construction of piers, which extend on each side of the entrance of the river for some distance into the lake, to prevent the accumulation of sand upon the bar. It contains the county buildings, a U. S. land office, 8 churches—3 Presbyterian, 1 Methodist, 1 Baptist, 1 Episcopal, 1 Universalist, 1 Unitarian, and 1 Roman Catholic—an academy, a fire insurance company, and water works. Numerous steamboats and vessels ply between this place and Buffalo, and the various intermediate places on the upper lakes. Back of the city, toward the Des Plaines r., is a fertile prairie, which for the first 3 or 4 miles is elevated and dry. Along the n. branch of the Chicago and the lake shore are extensive bodies of fine timber. White pine lumber is obtained from the regions about Green bay and Grand r., in Michigan, and across the lake from St. Joseph's r. The canal now in progress from this place to the Illinois r. will add to its importance and business. It is 60 feet wide at top, and 6 feet deep, 105 ms. in length, including a feeder of 4 ms., and 5 ms. of river navigation, and is estimated to cost \$3,654,337. The imports of the place amount to over \$3,500,000. It had in 1840, 4 foreign commission houses, with a capital of \$35,300; 97 retail stores, cap. \$400,300; 11 lumber yards, cap. \$38,900; 1 furnace, cap. \$20,000; 1 distillery, 2 flouring m., 3 printing offices, 1 bindery, 2 daily and 2 weekly newspapers, and 1 periodical, 14 brick and stone houses, and 41

CINCINNATI, a city, port of entry, and capital of Hamilton co., O., 116 s. w. Columbus, 492 W. Cincinnati, the most populous city w. of the Alleghany mountains, and the sixth in the United States, is situated on the Ohio r., near the s. w. corner of the state of Ohio, in Hamilton co., 594 ms., by the course of the river, above its junction with the Mississippi. It is in 39° 6' 20" n. lat., and 84° 27' w. long. from Greenwich, and 7° 24' 45" w. from W. It is 116 s. w. from Columbus; 250 Cleveland; 120 Indianapolis; 270 Nashville, Tenn.; 860 New Orleans; 350 St. Louis; 105 Louisville; 518 Baltimore; 298 Pittsburgh; 617 Philadelphia; 492 Washington; 900 from N. York, by Lake Erie, and 600 from Charleston, S. C. In 1793 it contained 500 inhabitants; in 1800, 750; in 1810, 2,540; in 1820, 9,642; in 1830, 24,831; in 1840, 46,338. Besides this, there is estimated to be a floating population of from 2,000 to 3,000. Engaged in commerce, 2,226; in manufactures and trades, 10,866; learned professions, 434. It is built on an elevated plain, on the n. bank of the Ohio, 540 feet above tide water at Albany, and 25 feet below the level of Lake Erie; but low water mark is 432 above tide water, and 133 below the level of Lake Erie. The shore of the Ohio here forms a good landing for boats at all seasons of the year, the principal landing being paved to low water mark, in a substantial manner, and supplied with floating wharves, rendered necessary by the great rise and fall of the river at different times. The descent from the upper part of Cincinnati to low water mark on the Ohio, is 108 feet. The city is near the eastern extremity of a pleasant valley, about 12 miles in circumference, skirted to the n. by a circular ridge of hills, the summits of which are not more than 300 feet above the plain, but of picturesque appearance. The ground on which the city stands consists of two plains, the rear one elevated 50 or 60 feet above the front, though the ascent, by grading, has been extensively reduced to a gradual slope. The view of the city is beautiful from the hills in the rear; but as approached by water, it is neither extensive nor commanding.

Excepting on the margin of the river, it is regularly laid out in streets and alleys, crossing each other at right angles. The streets running e. and w. are denominated, proceeding from the river, First, Second, &c., while those running n. and s. are named after the native trees, as Walnut, Sycamore, &c. Main-street extends from the steam-boat landing on the river directly n. to the northern boundary of the city. 14 streets, 7 in each direction, are 66 feet wide, and 396 feet apart. The central portion of the city is compactly built, with handsome houses and stores; but the extensive plan, in its outer parts, is but partially built up, and the houses are irregularly scattered. Many of the streets are well paved, and extensively shaded by trees. The houses are generally of stone or brick. The climate is changeable, and subject to considerable extremes of heat and cold, but is, on the whole, healthy.

The court house, on Main-street, is 56 by 60 feet, and 120 feet high, to the top of the dome. The edifice of the Franklin and La Fayette banks of Cincinnati has a splendid portico of 8 Doric columns, after the model of the Parthenon at Athens, but is in a confined situation. It is 79 feet long, and 69 feet deep, exclusive of the portico. Several of the churches are fine specimens of architecture, and a number of the hotels are spacious and elegant. There are 4 market houses, a bazaar, a theatre, a college, an Athenæum, a medical college, a mechanics' institute, 2 museums, a lunatic asylum, a high school, and a number of large and commodious houses for public schools. Within the last year 800 buildings have been erected, among which are many large warehouses and stores, and several beautiful churches.

Cincinnati College was founded in 1819 and had, in 1840, 8 instructors, and 84 students. It has academical, medical, and law departments. The Medical College of Ohio has trustees appointed by the legislature every 3 years, and it has 8 professors, and 130 students. The College of Professional Teachers was formed in 1832, and has for its object the improvement of schools in the western country, and holds an annual meeting in October. The Mechanics' Institute is formed for the improvement of mechanics in scientific knowledge, by means of popular lectures and mutual instruction. It has a valuable philosophical apparatus, a respectable library, and a reading-room, much frequented by young men. The Cincinnati Lyceum furnishes an instructive and fashionable place of resort to the citizens, by its popular lectures and debates through the winter season. It has a good library and a reading-room. The Athenæum is a respectable literary institution, under the direction of the Catholics, in which the mathematics, philosophy, and the classics, as well as the modern languages, are taught by competent professors. It has over 70 students, and a large and splendid edifice. The Lane Seminary, at Walnut Hills, 2 miles from the city, has 3 professors, 61 students, and a library of 10,300 volumes. It has a literary as well as theological department. Woodward High School, named after its founder, gives education, in part gratuitously, to a large number of students. It has 4 instructors, and a large and commodious building. There is a great number of respectable private schools, and 20 public schools for males and females, in which there are 2,000 pupils. There are 43 churches in Cincinnati, of which 3 are old school Presbyterian, 4 new school Presbyterian, 2 Scots Presbyterian, 2 Episcopal, 3 Baptist, 7 Methodist, 2 Protestant Methodist, 2 Catholic, 2 Friends, and various others.

Cincinnati is an extensive manufacturing place. Its destitution of water power has been extensively compensated by the employment of steam mills. There were in 1840, 42 foreign commercial and 36 commission houses, with a capital of $5,900,000; 1,035 retail stores, with a capital of $12,877,000; 19 lumber yards, capital $133,000; 245 persons were engaged in internal transportation, who, with 790 butchers, packers, &c., employed a capital of $4,071,930; 14 furnaces, cap. $478,000; value of machinery manufactured, $545,000; hardware, cutlery, &c., $289,000; precious metals, $48,000; various other metals, $713,000; 4 woollen fac., cap. $39,000; 1 cotton fac., cap. $6,000; tobacco manufactures, capital $61,000; 13 tanneries, cap. $156,000; manufactures of leather, as saddlery, &c., cap. $532,000; 2 distilleries, and 6 breweries, with a capital of $152,000; paints, drugs, &c., cap. $26,000; 4 rope walks, cap. $34,000; carriages and wagons, cap. $68,000; 10 flouring m., 8 saw m., 2 oil m., total cap. $367,000; vessels built, value, $403,000; furniture amounted to $459,000; 264 brick and stone, and 74 wooden houses built, cost $1,196,000; 32 printing offices, 13 binderies, produced 3,800 daily newspapers, 33,100 weekly, 1,800 semi-weekly, and 17,300 periodicals, with a capital of $266,000. Total cap. in manufac. $7,469,912. 2 colleges, 80 students, 2 acad. 120 students, 51 sch. 5,445 scholars. There were 5 incorporated and 2 unincorporated banks, with an aggregate capital of nearly $6,000,000.

From many directions, good roads converge to this place, and bring the rich products of the surrounding country to this market. The Miami railroad extends from Cincinnati 85½ miles to Springfield. The Miami canal extends from Cincinnati 178 miles to Defiance, where it joins the Wabash and Erie canal. The internal trade of Cincinnati is thus very extensive. The tonnage of the port in 1840, was 12,052. There are 7 daily papers, which are also issued weekly or tri-weekly; 8 weekly papers, a large number of magazines, issued semi-monthly or monthly, and a number of religious magazines, published monthly.

The municipal government of the city consists of a president, recorder, and 21 councillors—3 for each of the 7 wards into which the city is divided. Cincinnati was founded in 1789, by emigrants from New England and New Jersey, on the site of Fort Washington. It has grown with great rapidity, and now ranks as the sixth place in population in the United States; and, it being the great emporium of the West, it must continue to increase with the growth of the rapidly rising country with which it is connected.

CLEVELAND, city, port of entry, and the capital of Cuyahoga co., O., 146 n. n. e. Columbus, 359 W. Cleveland is the emporium of northern Ohio, and, next to Cincinnati, the most important town in the state, possesses a commanding situation on Lake Erie, at the mouth of the Cuyahoga r., and the northern termination of the Ohio canal, by which it is connected with Ohio r. and is in 41° 31' n. lat., and 81° 46' w. lon. from Greenwich, or 40° 44' w. from W. It is 130 miles n. w. Pittsburgh, 146 n. e. Columbus, 200 by water Buffalo, 130 Detroit, 359 W. The population in 1799 consisted of one family; in 1825, about 500 inhabitants; in 1830, 1,000; in 1834, 4,300; in 1840, 6,071.

Excepting a small portion of it immediately on the Cuyahoga r., the city is situated on a gravelly plain, elevated about 80 feet above the level of the lake, of which it has a very commanding prospect. The common streets have the extraordinary width of 80 feet; and Main-street, which passes through the middle of the place, is 120 feet wide. The streets cross each other at right angles, and there are many expensive and tasteful buildings. The location is dry and healthy, and the view of the meanderings of the Cuyahoga r., and of the steamboats and shipping in the port, and leaving or entering it, and of the numerous vessels on the lake under sail, presents a prospect exceedingly interesting, from the high shore of the lake.

Near the centre of the place is a public square, of 10 acres, divided into four equal parts by intersecting streets, neatly enclosed, and shaded with trees. The court house and the first Presbyterian church front on this square.

The harbor of Cleveland is one of the best on Lake Erie. It is formed by the mouth of the Cuyahoga r., and improved by a pier on each side, extending 425 yards into the lake, 200 feet apart, and faced with substantial stone masonry. Cleveland is the great mart of the greatest grain-growing state in the Union, and it is the Ohio and Erie canals that have made it such, though it exports much by the way of the Welland canal to Canada. It has a ready connection with Pittsburgh, through the Pennsylvania and Ohio canal, which extends from the Ohio canal at Akron to Beaver cr., which enters the Ohio below Pittsburgh. The natural advantages of this place are unsurpassed in the west, to which it has a large access by the lakes and the Ohio canal. But the Erie canal constitutes the principal source of its vast advantages; without that great work, it would have remained in its former insignificance.

The total number of pounds on which toll is charged which arrived at Cleveland, in 1840, was 280,233,820, in which was included 2,151,450 bushels of wheat, 504,900 barrels of flour, 23,000 do. of pork, 782,033 pounds of butter, 513,452 of lard, 683,499 of bacon, 1,154,641 of pig iron, 2,252,491 of iron and nails, 643,954 pieces of staves and heading.

The whole number of pounds weight of all property on which toll is paid by weight, which cleared from Cleveland by way of the canal in 1840 was, 9,563,396 pounds of merchandise,

1,163,167 of furniture, 1,770,016 of gypsum, 1,265,656 feet of lumber, 76,729 barrels of salt, 8,959 do. of lake fish, 2,560 M. shingles, 21 pairs of mill stones.

The number of clearances of boats, was 4,137; but there were only 312 different boats. In the year 1840, 1,344 vessels, exclusive of steamboats, entered the port; and 1,344 vessels, and 1,020 steamboats, cleared. There are owned at Cleveland, 67 schooners, 2 brigs, 3 sloops, 11 steamboats; the total tonnage in 1840 was 9,514. There were in 1840, 21 foreign commission houses, with a cap. of $58,000; 66 retail stores, cap. $139,700; 3 lumber yards, cap. $3,000; 1 furnace; machinery produced, $3,000; 2 distilleries, and 1 brewery, cap. $32,000; 1 flouring m. manufactured to the amount of $125,000; 5 printing offices, 3 binderies, 1 daily and 4 weekly newspapers, and 1 periodical, employed a cap. of $9,700. Total cap. in manufac. $198,632; 5 acad. 148 students, 15 sch. 1,089 scholars. Besides numerous respectable private schools, there are from 12 to 15 public schools, supported at an annual expense of $4,000. There are 4 large school edifices, which contain about 7,000 scholars.

The Cleveland Lyceum is a respectable literary institution, which holds discussions and sustains lectures during the winter season. There is also a reading room well supplied with periodicals.

There are 7 churches—1 Presbyterian, 1 Baptist, 1 Episcopal, 2 Methodist, and a chapel for boatmen and sailors.

There are two banks, with an aggregate capital of $800,000; and an insurance co., with a capital of $500,000. There is a light-house on the high bank of the lake, and another light at the entrance of the harbor. There are 2 daily papers and 5 weekly papers issued in this place.

Ohio City, on the opposite side of the Cuyahoga r., constitutes, virtually, one place with Cleveland. (See Ohio City.) It has, however, a separate incorporation.

The municipal authority of Cleveland consists of a mayor, 3 aldermen—1 from each ward; and 9 councilmen—3 from each ward.

Cleveland derives its name from Gen. Moses Cleveland, an agent of the Connecticut Land co., who accompanied the first surveying party upon the Connecticut Western Reserve. The city plat was surveyed under his direction in 1796. The Indian title to the territory had been extinguished 2 years before, but was not extinguished on the w. side of the r. until July 4th, 1805. Cleveland was incorporated as a village in 1814, and as a city in 1836.

COLUMBIA, I. (See Oregon Ter.)

COLUMBIA, (DISTRICT OF)

THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA is a tract of country 10 miles square, on both sides of the Potomac river, about 120 miles from its mouth, ceded to the United States by Virginia and Maryland, in 1790, for the purpose of becoming the sea of government. It includes the cities of Washington, Alexandria, and Georgetown, and is under the immediate government of Congress. In 1800 the population was 14,093; in 1810, 24,023; in 1820, 33,039; in 1830, 39,858; in 1840, 43,713, of which 30,657 were whites, 8,361 were free colored persons, and 4,694 were slaves.

Employed in agriculture 384, in commerce 340, in manufactures and trades 2,278, navigating the ocean 126, do. canals and rivers 80, learned professions and engineers 203.

Population of the Principal Towns.

|                       | 1800. | 1810. | 1820.  | 1830.  | 1840.  |
|-----------------------|-------|-------|--------|--------|--------|
| Washington, . . . . . | 3,210 | 8,208 | 13,247 | 18,227 | 23,364 |
| Alexandria, . . . . . | 4,196 | 7,227 | 8,218  | 8,263  | 8,459  |
| Georgetown, . . . . . |       | 4,948 | 7,360  | 8,441  | 7,312  |

The surface of the District is gently undulating, furnishing fine sites for its cities, and particularly Washington and its public buildings; the soil is naturally sterile, but it possesses a fine, healthy climate. Agriculture is, of course, not an object of primary attention, but the agricultural statistics in 1840, may be of some interest. There were 2,145 horses and mules, 3,274 neat cattle, 706 sheep, 4,673 swine, poultry to the value of $3,092. There were produced 12,147 bushels of wheat, 294 of barley, 15,751 of oats, 5,061 of rye, 272 of buckwheat, 39,485 of Indian corn, 707 pounds of wool, 12,035 bushels of potatoes, 1,331 tons of hay, 55,550 pounds of tobacco, 651 of silk cocoons. The products of the dairy were valued at $5,566, and of the orchard at $3,507.

This district has become the centre of a considerable and active commerce, though it cannot at all compete with Baltimore, in its vicinity. Vessels of the largest class come up to Alexandria, 6 miles below Washington, where the Potomac is a mile wide, and from 30 to 50 feet deep; and vessels of a large size come up to the U. S. Navy Yard, at the junction of the East Branch with the Potomac, at Washington. A very considerable quantity of flour and other produce comes down the Potomac, and centres chiefly at Alexandria, and some at Georgetown. The chief business of Washington city has relation to the accommodation of the national legislature, and of the officers of the general government.

The exports in 1840, were $753,923, and the imports were 119,852. There were 7 commercial and 2 commission houses in for trade, employing a capital of $310,000; 285 retail drygoods and other stores, cap. $2,701,890; 48 persons engaged in the lumber trade, with a capital of $140,000; 527 persons were employed in the fisheries, with a capital of $64,500. There were produced home-made or family articles, to the amount of $1,500; 1 paper mill produced to the amount of $1,500; 9 persons manufactured pottery to the amount of $5,200; hats and caps were manufactured to the amount of $47,200, employing 48 persons, and a capital of $22,100; 3 rope factories employed 31 persons, and a capital of $24,925; 9 tanneries employing 72 persons, and a capital of $80,400; 7 other manufactories of leather, as saddleries, &c., manufactured articles to the amount of $110,450, with a capital of $66,750; 11 persons manufactured confectionery to the amount of $7,500, with a capital of $2,800; 42 persons manufactured machinery to the amount of $60,300; 189 persons produced bricks and lime to the amount of $151,500; 97 persons manufactured carriages and wagons to the amount of $59,535, with a capital of $38,550; 4 flouring mills manufactured 25,500 barrels of flour, and with other mills, employed 30 persons, and produced to the amount of $183,370; with a capital of $98,500; ships were built to the amount of $20,257; 190 persons manufactured furniture to the amount of $125,872, employing a capital of $85,000; 60 brick and 33 wooden houses built, employed 142 persons, and cost $168,910; 12 printing offices, 10 binderies, 3 daily, 5 weekly, 6 semi-weekly newspapers, and 3 periodicals, employed 276 persons, and a capital of $150,700. The whole amount of manufactures was $1,005,775.

Georgetown College, a Catholic institution, was founded in 1799. The Columbian College, under the direction of the Baptists, was founded in 1831. In these institutions there were in 1840, 224 students; there were in the district 26 academies and grammar schools, with 1,369 students, 90 common and primary schools, with 851 scholars; and 1,033 white persons, over 20 years of age, who could neither read or write.

In 1836, the Presbyterians had 14 churches, 9 ministers, and 1,134 communicants; the Episcopalians had 7 churches; the Baptists had 5 churches, 4 ministers, and 533 communicants; the Methodists had several ministers; the Roman Catholics 6 ministers; the Friends 2 meetings; and the Unitarians 1 minister. At the close of 1840, the debt of the district amounted to $1,500,000.

A branch of the Chesapeake and Ohio canal terminates at Washington. The Alexandria canal is a continuation of the Chesapeake and Ohio canal, 7½ ms. to Alexandria.

The district is divided into two counties; the county of Washington is on the n. side of the Potomac, and the county of Alexandria is on the s. side. In the former, the laws of Maryland are continued in force; in the latter, those of Virginia. The district has never been represented in the Congress of the United States. Congress, however, makes what laws it pleases for both; it meets annually at Washington, on the first Monday of December, unless otherwise provided by law. The President of the United States, and the other chief officers of the government, reside at Washington. The Supreme Court of the United States sits here annually, on the second Monday in January.

At the suggestion of Gen. Washington, this district was fixed on for the seat of government; and in 1790 was ceded for that purpose to the United States, by Virginia and Maryland. The city of Washington was laid out on a broad scale in 1791, but its magnificent plan remains to a considerable extent in a state of nature, only a small portion of it having been built upon. In 1800, the seat of government was removed from Philadelphia, and fixed permanently in this place. During the late war with Great Britain, the capitol was partially, and most of the other public buildings entirely burned by the British; but they have been rebuilt, with greater magnificence.

COLUMBIA, county, N. Y. Situated in the e. part of the state, bounded w. by Hudson r., and contains 624 sq. ms. Organized in 1786. The surface is uneven and hilly, in its e. part, but less so toward Hudson r. The soil is various, and some of it very rich, and highly cultivated. Iron ore is found, and a lead mine in the town of Ancram. Marble exists also, and oxide of manganese, peat, and marl. There are also many mineral springs. Those of New Lebanon are warm and much frequented. Watered by Kinderhook cr. in the n., Claverack and Copake crs. in the centre, and Ancram or Roeliff Jansen's cr. on the s., which afford good water power. The Hudson and Berkshire railroad passes through the county. Capital, Hudson. There were in 1840, neat cattle 32,699, sheep 123,063, swine 54,911; wheat 28,249 bush. produced, rye 323,299, Indian corn 412,032, barley 1,971, oats 1,107,702, potatoes 560,819; 1 commercial house in for. trade, cap. $14,000; 228 stores, cap. $679,300; 7 lumber yards, cap. $36,000; cap. invested in fisheries, $330,000; 5 furnaces, 2 forges, 28 fulling m., 19 woollen fac., 11 cotton fac. 18,256 sp., 10 tanneries, 2 distilleries, 1 brewery, 12 flouring m., 39 grist m., 41 saw m., 4 paper fac., 4 printing offices, 1 bindery, 2 periodicals, 2 weekly newspapers. It is in 39° 47' n. lat., and 83° 3' w. lon., and 6° w. lon. from W. It is situated on the e. bank of Scioto r., immediately below the confluence of Whetstone r. When this place was fixed on as the seat of the legislature, in 1812, it was an entire wilderness. The land rises gradually from the river, and the streets cross each other at right angles. Broad-street extends from the bridge along the national road, a little s. of e. on the n. side of the public square of 10 acres, to the e. limit of the city, and is 120 feet wide. High-street, 100 feet wide, crosses Broad-street at the n. w. corner of the public square, at right angles, and passes through the city in that direction. This is the principal business street of the city, and is gravelled, and the side-walks are paved. All the other streets are 86 feet wide, and the alleys 33 feet wide. A convenient wharf, 1,300 feet long, has been erected along the margin of the r. The public buildings are, a state house on the s. w. corner of the public square, a brick edifice, 75 by 50 feet, of two lofty stories, with a steeple 106 feet high. From the balcony, a beautiful view of the city, and of the surrounding country, is presented. Immediately n. of the state house is a building for the public officers of the state, 150 by 25 feet. Still further n., in a line with the others, is the federal court house. There are 5 churches—1 Presbyterian, 1 Baptist, 1 Methodist, 1 Episcopal, and 1 German Lutheran. Several of these churches are elegant buildings. The state penitentiary is a spacious and elegant edifice, on the bank of the Scioto, half a mile n. of the centre of the city. CONNECTICUT, r., the largest in New England, has its source in the highlands on the n. border of New Hampshire, and its w. branch forms the boundary, by treaty, between the U. States and Canada, to the 45° of n. lat. Its general course is s. by w., and dividing New Hampshire and Vermont, it passes through the western part of Massachusetts, and the central part of Connecticut; and below Middletown, proceeding in a s. s. e. direction, it enters Long Island Sound, between Saybrook and Lyme. Its whole length is about 410 miles; and it flows through a fine country, and passes many flourishing towns. On its borders in New Hampshire, are Haverhill, Hanover, Charlestown, and Walpole; in Vermont, Newbury, Windsor, and Brattleboro'; in Massachusetts, Greenfield, Hadley, Northampton, and Springfield; and in Connecticut, Hartford, Middletown, and Haddam. It is navigable for vessels drawing 10 feet of water to Middletown, and for vessels drawing 8 feet of water to Hartford, the head of sloop navigation. Above this, it is navigable for boats carrying 10 or 12 tons in descending, and two thirds as much in ascending, passing a number of falls and rapids in canals around them, and towed by small steam towboats, to the mouth of Wells r. in Newbury, Vt., a distance of 250 ms. above Hartford. Immediately above this, are the Fifteen Mile Falls. The whole descent of the river between Hanover, N. H., and Enfield, Ct., is 371 feet, of which 218 have been overcome by locks; at South Hadley 50 feet, Nutter's Falls 71, Bellows' Falls 45½, Water Quechee 12½, and White r. 36 feet. At Enfield is also a fall of 5 or 6 feet, around which is a canal 5½ ms. in length. The principal tributaries of the Connecticut are, in New Hampshire, the Upper and Lower Ammonoosuc, Sugar, and Ashuelot r.; in Vermont, Passamaic, Wells, White, Quechee, Black, Williams, and West r.; in Massachusetts, Miller's, Deerfield, Chickopee, and Westfield r.; and in Connecticut, Farmington r. There are numerous bridges over the Connecticut, the lowest of which is at Hartford, Ct. In some places the banks of this river are rough and precipitous; but through a considerable part of its course, there are intervals on each side, from half a mile to 5 miles wide, but little raised above the surface of the river, portions of which are annually overflowed, and thus enriched, and which have great fertility. Besides the steam towboats, there are steam passage boats, which ply between Hartford and Springfield, and several steamboats of a larger size, form a line from Hartford to the city of New York, stopping at the intermediate places on the r. This r. is distinguished for its shad fisheries, and the fish which are caught are considered of a superior quality. Some other fish are taken, but salmon, formerly common, no longer frequent the river.

CONNECTICUT.

CONNECTICUT, the southernmost of the Eastern United States, is bounded n. by Massachusetts, e. by Rhode Island, s. by Long Island Sound, and w. by New York. It is between 41° and 43° 2' n. lat., and 71° 20' and 73° 15' w. lon., and between 3° 16' and 5° 11' e. lon. from W. It contains 4,674 sq. ms., or 2,991,360 acres.

The population in 1790 was 237,946; in 1800, 251,008; in 1810, 261,948; in 1820, 275,948; in 1830, 297,711; in 1840, 300,015. Of these 148,300 were white males, 153,556 do. females, 3,861 free colored males, 4,214 do. females. Employed in agriculture, 56,955; in commerce, 2,743; manufactures and trades, 27,933; navigating the ocean, 2,700; do. rivers, &c., 431; learned professions and engineers, 1,697.

The capitals are Hartford, on the Connecticut r., at the head of sloop navigation, 50 miles from its mouth; and New Haven, on a bay which sets up 4 miles from Long Island Sound.

The state is divided into 8 counties, which, with their population in 1840, and their capitals, were as follows: FAIRFIELD, 49,917, Fairfield and Danbury; HARTFORD, 55,629, Hartford; LITCHFIELD, 40,448, Litchfield; MIDDLESEX, 24,579, Middletown; NEW HAVEN, 48,582, New Haven; NEW LONDON, 44,463, New London and Norwich; TOLLAND, 17,960, Tolland; WINDHAM, 28,080, Brooklyn. These counties are divided into 144 cities and townships.

Connecticut is in general a hilly country, but the hills are not of great elevation. In passing over the state e. and w. they occur very frequently, but much less so n. and s. A range of hills 8 or 10 ms. e. of Connecticut r., passes through a considerable portion of the state. Another and higher range commences at a high bluff called East Rock, a little n. e. of New Haven, and passes northwardly through the state into Massachusetts; a yet higher commences at West Rock, still more elevated than East Rock, a little to the n. w. of New Haven, and proceeds northwardly through the state, and constitutes the southern portion of the Green Mountain range. In the n. w. parts of this state, this range deserves and receives the name of mountains. The soil is generally good, but better adapted to grazing than to tillage. The interval land on the Connecticut river is exceedingly fertile, and very easily tilled. The soil in general is well cultivated, and produces Indian corn, rye, in some parts wheat, oats, barley, buckwheat, flax abundantly, some hemp, potatoes, pumpkins, turnips, pease, beans, &c. Apples are abundant, and some other fruits. Neat cattle, horses, sheep, butter, and cheese are produced extensively. In 1840 there were in the state, 34,650 horses and mules, 238,650 neat cattle, 403,462 sheep, 131,961 swine; poultry to the amount of $176,629. There were produced 87,009 bushels of wheat, 33,759 of barley, 1,453,262 of oats, 737,494 of rye, 303,043 of buckwheat, 1,500,441 of Indian corn, 869,870 pounds of wool, 3,414,238 bushels of potatoes, 426,704 tons of hay, 83,764 pounds of hemp and flax, 471,657 of tobacco, 17,538 of silk cocoons, 51,764 of sugar. The products of the dairy amounted to $1,376,534, and of the orchard to $296,232; value of lumber, $147,841; and 2,666 gallons of wine were made.

The shore of Connecticut is indented with numerous bays and creeks, which furnish many harbors. The principal seaports are New London, which has one of the finest harbors in the country; New Haven, which has a safe harbor that in many parts is shallow, and is said to be gradually filling up; and Bridgeport. Long Island Sound extends the whole length of the state, and greatly facilitates the coasting trade, by warding off the swell and dangers of the Atlantic. The principal trade is with the West Indies. New London has engaged extensively in the whaling business. The exports of this state consist of beef, pork, horses, cattle, mules, butter, cheese, Ind. corn, rye, flaxseed, fish, candles, and soap.

Iron ore of a superior quality is found in Salisbury and Kent, and the former has long been, on account of its tenacity, manufactured into anchors. Fine marble is found in Milford and the vicinity, and an excellent freestone in Chatham and Haddam, easily wrought, and extensively used in building in the neighboring cities, and New York, for basements, lintels, &c. There are mineral springs at Stafford and Suffield, the former of which is very celebrated, and much frequented.

The climate of Connecticut is healthy, though subject to extremes of heat and cold; the sea coast is particularly variable. The n. w. winds, in the winter season, are cold and piercing; those which blow from the s. are more mild; and a great change in the weather generally occurs with a change of the wind.

The 3 principal rivers are the Connecticut, navigable for vessels drawing 8 feet of water 50 ms. to Hartford, crossing the state nearly in the middle, and entering the sound between Saybrook and Lyme; the Housatonic, navigable for small vessels 13 ms. to Derby, and entering the sound between Milford and Stratford; the Thames, navigable 14 ms. to Norwich, and entering the Atlantic at New London. Farmington and Naugatuck are considerable streams, furnishing extensive water power.

There are 6 cities in Connecticut—Hartford, New London, New Haven, Middletown, Bridgeport, and Norwich. The other principal places are Stonington, Danbury, New Milford, Norwalk, Meriden, Wethersfield, East Windsor, Litchfield, and Waterbury.

The exports of this state in 1840 amounted to $518,810, and the imports to $227,073. There were 10 commercial and 13 commission houses engaged in for. trade, with a capital of $565,000; 1,630 retail drygoods and other stores, with a capital of $6,687,636; 583 persons in the lumber trade employed a capital of $438,485; 293 persons engaged in transportation, with 76 other persons as butchers, packers, &c., employing a capital of $162,065; 2,215 persons were employed in the fisheries, with a capital of $1,301,640.

The manufactures of Connecticut are not less extensive than its commerce. This state has 3 colleges. Yale College, at New Haven, is one of the oldest, and is the most flourishing institution of the kind in the United States. It was founded in 1701, and removed from Saybrook to New Haven in 1717. Washington College, at Hartford, under the direction of the Episcopalians, was founded in 1826, and is flourishing. The Wesleyan University, at Middletown, is under the direction of the Methodists, and is a growing institution. The Asylum for the Deaf and Dumb, at Hartford, is the oldest and most respectable institution of the kind in the United States, and has generally 130 students. In 1840 there were in the 3 colleges, 700 students; there were in the state 127 academies and grammar schools, with 4,865 students; 1,619 common and primary schools, with 65,739 scholars; and 526 persons over 20 years of age who could neither read nor write, the least number of any state in the Union. Connecticut has a larger productive school fund, in proportion to its population, than any other state, amounting to about $2,000,000. This originated chiefly from the sale of the Western Reserve, constituting a large part of the northern portion of the state of Ohio, included in its original charter, and ceded to it by the United States, by way of compromise.

The principal religious denominations are the Congregationalists, the Baptists, the Episcopalians, and the Methodists. In 1836 the Congregationalists had 232 churches, 271 ministers, and 29,579 communicants; the Baptists 92 churches, 90 ministers, and 10,039 communicants; the Episcopalians 1 bishop and 63 ministers; the Methodists 73 ministers. Besides these, there were a few Roman Catholics, Unitarians, and Universalists.

At the commencement of 1840, there were 33 banks and branches, with a capital of $8,832,223. It had no state debt.

There is a state prison at Wethersfield, erected in 1826.

The government of the state is vested in a governor, lieutenant-governor, who is president of the senate, and in a senate and house of representatives. The senate consists of not less than 18 nor of more than 24 members. Most of the towns choose 2 representatives; some, of less population, but one. The sessions of the legislature are held annually, alternately at Hartford and at New Haven. The supreme court consists of 5 judges, appointed by the legislature, holding their offices during good behavior, or until they are 70 years of age. These judges hold separately a court twice a year, in each county; and all the judges together hold one court annually in each county, as a court of errors. The county courts consist of 3 judges in each county, appointed annually by the legislature. There are justices of the peace in the several towns, who have cognizance of all cases where the demand does not exceed $35. The cities have city courts, consisting of the mayor and 2 senior aldermen, having cognizance of all civil actions, which do not respect the title of land.

The principal internal improvements in Connecticut are the Farmington canal, extending from New Haven, 56 ms., to the n. line of the state, whence it is continued to Northampton, Mass.; at Enfield, a canal extends around the falls in Connecticut river of 54 ms., which, with other improvements above, is designed to make the river navigable for boats and steamboats to White river, in Vt.; the Norwich and Worcester railroad, 58½ miles, extends from Norwich n. through the state; the New Haven and Hartford railroad, 36 miles, connects the two places, and is to be extended to meet the Western Massachusetts railroad at Springfield; the Housatonic railroad commences at Bridgeport, and extends to North Canaan, at the n. line of the state, 73 miles, and is continued to meet the Western railroad of Massachusetts, at West Stockbridge.

The state consisted, at its first settlement, of two colonies, denominated Connecticut, having the seat of government at Hartford; and New Haven, at New Haven. The colony of Connecticut was settled in 1633, at Windsor, by emigrants from Massachusetts, who penetrated through the wilderness. Hartford was settled by the English in 1635, the Dutch having previously built a fort there, which they did not permanently hold. Wethersfield was settled in 1636. The colony at New Haven was settled by the English in 1637. By a charter granted by Charles II., in 1665, these colonies were united. During the tyranny of Andros, an attempt was made to procure a surrender of the charter. The subject was publicly debated in the evening, at Hartford, when suddenly the candles were extinguished, and the charter was hid in the hollow of an oak tree, which has become famous since as the Charter Oak. This charter continued to be the basis of the government until the year 1818, when the present constitution was formed.

In 1708, the celebrated Saybrook Platform, or constitution of the Congregational churches, was adopted.

Connecticut took a very active part in the revolutionary war, and a number of her towns, particularly Danbury and New London, were burned by the enemy; the latter under the command of the traitor Arnold.

The constitution of the United States was adopted in a convention, January 9, 1788; yeas 128, nays 40; majority 88.

DELAWARE, r., rises by 2 principal branches on the w. side of the Catakill mountains. The Mohawks, or western branch, proceeds from a small lake in a s. w. direction, and turning s. e., it reaches the Pennsylvania line in lat. 43°, and proceeding 7 miles on the line between that state and N. York, it receives the Popacton branch, which also proceeds from the Catakill mountains, in a s. w. direction to its junction. After the union of these streams, the river pursues a winding course to the s. e., forming the boundary between N. York and Pennsylvania, in the whole, for 50 miles. It touches the n. w. corner of N. Jersey at Carpenter's point, in lat. 41° 24'. It then takes a s. w. direction, until at its passage through the Kittatinny or Blue mountains, it turns to the s. e. This passage, called the Delaware Water Gap, is a great curiosity. The banks rise in a rugged and lofty wall, 1,600 feet high, precipitously from the water's edge, unbroken. The distance through the mountains is about 2 miles, and in one place the river has worn out of the rock a basin from the hill of many acres in extent. In general, there is hardly room along the water's edge for a road, it being in many places overhung by immense rocks. Through this pass the river has a great depth. At Easton, it receives from the w. the Lehigh, one of its principal tributaries. A little below Easton, the river passes S. Mountain, and has a course s. w. 60 miles to Trenton, in which distance there are 25 rapids, with a total fall of 165 feet; but they are navigable at high water. The river, below Trenton, turns to the s. w. until near the bay, which it enters in a s. e. direction. The river, from its source to the ocean, is about 309 miles long. It is navigable for vessels of the largest class, 40 ms. to Philadelphia; and for sloops, 35 ms. further to Trenton. Above the falls at Trenton, it is navigable for boats of 8 or 9 tons, 100 miles. The Delaware is connected to the Hudson river by the Delaware and Hudson, and by the Morris canals. There is also a canal from the Delaware to the Chesapeake bay, 14 ms. long, 60 feet wide and 8 feet deep, sufficient for the passage of small vessels. There are 5 bridges over the Delaware, the lowest of which is at Trenton. The largest cities and towns on the Delaware are Philadelphia, Burlington, Trenton, and Easton.

DELAWARE BAY, at the mouth of Delaware r., is a large arm of the sea, 65 miles long, and 18 miles across at its mouth, between Cape May on the n., and Cape Henlopen on the s. In the middle, it is 30 miles across. For 70 miles from the sea, this bay has no safe natural harbor; and within Cape Henlopen, a magnificent work, called the Delaware Breakwater, has been erected by the general government, consisting of a stone dyke or pier, 1,200 yards long, and another 500 yards long, forming a safe artificial harbor. 900,000 cubic yards of stone were consumed in these structures. The stones weigh from a quarter of a ton to 3 tons each.

DELAWARE.

DELAWARE, one of the middle United States, and, next to Rhode Island, the least in the Union, is bounded n. by Pennsylvania; e. by Delaware river and bay; s. and w. by Maryland. It is between 38° 29' and 39° 47' n. lat., and between 74° 56' and 75° 40' w. lon., and between 1° 13 and 1° 57' e. from W. It is 92 miles long, and 23 broad, and contains 2,120 sq. ms., or 1,356,800 acres. The population in 1790, was 59,094; in 1800, 64,272; in 1810, 72,674; in 1820, 72,749; in 1830, 76,739; in 1840, 78,085: of which 2,605 were slaves; 29,259 were white males; 29,302 do. females, 8,626 free colored males, 8,393 do. females. Employed in agriculture, 16,015; in commerce, 467; in manufactures and trades, 4,060; navigating the ocean, 401; do. canals and rivers, 235; learned professions and engineers, 199.

This state is divided into three counties, which, with their population in 1840, and their capitals, are as follows; KENT, 19,872, Dover; NEW CASTLE, 32,120, Wilmington and New Castle; SUSSEX, 25,093, Georgetown. These counties are divided into 24 hundreds.

Dover, situated on Jones's creek, 7 miles from its entrance into Delaware bay, is the seat of government.

The lower part of this state is very level. The northern part is moderately hilly and rough, and some of the heights are commanding. An elevated table land, toward its western border, passes through the state, dividing the waters which fall into the Chesapeake, from those which fall into Delaware bay; it contains a chain of swamps, from which the principal streams take their rise; some flowing w. to the Chesapeake, and others e. to the Delaware. The soil in the n. is a strong clay; in the middle it is mixed with sand; and in the s. part, the sand predominates. In the neighborhood of Delaware river, the soil is rich and productive, but becomes less so toward the swamps in the w. The principal productions are wheat, of a superior quality, Indian corn, rye, barley, oats, flax, buckwheat, and potatoes. The southern part affords some fine grazing land; and from a cypress swamp on Indian river, 12 miles long from n. to s., and 6 miles broad from e. to w., large quantities of timber are exported. Wheat is the principal article of export, and the Brandywine mills, in the neighborhood of Wilmington, are among the finest in the United States.

In this state there were in 1840, 14,421 horses and mules, 53,833 neat cattle, 39,247 sheep, 74,228 swine; poultry valued at $47,265. There were produced 315,165 bush. of wheat, 5,260 of barley, 927,405 of oats, 33,546 of rye, 11,299 of buckwheat, 2,099,359 of Indian corn, 64,404 pounds of wool, 200,712 bush. of potatoes, 22,483 tons of hay, 1,456 pounds of silk cocoons. The products of the dairy amounted to $113,928, and of the orchard to $28,211.

The exports in 1840, were $37,001, and the imports were $802. There were 327 retail dry-goods and other stores, employing a capital of $967,750; 140 persons were engaged in the lumber trade, with a capital of $63,280; 165 persons were employed in the fisheries, with a capital of $170,000. The manufactures are more considerable than its commerce. There were home-made or family articles produced to the amount of $62,116; 2 woollen manufactories, employing 83 persons, producing articles to the amount of $104,700, and employing a capital of $107,000; 11 cotton manufactories, with 24,492 sp., employing 566 persons, producing articles to the amount of $332,272, and employing a capital of $330,500; 2 furnaces produced 17 tons of cast iron, and 5 forges produced 449 tons of bar iron, with a capital of $36,200; 1 paper mill produced to the amount of $20,800, and other manufactories of paper to the amount of $1,500, the whole employing 15 persons, and a capital of $16,200; 9 persons manufactured pottery to the amount of $4,300, with a capital of $1,100; hats and caps were manufactured to the amount of $15,300, and straw bonnets to the amount of $450, employing 35 persons, and a capital of $9,075; 18 tanneries employed 66 persons, and a capital of $69,300; 75 other manufactories of leather, as saddleries, &c., manufactured articles to the amount of $166,037, employing a capital of $161,630; 9 persons manufactured confectionery to the amount of $6,500, with a capital of $2,500; 27 powder mills, employing 145 persons, manufactured 2,100,000 pounds of gunpowder, with a capital of $220,000; 299 persons manufactured machinery to the amount of $314,500; 10 persons manufactured hardware and cutlery to the amount of $22,000; 10 persons manufactured granite and marble to the amount of $12,000; 116 persons produced brick and lime to the amount of $56,536; 143 persons manufactured carriages and wagons to the amount of $49,417, with a capital of $25,150; 21 flouring mills manufactured 76,194 barrels of flour, and with other mills, employed 288 persons, and produced to the amount of $737,971, with a capital of $294,150; ships were built to the amount of $35,400; 130 persons manufactured furniture to the amount of $16,300, employing a capital of $34,800; 47 brick houses, and 104 wooden houses built, employed 299 persons, and cost $145,850; 6 printing offices and 2 binderies, 3 weekly and 3 semi-weekly newspapers, and 2 periodicals, employed 33 persons, and a capital of $11,450. The whole amount of capital in the state employed in manufactures was $1,589,215.

The climate of this state is generally mild, though in the northern part the winter season is sometimes considerably severe. It is generally healthy.

The rivers are small. Brandywine creek rises in Pennsylvania, is 40 miles long, and uniting with Christiana creek, forms the harbor of Wilmington, 1 m. below the town, and 2 miles w. of Delaware river. Duck creek, Mispillion creek, and Indian river flow into the Delaware.

Delaware bay washes the eastern part of the state. It has no good natural harbors in this part of it. To remedy this inconvenience, the government of the United States have undertaken the construction of the Delaware Breakwater, in front of Lewiston, near Cape Henlopen. It consists of 2 piers, an ice-breaker, 1,500 feet long, and a breakwater, 3,600 feet long, and when completed, is estimated to cost $2,216,950.

Wilmington is the largest and most commercial town in the state. Vessels drawing 14 feet of water can come to its wharves; it has considerable trade, and has several ships engaged in the whaling business. The other principal towns are Dover and New Castle.

There is but one college in the state, Newark College, at Newark, which was founded in 1833, and had, in 1840, 23 students. Besides this there were in the state, 20 academies, with 761 students; 152 primary and common schools, with 6,924 scholars; and 4,833 persons over 20 years of age who could neither read nor write.

The principal religious denominations are the Presbyterians, who, in 1836, had 15 ministers, the Methodists, 15 ministers; the Episcopalians, 6 ministers; the Baptists, 9 churches and 5 ministers; and the Roman Catholics, 2 ministers; besides some Friends.

In Jan., 1840, the state had 4 banks, and 4 branches, with an aggregate capital of $1,071,318. The state had no state debt.

The present constitution was adopted in 1831. The governor is chosen for 4 years, and to be ever after ineligible. The senate consists of 3 members from each county, chosen for 4 years. The representatives are 7 from each county, chosen once in two years. The legislature meets once in two years, on the first Tuesday of January. The elections are held on the second Tuesday of November. Every male citizen over 22 years of age, who has resided one year in the state, and the last month in the county in which he votes, and paid a tax, has the right of suffrage; and if he be between 21 and 22 years, and otherwise qualified, he may vote without the payment of a tax. The state treasurer is chosen by the legislature biennially; and in case of his death, resignation, &c., the governor fills the office until the next session of the legislature. The judicial power of the state is exercised by four common law judges and a chancellor. Of the 4 law judges, one is chief-justice, and the others are associates. The chief-justice and chancellor may be appointed from any part of the state, but there must be one associate judge in each county. A court consists of the chief-justice and two associates. No associate judge is permitted to sit in his own county. The legislature have power to establish such inferior courts as may be necessary. The chancellor exercises the powers of a court of chancery, and with all the judges, a court of appeals.

The constitution provides that no act of incorporation shall be passed without a vote of two thirds, unless it be the renewal of an existing incorporation; and all acts are to contain a power of revocation by the legislature. No act hereafter passed shall be in force longer than 20 years, without a re-enactment by the legislature. No person belonging to the military, naval, or marine service of the United States, can gain such a residence as will entitle him to vote, by being stationed at any military or naval post in the state.

The Chesapeake and Delaware canal, is the most important work of internal improvement in this state. It crosses the northern part of the state, commencing at Delaware city, 46 miles below Philadelphia, and extends 13½ miles to Back creek, a navigable branch of Elk River. Being 66 feet wide at the surface and 10 feet deep, it is navigable for sloops and steamboats. The Deep Cut in this canal is 4 miles in length, through a hill 90 feet high. This canal was commenced in 1824, and completed in 1829, at a cost of $2,300,000. The New Castle and Frenchtown railroad also forms a connection between the Delaware and Chesapeake. It extends from New Castle on the Delaware river, to Frenchtown on Elk river, is 16½ miles long, and was finished in 1832, at an expense of $400,000.

Delaware was first settled by the Swedes and Finns, under the patronage of Gustavus Adolphus, and received the name of New Sweden. In 1630, they built a fort at Lewiston, and a year after, another near Wilmington. They were too weak, and too far removed from the protection of the mother country, to sustain themselves against the Dutch, who subdued them in 1655. In 1664, this territory was included in the country taken by the English from the Dutch, granted by Charles II. to the Duke of York, who, in 1682, conveyed it to William Penn. Delaware remained nominally united to Pennsylvania, and under its proprietary government, until 1775; though they had, in fact, a separate government before. They were denominated the Lower Countries of the Delaware, and as such, were represented in the first congress at New York, in 1765. This state suffered severely in the revolutionary war, in which its citizens bore an honorable part. In convention, they adopted the constitution of the United States, December 3d, 1787, by a unanimous vote.

DETROIT, city, capital of Wayne co., Mich., and of the state, 302 w. Buffalo, 524 W. It has a pleasant and healthy situation, on a river or strait of the same name, 30 feet above its surface, with a fine view of the surrounding country. It is 7 miles below the outlet of Lake St. Clair, and 18 above the w. end of Lake Erie, in 42° 19' 53" n. lat., and 82° 58' w. long., and 5° 56' 12" w. long. from W. Pop. 1810, 770; 1830, 1,422; 1830, 2,222; 1840, 9,102. It extends for the distance of a mile upon the r., and three fourths of a mile back. For 1,200 feet back of the r. its plan is rectangular. From this point 8 avenues, 200 feet wide, radiate, dividing it into triangular portions, all terminating at a large open area, called the Grand Circus. The principal public and private offices, and drygoods stores, are located on Jefferson avenue, a fine street running parallel with the r. There are several public squares, the most noted of which is called the Campus Martius. The city is drained by public sewers. The city is partially supplied with water from an elevated reservoir, filled with water raised by steam power from the river. Detroit is among the earlier settlements of N. America, having been founded by the French from Canada in 1683. Among the public buildings are the State House, of brick, of the Ionic order, 90 by 60 feet, with 6 columns in front, and pilasters on the sides. The dome presents an extensive and fine view of the surrounding country. The City Hall, of brick, is a neat edifice, 100 feet by 50. The lower story is a market, and the second contains a spacious hall, in which the courts are held. It contains 8 churches—1 Presbyterian, 1 Episcopal, 1 Methodist, 1 Baptist, 1 German Lutheran, 2 for colored people, supplied by clergymen of different denominations, and 2 Roman Catholic. Some of these churches are large and splendid buildings. The Bank of Michigan is a fine stone edifice, of Grecian architecture, 56 by 40 feet. There are 3 other banks, and the whole capital of the banks is $2,250,000. There are a U. S. land office, 3 markets, a theatre, a museum, a public garden, state penitentiary, government magazine, and mechanics' hall. There are various charitable and benevolent institutions. The Protestants and the Roman Catholics have each an orphan asylum. The ladies' free school society educate 200 indigent children. There are several literary and scientific societies. There are 3 female institutes of a high order, and several equally respectable schools for boys, besides 12 public schools, attended by about 500 children.

Detroit is admirably situated for trade, and is becoming a great commercial emporium. The navigation of the river and lake are open about 8 months in the year. The arrivals of vessels and steamboats at this place are about 300 annually, and the clearances are as many. The tonnage of the port in 1840 was 11,432 tons. The first steamboat arrival at this place, was in August, 1818. Now, several of the largest class arrive and depart daily. The central railroad, which is designed to extend across the peninsula, is finished 44 ms. from Detroit to Ann Arbor. Detroit was incorporated as a city in 1815. It has several times suffered severely by fires. There were in 1840, 11 commission houses in for. trade, cap. $123,000; 113 retail stores, cap. $412,760; 4 lumber yards, cap. $31,500; 3 furnaces, 1 tannery, 2 breweries, 1 pottery, 3 printing offices, 2 binderies, 3 distilleries, and 4 weekly newspapers. Cap. in manufac. $172,375.

DETROIT, river, N. America, forms the boundary between Canada and the United States, and extends from Lake St. Clair, 28 mi., to Lake Erie. Opposite to Detroit, it is three fourths of a mile wide, and increases in width as it descends. It is navigable for vessels of any burden. Near its mouth are several islands, the largest of which are Grosse and Fighting islands. The principal channel is on the eastern side, between Boisblanc Island and the Canada shore; the western channel is wider, but full of small islands. Back from the r. the land descends into low grounds, and the settlements are only one farm deep on the banks of the r. The settlements appear like a continued village on the British shore, and also on the American shore for many miles above and below Detroit, and the houses are surrounded with fruit trees, presenting a delightful spectacle in passing through the strait.

FLORIDA.

FLORIDA, territory, is bounded n. by Alabama and Georgia; e. by the Atlantic; s. and w. by the Gulf of Mexico. It lies between 25° and 31° n. lat., and between 80° and 87° 44' w. long., and between 3° and 10° 44' w. from W. It is 385 miles long, and from 50 to 250 wide, containing 57,000 square miles, or 37,000,000 acres. The population in 1830, was 34,723; in 1840, 54,477, of which 16,456 were white males, 11,487 females; free colored persons, males 398, females 419; slaves, males 13,038, females 12,679. Employed in agriculture, 12,117; in commerce, 481; in manufactures and trades, 1,177; navigating the ocean, 435; do. canal and rivers, 118; learned professions and engineers, 204.

This territory is divided into 20 counties, which, with their population in 1840, and their capitals, are as follows: West Florida—ESCAMBIA, 3,993, Pensacola; WALTON, 1,461, Euchee Anna; Middle Florida—GADSDEN, 5,992, Quincy; HAMILTON, 1,464, Jasper; JEFFERSON, 5,713, Monticello; LEON, 10,713, Tallahassee; MADISON, 2,644, Madison; East Florida—ALACHUA, 2,282, Newmansville; COLUMBIA, 2,102, Lancaster; DUVALL, 4,156, Jacksonville; HILLSBOROUGH, 452, Fort Brooks; LEIGH REED, 73, New Smyrna; NASSAU, 1,892, Nassau C. H.; ST. JOHN'S, 2,694, St. Augustine; South Florida—DADE, 446, Key Biscayne; MONROE, 668, Key West; Appalachicola District—CALHOUN, 1,142, St. Joseph; FRANKLIN, 1,030, Appalachicola; JACKSON, 4,681, Marianna; WASHINGTON, 859, Roche's Bluff.

Tallahassee, in Leon county, 23 miles n. of St. Mark's, is the seat of government.

The face of the country is uneven, but has no mountains or high hills. A large portion of it is covered with pine forests, the trees of which, standing at a considerable distance from each other, without brush or underwood, afford an opportunity for grass and flowers to spread luxuriantly over the surface of the earth during the whole year. The borders of the streams are usually skirted with hammocks, or hillocks, of hard timber, covered with grape and other vines. A large portion of Florida consists of pine barrens, much of which has a very poor soil; still there are many extensive tracts of table land, hammock, and swamp, of the richest soil, and well adapted to the cultivation of sugar, rice, cotton, Indian corn, tobacco, and fruits. A considerable quantity of the pine lands is equally rich; and the barrens themselves afford extensive ranges of grazing land, usually intersected with streams of pure water. Many parts of the territory abound in yellow pine and live oak timber. Majestic cedars, chestnuts, magnolias, with their large white flowers, and cypresses, with a straight stem of 80 or 90 feet, are found. The fig, pomegranate, orange, and date, are among the fruits of Florida. Cotton forms the chief agricultural production. The peninsula, which constitutes the southern portion of the district, presents a singular alternation of savannahs, hammocks, lagoons, and grass-ponds, called altogether the everglades, which extend into the heart of the country for 200 miles n. of Cape Sable, and are drained northwardly by the St. John's river.

There were in this territory, 1840, 12,043 horses and mules, 118,081 neat cattle, 7,198 sheep, 92,680 swine; poultry valued at $61,007. There were produced 412 bushels of wheat, 13,929 oats, 898,974 Indian corn, 264,617 potatoes, 7,285 pounds of wool, 1,197 tons of hay, 124 pounds of silk cocoons, 75,274 tobacco, 481,420 rice, 12,110,533 cotton, 275,317 sugar. Value of the products of the dairy amounted to $23,094; and of the orchard, $1,035.

The exports in 1840 were $1,858,850, and the imports were $190,728. There were 23 commercial and 21 commission houses in foreign trade, employing a capital of $542,000; 239 retail dry-goods and other stores, with a capital of $1,240,390; 92 engaged in the lumber trade, with a capital of $64,050; 67 persons were employed in the fisheries, with a capital of $10,000. Home-made or family articles manufactured to the amount of $20,205; hats and caps manufactured to the amount of $1,500; 3 tanneries employed 15 persons, and a capital of $14,500; 10 other manufactories of leather, as saddleries, &c., manufactured articles to the value of $6,200, employing a capital of $4,250; 136 produced bricks and lime to the amount of $37,600; 15 persons manufactured carriages and wagons to the amount of $11,000, with a capital of $5,900; 63 grist, 65 saw, and 2 oil mills, employed 410 persons, and produced to the amount of $189,650, with a capital of $488,250. Ships were built to the amount of $14,100. The whole amount of capital employed in manufactures was $669,490.

There are many bays on the western side of the peninsula, which form good harbors; the principal of which are Perdido, Pensacola, Choctawhatchee, St. Joseph's, Appalachicola, Appalachee, Tampa, Carlos, and Gallivans. There are none on the eastern side; but rivers, inlets, and sounds, afford harbors for coasting vessels. The principal capes are Canaveral, Florida, Sable, at the southern extremity, Roaming, and St. Blas. There are many islands scattered along the coast, particularly a cluster off the southern extremity, denominated the Florida Keys, extending in a curved form, 200 miles. Key West, on one of these, named Thompson's Island, is a naval station, has a good harbor, which is well sheltered, and admits the largest vessels.

The principal river on the eastern side is the St. John's, which rises within a short distance of the coast, and flows northwardly, in a very crooked course, through several lakes; it is often from 3 to 5 miles wide, and at other times, not one fourth of a mile. It passes through a fine healthy country, and vessels drawing 8 feet of water enter Lake George and Dun's Lake, 150 miles from its mouth, which has a bar of 12 feet, where it is only 1 mile wide. The Appalachian river is formed by the union of Chatahochee and Flint rivers, about 100 miles above the Gulf of Mexico, to which place vessels drawing 8 feet water can proceed. The other principal rivers are the Escambia, Suwannee, Withlacoochee, Oecilla, Ocklocony, and Choctawhatchee. Rivers sometimes start out of the ground in a stream sufficient to turn a mill, which seem to come from subterranean reservoirs, and sometimes suddenly sink into the ground and disappear.

The principal towns are St. Augustine, the oldest town in the United States, which was settled by the Spaniards, in 1564, and is the chief town in East Florida; Pensacola, 10 miles from the sea, on Pensacola bay; Tallahassee, the capital, and St. Mark's, its port, 22 miles south of it, are the principal places in the western part of Florida.

This territory has no college. There were in 1840, 18 academies and grammar schools, with 732 students, and 51 common and primary schools, with 925 scholars, and 1,303 white persons, over 20 years of age, who could neither read nor write.

The Episcopalians, Presbyterians, Methodists, and Roman Catholics, have each a few congregations and ministers.

At the commencement of 1840, the district had 5 banks and branches, with an aggregate capital of $3,976,121, and a circulation of $418,778. At the close of 1840, the debt of the territory amounted to $3,900,000.

The governor is appointed by the President of the United States. The legislative council is composed of a senate of 11 members, elected for 2 years, and a house of representatives, composed of 29 members, chosen annually by the people in October. The legislature meets annually at Tallahassee, the seat of government, on the first Monday in January, and its sessions are limited to 75 days. The pay of the members is $4 per day, and $4 for every 20 miles travel to and from the seat of government.

A railroad extends from Tallahassee 22 miles to St. Mark's. One also extends from Lake Wicomico 12 miles to St. Joseph, and another from St. Joseph 30 miles to Iola, on the Appalachicola. Several other railroads and canals have been projected.

Florida was discovered by Sebastian Cabot, sailing under the English flag and patronage, in 1497. Ponce de Leon, a Spanish adventurer, from Hispaniola, explored the country in 1512 and 1516. In 1539, Hernando de Soto, who had been an officer under Pizarro, sailed from the island of Cuba, of which he was governor, with an armed force, with which he overran the peninsula, though his followers were mostly cut off a few years after, and himself died. The French attempted to establish a colony in 1553, which occasioned contests between the French and Spaniards, in which, after alternate successes, the latter were victorious. In 1763 Florida was ceded to Great Britain by Spain, in exchange for Havana. The Spanish reconquered it in 1781, and it was confirmed to them at the peace of 1783. In 1821 the Spaniards ceded it to the United States, as a compensation for their spoliation on the commerce of the United States. Since it has been in possession of the United States, it has been extensively the scene of a warfare with the Indians. The Seminoles were subdued in 1818 by the Americans, under General Jackson. A portion of this tribe, who refused to emigrate to the lands assigned to them beyond the Mississippi, have recently carried on a tedious and expensive war with the United States.

FLORIDA, cape, a promontory on the s. e. coast of Florida, situated on the s. w. end of an island called Key Biacayune. A light-house was erected here to mark the entrance of Hawk's channel, which was burned by the Seminoles. It was situated in 28° 15' n. lat., and 3° 22' w. lon. from W.

GEORGE'S CREEK, p-o., Lawrence co., Ky., 170 e. Frankfort, 448 W.

GEORGE, lake, or Horicon, N. Y., separates Warren from Washington counties, lying partly in both, and has its outlet into Lake Champlain. It is 230 feet above the Hudson r. and is 36 ms. long, and from 2 to 3 wide, and is said to have as many islands as there are days in the year. In picturesque scenery, it is unsurpassed in the United States, perhaps in the world. On account of the purity of its waters, the French called it Lac Sacrament, the bottom being visible to the depth of 30 or 40 feet. Its shores contain the remains of several old forts, memorable in the French and revolutionary wars. A steamboat plies regularly on the lake. Its outlet affords good water power.

From the ocean, for the distance of 7 miles, there is a margin of islands, intersected by rivers, creeks, and inlets, communicating with each other, and forming an inland navigation for vessels of 100 tons burden, along the whole coast. These sea islands consist of salt marsh, and land of a gray rich soil, which produces sea-island cotton of a superior quality. The natural growth of this soil is pine, hickory, and live oak. The principal islands are Tybee, Ossabaw, St. Catharines, Sapelo, St. Simons, and Cumberland. The coast on the main land, for 4 or 5 miles, is a salt marsh. Back of this there is a narrow margin of land, nearly resembling that of the islands; and back of this commence the pine barrens, interspersed with numerous inland swamps, on the margin of the creeks and rivers. These are partially or wholly overflowed at the return of the tides, and constitute the rice plantations. The pine barrens reach from 60 to 90 miles from the coast. Beyond this commences the country of sand hills, 30 or 40 miles wide, interspersed with fertile tracts, and extending to the lower falls of the rivers. The part of the state, above the falls of the rivers, is called the Upper Country, and has generally a strong and fertile soil, often inclining to a red color, and further back, mixed with a deep black mold, producing cotton, tobacco, Indian corn, wheat, and other kinds of grain. Black walnut and mulberry trees grow abundantly in this soil. The forests also produce oak, pine, hickory, and cedar. The fruits are, melons, figs, oranges, pomegranates, olives, lemons, limes, citrons, pears, and peaches. The pine barrens produce grapes of a large size and excellent flavor. The country on the n., near the boundary of Tennessee, becomes mountainous.

In this state there were in 1840, 157,540 horses and mules; 694,414 neat cattle; 267,107 sheep; 1,457,755 swine; poultry to the value of $449,623. There were produced 1,801,830 bushels of wheat; 12,979 of barley; 1,610,030 of oats; 60,693 of rye; 20,905,122 of Indian corn; 371,303 pounds of wool; 19,799 of wax; 1,211,366 of potatoes; 16,969 tons of hay; 10 of flax and hemp; 162,694 pounds of tobacco; 12,384,732 of rice; 163,392,396 of cotton; 2,992 of silk cocoons; 329,744 of sugar. The products of the dairy were valued at $605,172; and of the orchard, $156,122; of lumber $114,050. There were made, 8,647 gallons of wine.

The staple commodities of this state are cotton and rice, of which great quantities are exported. Copper and iron have been found in this state, and there are several valuable mineral springs, but much the most valuable mineral production is gold, which is found in the n. part of the state, in considerable quantities.

The exports of this state in 1840, amounted to $6,862,959; and the imports to $491,428. There were 4 commercial and 82 commission houses engaged in foreign trade, with a capital of $1,542,500;

1,716 retail drygoods and other stores, with a capital of $7,361,838; 442 persons were employed in the lumber trade, with a capital of $75,730; 194 persons were employed in internal transportation, who, with 17 butchers, packers, &c., employed a capital of $12,885.

The amount of home-made or family goods was $1,467,630. There was 1 woollen manufactory employing 10 persons, producing articles to the amount of $3,000, with a capital of $2,000; 19 cotton factories with 42,599 spindles, employing 779 persons, producing articles to the amount of $304,342, employing a capital of $573,835; 14 furnaces, producing 494 tons of cast iron, employing 41 persons, and a capital of $34,000; 130 smelting houses employed 405 persons, and produced gold to the amount of $121,981, with a capital of $79,343; 55 persons manufactured hats and caps to the amount of $22,761, with a capital of $7,950; 133 tanneries employed 437 persons, and a capital of $127,739; 103 other leather manufactories, as saddleries, &c., produced articles to the amount of $123,701, with a capital of $60,932; 6 potteries, employing 12 persons, produced articles to the amount of $2,050, with a capital of $790; 184 persons produced machinery to the amount of $131,238; 19 persons produced hardware and cutlery to the amount of $7,866; 555 persons produced bricks and lime to the amount of $143,655; 2,633 persons made 764,538 pounds of soap, and 111,066 pounds of tallow candles, with a capital of $27,126; 393 distilleries produced 126,746 gallons, which with 22 breweries employed 218 persons, and a capital of $23,506; 461 persons manufactured carriages and wagons to the amount of $249,065, with a capital of $93,820; 114 flouring mills produced 55,158 barrels of flour, and, with other mills, employed 1,581 persons, producing articles to the amount of $1,268,715, with a capital of $1,491,973; 95 persons manufactured furniture to the amount of $49,780, with a capital of $29,090; 38 brick or stone houses, and 2,591 wooden houses were built by 2,274 persons, at a cost of $693,116; 24 printing offices, and 5 binderies, 5 daily, 5 semi-weekly, and 24 weekly newspapers, and 6 periodicals, employed 157 persons, and a capital of $134,400. The whole amount of capital employed in manufactures was $2,899,565.

The climate of Georgia is generally mild. In the low country it is unhealthy during the months of July, August, and September, excepting portions of the islands; but the upper country is salubrious and healthy. Snow is seldom seen, and cattle subsist with very little food but what they obtain from the woods and savannahs.

The rivers are—the Savannah, 600 miles long, bounding the state on the n. e., navigable for ships 17 miles to Savannah, and, a large part of the year, for steamboats, 250 miles to Augusta; the Altamaha, which is navigable for large vessels, 12 miles, to Darien, is formed by the junction of the Oconee and the Ocmulgee; and is navigable for sloops of 30 tons, by the former, to Dublin, 300 miles from the ocean; the Ogeechee, 200 miles long, and navigable for sloops 40 miles; Flint river, which rises in the n. w. part of the state, and, after a course of more than 300 miles, joins the Chattahoochee, forming the Appalachicola; the Chattahoochee, on the w. border of the state, which is navigable 300 miles by steamboat to Columbus; the St. Marys river, in the s. w. part of the state, rises in Okafnokee Swamp, and is navigable, 70 miles, for vessels drawing 14 feet of water. Okafnokee Swamp is about 180 miles in circumference, and has in it several fertile islands.

Savannah, on the Savannah river, is the largest and most commercial place in the state. Augusta, at the head of steamboat navigation on the same river, is a place of extensive trade, in the interior. Macon, Columbus, Milledgeville, and Darien are considerable places.

The University of Georgia is located at Athens, and is designed to have an academic branch in each county. A few only of these have been opened. It was founded in 1783, and has been well endowed. In this institution and its branches, there were in 1840, 622 students. There were in the state, 176 academies or grammar schools, with 7,878 students; and 601 common or primary schools, with 15,561 scholars. There were 30,717 free white persons over 20 years of age who could neither read nor write.

The Baptists, Methodists, and Presbyterians are the most numerous religious denominations. In 1835 the Baptists had 583 churches, 296 ministers, and 41,810 communicants; Methodists, 80 travelling preachers, and 25,005 white, and 8,436 colored communicants; Presbyterians, 75 churches, 45 ministers, and 4,882 communicants; Episcopalians 4 ministers; Protestant Methodists, 20 congregations and 15 ministers. Besides these there were a number of Christians, Roman Catholics, Lutherans, Scots Presbyterians, Friends, and Jews.

In 1840, this state had 37 banks and branches, with an aggregate capital of $15,119,219, and a circulation of $3,017,348. At the close of 1840 the state debt amounted to $500,000.

This state has a penitentiary at Milledgeville.

The first constitution of Georgia was formed in 1777; a second, in 1785; and the present, in 1798. The governor is elected by the people, and holds his office 2 years. One senator is elected for each county. The representatives are proportioned to the population, including three fifths of the people of color, but each county is entitled to at least one, and one to more than 4 members. The general assembly meets annually in November, at Milledgeville. All the free white male inhabitants, who shall have resided within the county in which they vote, six months preceding the election, and shall have paid taxes in the state for the year previous, have the right of suffrage.

The judges of the superior court are elected for three years by the legislature; and the judges of the inferior courts, and justices of the peace, are elected for 4 years by the people.

This state has several important works of internal improvement. The Savannah and Ogeechee canal extends 16 miles, from Savannah to Ogeechee river, completed in 1829, at an expense of $165,000. The Brunswick canal extends from tide water on the Altamaha, 12 miles to Brunswick, at a cost of $500,000.

The Georgia railroad extends from Augusta, 165 miles, to De Kalb county. The Athens Branch extends from the Georgia railroad, 33 miles, to Athens. Cost of the whole, including the Athens branch, $3,300,000. The Western and Atlantic railroad continues the Georgia railroad from De Kalb county, 140 miles, to Chattanooga, on Tennessee river, at a cost of $2,130,000. The Central railroad extends from Savannah, 197 miles, to Macon, estimated to cost $2,300,000. The Monroe railroad extends from Macon, 101 miles, to Whitehall. The Ocmulgee and Flint River railroad, 76 miles in length, is designed to connect the navigable waters of these rivers, so as to form a communication from the Atlantic to the Gulf of Mexico.

In 1732 the country between the Savannah and Altamaha was granted by George II. to Gen. Oglethorpe and others. He, with 40 others, landed at Yamacraw Bluff, and founded Savannah, Feb. 1st, 1733.

This state suffered much, in its earlier periods, from wars with the Spaniards in Florida. In 1758 the trustees surrendered the province to the king, and a general court was established in 1755. In 1763 George III. annexed the country between the Altamaha and the St. Marys to the province. Savannah was taken by the British in the revolutionary war, December 29th, 1778. The town and state were evacuated by the British, in July, 1782. In convention, this state adopted the constitution of the United States, Jan. 2d, 1788, by a unanimous vote.

HARTFORD, city, capital of Hartford co., Ct., and the semi-capital of the state. Situated on the w. side of Connecticut river, 50 miles from its mouth, at the head of open navigation; and is in 41° 45' n. lat., and 70° 50' w. lon. from Greenwich, and 4° 15' e. lon. from W. It is 34 miles n. n. e. from New Haven; 44 n. w. from New London; 70 w. from Providence; 100 w. s. w. from Boston; 97 s. e. from Albany; and 123 n. e. from New York; 336 W. The population in 1810, was 3,955; in 1820, 4,726; in 1830, 7,076; in 1840, 9,468. Engaged in commerce, 575; in manufactures and trades, 1,081; learned professions, 112.

The compact part of the city is more than a mile in length, and three fourths of a mile wide. The ground rises gradually from the river, and on the w. and s. becomes considerably elevated. The streets are not laid out with great regularity. Main-street, which passes through the place in a n. and s. direction, about 60 rods from the river, is broad, and well built; and Little river, which crosses the s. part of the city from west to east, is crossed in this street by a stone bridge, 100 feet wide, consisting of a single arch of 104 feet span, over 30 feet above the bed of the river. Many of the streets have fine houses in pleasant locations. Little river furnishes, in the city, some valuable water power. Hartford is well situated to become a considerable commercial capital. Connecticut r., which has been made navigable for boats, 220 miles, to the mouth of Wells river, in Newbury, Vt., opens an extensive country to it at the north. A covered bridge, 1,000 feet long, and which cost about $100,000, connects the city with East Hartford. A line of steamboats connects the city with New York; and a railroad extends 38 miles to New Haven.

Among the public buildings and institutions, is the state house, a spacious and handsome edifice, fronting on Main-street. The legislature now meets here, on each alternate year, the odd year at Hartford. The city hall is a large and commodious building of the Doric order of architecture. Washington College has an elevated and commanding position in the western part of the city, has 2 large edifices, was founded in 1824, has a president and 8 other professors or instructors, has had 175 alumni, of whom 42 have been ministers, has 80 students, and 6,500 vols. in its libraries; its philosophical apparatus is quite complete, a cabinet of minerals and a botanical garden are connected with the institution. It is under the direction of the Episcopalians. The commencement is on the first Thursday of August. The American Asylum, for the instruction of the deaf and dumb, was the first establishment of the kind in the United States, and has prepared teachers for other similar institutions. The Rev. Thomas H. Gallaudet, its first principal, visited Europe, and particularly France, to obtain the requisite information, and was eminently successful. In addition to funds granted by the state, and by individuals, the United States granted a township of land, in Alabama, consisting of upwards of 23,000 acres, which constitutes a permanent fund, and enables the institution to afford instruction on very favorable terms. It has a large and commodious building, in a commanding situation, in the w. part of the city, surrounded by 8 or 10 acres of land belonging to the establishment. It has, usually, about 140 pupils. The Retreat for the Insane, is on a commanding eminence, a mile and a quarter s. from the state house, and was opened in April, 1824. It has a spacious and fine stone edifice, covered with cement, and, with the surrounding grounds, has a handsome appearance. It is well conducted, and is one of the best institutions of the kind in the United States. The Athenaeum, an elegant edifice of the Gothic order of architecture, is now being constructed, intended to accommodate the "Young Men's Institute," "Historical Society," and Gallery of Paintings.

There are, in the city, 12 churches—5 Congregational, 2 Episcopal, 2 Baptist, 1 Methodist, 1 Universalist, 1 Roman Catholic. There are 5 banks, with an aggregate cap. of over $3,000,000, a bank for savings, 3 fire and marine insurance companies, an arsenal, a museum, and 2 markets.

There were in 1840, 3 for. commercial and 10 commission houses, cap. $363,000; 245 retail stores, cap. $1,954,250; 6 lumber yards, capital $76,000; machinery produced, $6,000; 5 furnaces, cap. $54,000; precious metals produced, $27,000; various metals, $121,500; silk, cap. $30,000; 1 tannery, cap. $500; manufac. of leather, cap. $130,370; 1 pottery, cap. $12,000; 1 ropewalk, cap. $6,000; 1 flouring m., 1 grist m., 2 saw m., cap. $43,000; 11 printing offices, 6 binderies, 1 daily, 10 weekly, and 3 semi-weekly newspapers, 6 periodicals, employed 191 persons, cap. $43,775. Total cap. in manufactures, $578,195. 1 college, 79 students, 5 acad. 533 students, 8 sch. 1,252 scholars.

The Indian name of Hartford was Sachig. In 1633 a company of Dutch traders came to Hartford, and built a house at the mouth of Little river, which they called the Hirze of Good Hope, and erected a small fort, in which they planted 3 cannon; they opposed the first English settlement, but at length relinquished their claim.

Hartford was first permanently settled in 1635, by the Rev. Mr. Hooker, and a party of emigrants who travelled through the wilderness, with their cattle, from Newtown, (now Cambridge,) Mass., subsisting chiefly on the milk of their cows. It was incorporated as a city in 1784.

HUDGON'S, P.-O., Jefferson co., Ark., 63 s. e. Little Rock, 1,128 W.

HUDSON, a river of the state of New York, though less in its length and in the amount of water which it discharges than many others, is one of the most important in the United States. The Hudson, proper, rises by two branches in the mountainous regions of Hamilton and Essex counties. The eastern branch from the s.

passes through Schroon lake, and is sometimes called Schroon branch; and the western has a circuitous course from the n. w., and is considered as the main branch, or Hudson. About 40 miles from the source of each, they unite in Warren co. After a course of 15 miles s. the Hudson receives the Sacandaga, on the line between Montgomery and Saratoga counties. The Sacandaga rises in Hamilton co., and first runs s. e., and then n. w. and w., to its junction below Jessup's falls. The Hudson then runs to the east of a 15 miles to Hadley falls; it then turns to the n. e. 20 miles to Glen's falls. Its direction is then nearly s. to its entrance into New York bay. 40 miles below Glen's falls it receives from the w. the Mohawk, its greatest tributary. From the junction of the Mohawk to its mouth, is about 170 miles. The whole length of the Hudson, from its source to its entrance into New York bay, is a little over 300 miles. So straight is this river between Albany and New York, that the distance is less by water than by land. The tide flows to a little above Albany. It is navigable for the largest ships 118 miles, to Hudson, and for sloops and large steamboats 145 miles above New York, to Albany. Small sloops also proceed to Troy, and through the dam and lock to Waterford, about 8 miles farther. Through a considerable part of its course the banks are elevated, and in some parts high, rocky, and precipitous; particularly in its passage through the Highlands, 53 miles above the city of New York. The scenery on the banks of the Hudson is highly picturesque. The city of New York owes much of its prosperity, and its pre-eminent advantages, to this noble river, connected as it is with the Erie and the Champlain canals. By no other route can an equally favorable water communication be had with the great West. There are many large and flourishing towns on the Hudson. The principal on the e. side are Troy, Hudson, and Poughkeepsie; and on the w. side Albany, Catskill, and Newburgh; besides many others on both sides. Its waters were the theatre of the first successful attempt to apply steam to the propelling of vessels by Fulton and Livingston in 1806.

HUDSON, county, N. J. Situated toward the n. e. part of the state, and contains 75 sq. ms. Hudson r. bounds it on the e., and the Passaic on the w. Drained by Hackensack river. Capital, North Bergen. HUDSON, city, port of entry, and capital of Columbia co., N. Y., is situated on the e. side of Hudson r., at the head of ship navigation, 116 n. New York, 29 s. Albany, 335 W., in 49° 14' n. lat., 73° 46' w. lon. Pop. 1850, 2,900; 1830, 5,392; 1840, 5,673. Its front consists of a bold promontory, rising 60 feet above the level of the river, which has been formed into a pleasant promenade, commanding a fine view of the river and of the surrounding country. On either side of this promontory is a spacious bay, with a sufficient depth of water for the largest vessels. The city is regularly laid out, with streets crossing each other at right angles; with the exception of two streets near the river, which follow the direction of the shore. The main street extends s. e. more than a mile to Prospect hill, 200 feet high, to which the ground gradually rises. On the n. side of this street, toward its upper end, is a public square. There is another square in the s. part of the city, on which the court house is situated. It is 116 feet long, the central part 40 by 60 feet, and 60 feet high, surmounted by a dome, and entered by a portico of 6 Ionic columns. The wings are 34 feet front and 40 feet deep, and 2 stories high. There are 8 churches—1 Presbyterian, 1 Episcopal, 1 Baptist, 1 Methodist, 2 Friends, 2 Universalist—the Hudson Academy, Hudson Female Seminary, the Franklin Literary Association, with a respectable library and philosophical apparatus, the Hudson Lunatic Asylum, and a number of select schools. The city is supplied with pure water, brought 2 miles in iron pipes from a spring at the foot of Becraft's mountain. This city was formerly much engaged in the West India trade, which has, latterly, chiefly given place to the whale fishery. It has 7 or 8 whale ships, 4 steamboats, with freight barges, and a number of sloops. A steam ferry-boat plies between this city and Athens, on the opposite side of the river. The Hudson and Berkshire Railroad connects this city with West Stockbridge, Mass., and thence with Boston. Several streams in the immediate vicinity afford considerable water power, which is improved in manufacturing. There were in 1840, 116 stores, cap. $410,450; 4 lumber yards, cap. $29,000; cap. employed in the fisheries, $330,000; 1 furnace, 1 tannery, 1 distillery, 1 brewery, 3 printing offices, 1 bindery, 2 weekly newspapers, 3 periodicals. Cap. in manufac. $135,650. 2 acad. 80 students.—sch. 590 scholars. Hudson was settled in 1784 by emigrants from R. Island and Massachusetts. It was incorporated a city in 1785.

HURL GATE. (See Hell Gate.)

HURON LAKE, one of the 5 great lakes of North America, lies on the boundary between the United States and Canada, and may be regarded as 218 miles long, and 180 broad, though its irregular form renders it difficult to determine this with much precision. It receives the waters of Lake Superior through the Straits of St. Mary, and of Lake Michigan through the Straits of Michilimackinac, and discharges its waters into Lake Erie through St. Clair r. and lake and Detroit r. The Manitoulin Islands stretch across its n. part, from e. to w., and one of them, the Grand Manitou, is 80 ms. long. This lake, though very deep, is generally shallow near its shores. It has some fine harbors.

HURON, r., O., rises in Richland co., and flows through Huron and Erie counties into Lake Erie, at Huron. It is navigable, by a crooked channel, 6 or 7 miles from its mouth. A canal is constructed along this r., from Milan to the head of navigation.

HURON, r., Mich., rises in Oakland and Livingston counties, and enters Lake Erie a few ms. below the mouth of Detroit r. This r. and its branches afford extensive water power. Its length is about 90 ms.

ILLINOIS, r., Ill., is formed by the Union of Kankakee and Des Plaines rivers, and at Ottawa, receives Fox r., and proceeding in a general s. w. and s. direction, about 400 ms. by the windings of the r., unites with the Mississippi in 36° 58' 23" n. lat., and 90° 18' w. lon., 20 ms. above the entrance of the Missouri. It is 400 yards wide at its mouth. Above the entrance of Vermilion r. it is obstructed by rapids; but below this point the current is gentle, and navigable for steamboats, throughout the year. From this point, a canal is in progress to Chicago, a distance, including 5½ ms. in Chicago r., and a feeder 4 ms. from Fox r., of 106 ms. It is 6 feet deep, and 60 feet wide at top; and is estimated to cost $8,654,337. This is one of the most important canals in the country.

ILLINOIS, river, Ind. ter., rises in Benton and Washington counties, Ark., and passing into the Indian ter., runs southwardly into Arkansas r., 4 ms. above the entrance of Canadian r. A few ms. from the mouth of the Illinois are salt springs, on its borders.

ILLINOIS.

ILLINOIS, one of the Western United States, is bounded n. by Wisconsin ter.; e. by Lake Michigan and Indiana; s. by the Ohio river, which separates it from Kentucky; and w. by Missouri and Iowa ter., from which it is separated by the Mississippi river. It is between 37° and 42° 30' n. lat., and between 87° 17' and 91° 50' w. lon., and between 10° 20' and 14° 21' w. lon. from W. It is 350 ms. long by 180 broad, containing 50,000 square miles, or 32,000,000 acres. The population in 1810 was 12,232; in 1820, 55,211; in 1830, 157,575; in 1840, 476,183; of which 255,235 were white males; 217,019 do. females; 1,876 were colored males; 1,722 do. females. Employed in agriculture, 105,337; in commerce, 2,506; in manufactures and trades, 13,185; in mining, 782; navigating the ocean, 63; do. lakes, rivers, and canals, 310; learned professions, 2,021.

This state is divided into 87 counties, which, with their population in 1840, and their capitals, were as follows:—ADAMS, 14,476, Quincy; ALEXANDER, 3,313, Unity; BOND, 5,060, Greenville; BOONE, 1,705, Belvidere; BROWN, 4,183, Mount Sterling; BUREAU, 3,067, Princeton; CALHOUN, 1,741, Gilead; CARROLL, 1,023, Savannah; CASS, 2,931, Virginia; CHAMPAIGN, 1,475, Urbana; CHRISTIAN, 1,878, Edinburg; CLARKE, 7,453, Marshall; CLAY, 3,223, Lewisville; CLINTON, 3,718, Carlyle; COLES, 9,616, Charleston; COOK, 10,201, Chicago; CRAWFORD, 4,422, Palestine; DE KALB, 1,697, Sycamore; DE WITT, 3,247, Clinton; DU PAGE, 3,535, Napierville; EDGAR, 8,225, Paris; EDWARDS, 3,070, Albion; EFFINGHAM, 1,675, Ewington; FAYETTE, 6,323, Vandalia; FRANKLIN, 3,632, Benton; FULTON, 13,142, Lewiston; GALLATIN, 10,760, Equality; GREENE, 11,951, Carrollton; HAMILTON, 3,945, McLeansboro'; HANCOCK, 9,946, Carthage; HARDIN, 1,378, Elizabethtown; HENRY, 1,260, Morristown; IROQUOIS, 1,635, Montgomery; JACKSON, 3,566, Brownsville; JASPER, 1,472, Newton; JEFFERSON, 5,762, Mt. Springfield, near the centre of the state, is the seat of government.

The surface of this state is generally level. There is no mountain in its whole extent, though the northern and southern parts are hilly and broken. The portion of the state s. of a line from the mouth of the Wabash to the mouth of the Kaskaskia, is generally covered with timber, but n. of this, the prairie country predominates. The eye sometimes wanders over immense plains, covered with grass, with no other boundary of its vision but the distant horizon, though the view is often broken by occasional woodlands. The dry prairies are generally from 30 to 100 feet higher than the bottom land on the rivers, and frequently no less fertile. A range of bluffs commences on the margin of the Mississippi, a short distance above the mouth of the Ohio, and extends n. beyond the Des Moines rapids, sometimes rising abruptly from the water's edge, but generally a few miles distant from it, leaving between the bluffs and the river, a strip of alluvial formation of inexhaustible fertility. The banks of the Illinois and Kaskaskia, in some places, present sublime and picturesque scenery. Several of their tributary streams have excavated for themselves deep gulfs, particularly those of the Kaskaskia, whose banks, near the junction of Big Hill creek, present a perpendicular front of solid limestone 140 feet high.

The peninsula between the Mississippi and Illinois rivers has been surveyed as military bounty lands by the United States, making an area equal to 240 townships of 5 miles square, which would be equal to 8,640 square miles, or nearly to 5,530,000 acres. These lands are said to be of excellent quality. The soil throughout the state generally may be considered as fertile. The forest trees most abundant are oak of different species, walnut, ash, elm, sugar maple, locust, hackberry, buckeye, sycamore, and some white pine about the head waters of the Illinois. The vegetable productions are Indian corn, wheat, rye, oats, buckwheat, potatoes, turnips, cotton, hemp, flax, tobacco, castor bean, &c.

In this state there were in 1840, 199,235 horses and mules; 626,274 neat cattle; 395,673 sheep; 1,495,254 swine; poultry valued at $309,204. There were produced 3,335,393 bushels of wheat; 82,251 of barley; 4,988,006 of oats; 88,197 of rye; 57,884 of buckwheat; 22,634,211 of Indian corn; 650,007 pounds of wool; 17,742 of hops; 29,173 of wax; 2,025,520 bushels of potatoes; 164,932 tons of hay; 1,976 of hemp and flax; 564,326 pounds of tobacco; 460 of rice; 200,947 of cotton; 1,150 of milk cocoons; 399,813 of sugar. The products of the dairy were valued at $423,175; of the orchard at $126,756; of lumber $203,666. Value of skins and furs, $39,412. There were made 474 gallons of wine.

The most important mineral production of this state is lead, which is found in the n. w. part in inexhaustible quantities, and in one year 13,000,000 pounds have been smelted. Galena is the centre of the lead trade. Several valuable salt springs are found in the e. and s. part, particularly near Shawneetown, which are owned by the United States, and leased to the manufacturers. Coal abounds in the bluffs, and iron exists in various parts of the state.

The climate is generally healthy, the air pure and serene, but the winters cold. The average temperature through the year is from 50° to 53° of Fahrenheit. In the neighborhood of low and wet lands, particularly near the mouths of the Wabash and the Ohio, the country is unhealthy. The summers in the s. part of the state are warm.

The Illinois is the largest river in the state. Fox and Des Plaines rivers, its 2 largest branches from the n., rise in Wisconsin, and with Kankakee river, from Indiana, form the Illinois, and after a course of more than 400 miles, it enters the Mississippi 20 miles above the Missouri. It is navigable a distance of about 250 miles. Rock river rises in Wisconsin, and after a course of 300 miles, mostly in Illinois, it falls into the Mississippi. The Kaskaskia rises near the middle of the state, and after a southwestwardly course of 250 miles, enters the Mississippi, 63 miles below the Missouri. It is navigable for boats for 150 miles. The Wabash forms a part of the e. boundary. (See Indiana.) The Little Wabash, after a course 130 miles, enters the Wabash a little above its confluence with the Ohio. Peoria lake, through which the Illinois river flows, about 200 miles from its mouth, is a beautiful sheet of water, 20 miles long, and 2 broad.

The principal commercial depot in the n. is Chicago, on Lake Michigan, at the mouth of Chicago river, with a tolerable harbor, which has been improved by piers extending into the lake. The most commercial place on the Mississippi is Alton, 24 miles above the Missouri. It has a fine landing place, with a natural wharf consisting of a flat rock well suited to the purpose. The other principal places are Springfield, Quincy, Galena, Peoria, Vandalia, and Kaskaskia.

There were in this state in 1840, 2 commercial and 51 commission houses engaged in foreign trade, with a capital of $333,800; 1,348 retail drygoods and other stores, with a capital of $4,904,125; 405 persons employed in the lumber trade, with a capital of $93,350; 117 persons employed in internal transportation, who, with 268 butchers, packers, &c., employed a capital of $642,425.

The amount of home-made or family manufactures was $993,567. There were 4 fulling mills and 16 woollen manufactories, employing 34 persons, producing goods to the amount of $9,540, with a capital of $26,205; 4 furnaces produced 158 tons of cast iron; 30 smelting houses produced 8,755,000 pounds of lead, employing 73 persons, and a capital of $114,500; 22 persons produced 20,000 bushels of salt, with a capital of $10,000; 3 persons produced confectionery to the amount of $2,240; 1 paper mill produced $2,000; 24 persons manufactured tobacco to the amount of $10,139; 68 persons manufactured hats and caps to the amount of $23,395, and straw bonnets to the amount of $1,570, employing a capital of $12,918; 23 potters, employed 56 persons, producing articles to the amount of $26,740, with a capital of $10,225; 155 tanneries employed 305 persons, and a capital of $155,679; 696 other manufactories of leather, as saddleries, &c., produced articles to the amount of $247,317, with a capital of $98,503; 71 persons produced machinery to the amount of $37,730; 30 persons produced hardware and cutlery to the amount of $9,750; 12 persons produced 30 cannon and 238 small-arms; 7 persons manufactured the precious metals to the value of $3,400; 26 persons manufactured granite and marble to the amount of $116,112; 995 persons produced bricks and lime to the amount of $263,398, with a capital of $104,648; 25 persons produced 519,673 pounds of soap, and 117,696 pounds of tallow candles, with a capital of $17,245; 150 distilleries produced 1,551,684 gallons, and 11 breweries 90,300 gallons, the whole employing 233 persons, and a capital of $138,155; 307 persons produced carriages and wagons to the amount of $144,362, with a capital of $59,263; 98 flouring mills produced 172,657 barrels of flour, and with other mills employed 2,904 persons, and manufactured articles to the amount of $3,417,826, with a capital of $2,147,618; vessels were built to the amount of $39,300; 244 persons produced furniture to the amount of $94,410, with a capital of $62,233; 334 brick or stone houses, and 4,133 wooden houses were built by 5,737 persons, and cost $3,065,255; 45 printing offices, and 5 binderies, 3 daily, 2 semi-weekly, and 38 weekly newspapers, and 9 periodicals, employed 175 persons, and a capital of $71,300. The whole amount of capital employed in manufactures was $3,126,512.

The Illinois College, at Jacksonville, was founded in 1829; Shurtleff College, (Baptist,) in Upper Alton, in 1835; McKendree College, (Methodist,) in Lebanon, in 1834; McDonough College, at Macomb, in 1837. In these institutions there were in 1840, 311 students. There were in the state 43 academies, with 1,967 students; 1,241 common and primary schools, with 34,876 scholars; and 27,502 white persons over 20 years of age who could neither read nor write.

The Methodists have 160 travelling preachers; the Baptists have 160 ministers; the Presbyterians, of different descriptions, about 100 ministers; the Episcopalians 10 churches, and the Roman Catholics 12; and there are some of other denominations.

At the beginning of 1840, there were in this state 9 banks and branches, with an aggregate capital of $5,423,185, and a circulation of $3,724,092. At the close of 1840, the state debt amounted to $13,465,682.

The governor is elected by the people for 4 years, but is eligible only 4 years in 8. A lieutenant-governor is elected at the same time, who is president of the senate, and in case of the death, resignation, or absence of the governor, discharges his duties. The senators are elected for 4 years, and the representatives for 2 years. The representatives shall never be less than 27, nor more than 36, until the inhabitants exceed 100,000. The number of senators shall never be less than one third nor more than one half the number of representatives. The judges of the supreme court are appointed by the joint ballot of both houses of the legislature, and hold their offices during good behavior. All white male inhabitants over 21 years of age, who have resided in the state 6 months next preceding an election, have the right of suffrage.

This state has undertaken an extensive system of internal improvements. The Illinois and Michigan canal extends from Chicago 106 miles to near Peru, at the head of steamboat navigation on the Illinois. This distance includes a navigable feeder of 4 miles, and a few miles of river navigation. It was commenced in 1836, and is estimated to cost $6,654,337. A railroad extends from Meredosia, 53 miles, to Springfield. Coal Mine Bluffs railroad extends from the Mississippi river, 6 miles, to the coal mine. Besides these, a large system of railroads has been projected and partly executed, the principal of which is denominated the Central railroad, extending from Cairo, at the junction of the Ohio and Mississippi, and terminating near the termination of the Illinois and Michigan canal; and thence extending in a n. w. direction to Galena; the whole distance being 457½ miles, at an estimated cost of $3,800,000. This is designed to be intersected by railroads to the e. and w., some of them crossing the state. But none of these works are yet completed.

The French in 1790 from Canada, settled at Kaskaskia and Cahokia, where their descendants are still found. By the treaty of peace between Great Britain and France, in 1763, this country came into the possession of the British. Nearly all the settlements in this state by emigrants from other states, have been made since 1800. In 1789, it constituted a part of the Northwest territory. In 1800 Indiana and Illinois became a separate territory. In 1809 Illinois was made a separate territory under its present name; and in 1818 it was admitted to the union as an independent state, being the 23d to that time admitted.

INDIANA.

INDIANA, one of the western United States, is bounded N. by Michigan lake and state; E. by Ohio; S. by Kentucky, from which it is separated by the Ohio river; and W. by Illinois. It is between 37° 45' and 41° 52' N. lat., and between 84° 42' and 87° 49' W. lon., and between 7° 45' and 11° W. from W. It has a mean length of 260 miles, and a mean breadth of 140 miles; containing 36,000 square miles, or 23,040,000 acres. The population in 1800 was 5,641; in 1810, 24,590; in 1820, 147,178; in 1830, 341,592; in 1840, 685,866. White males, 352,773; do. females, 325,925; colored males, 3,731; do. females, 3,434. Employed in agriculture, 148,906; in commerce, 3,076; in manufactures and trades, 20,590; in mining, 233; navigating the ocean, 89; do. canals, rivers, and lakes, 677; learned professions, 2,257.

There are in this state 87 counties, which, with their population, in 1840, and their capitals, were as follows: ADAMS, 2,264, Decatur; ALLEN, 5,942, Fort Wayne; BLACKFORD, 1,226, Hartford; BARTHOLOMEW, 10,042, Columbus; BOONE, 8,121, Lebanon; BROWN, 2,364, Nashville; BENTON, Benton C. port; ST. JOSEPH, 6,425, South Bend; STARK, 149, Stark C. H.; Steuben, 2,578, Angola; SULLIVAN, 8,315, Benton; SWITZERLAND, 9,920, Vevay; TIPPECANOE, 13,724, Lafayette; UNION, 8,017, Liberty; VANDERBURG, 6,850, Evansville; VERMILION, 8,374, Newport; VIGO, 12,076, Terre Haute; WABASH, 2,756, Wabash; WARREN, 5,656, Williamsport; WARWICK, 6,321, Booneville; WASHINGTON, 15,269, Salem; WAYNE, 23,990, Centreville; WELLS, 1,822, Bluffton; WHITE, 1,832, Monticello; WHITLEY, 1,237, Columbia.

Indianapolis, near the centre of the state, on White river, is the seat of government.

There are no mountains in Indiana, but the country bordering on the Ohio is hilly. A range of hills runs parallel with the Ohio, from the mouth of the Great Miami to Blue river, alternately approaching to within a few rods, and receding to the distance of two miles. Immediately below Blue river, the hills cease, and there is presented to view an immense tract of level land, covered with a heavy growth of timber. Bordering on all the principal streams, except the Ohio, are strips of bottom and prairie land, from 3 to 6 miles in width. Remote from the rivers the country is broken, and the soil light. Between the Wabash and Lake Michigan, the country is generally level, interspersed with woodlands, prairies, lakes, and swamps. The shore of Lake Michigan is lined by lofty bare sand hills 200 feet high, back of which are sandy hillocks, with a growth of pine. The prairies bordering on the Wabash are particularly rich, having ordinarily a vegetable soil from 2 to 5 feet deep. The natural growth of the soil consists of several kinds of oak, ash, beech, buckeye, walnut, cherry, maple, elm, sassafras, linden, honeylocust, cotton wood, sycamore, and mulberry. The principal productions are wheat, rye, Indian corn, oats, buckwheat, barley, potatoes, beef, pork, butter, cheese, &c.

In 1840, there were in this state 241,036 horses and mules; 619,980 neat cattle; 675,982 sheep; 1,623,608 swine; poultry, to the value of $357,594. There were produced, 4,049,375 bushels of wheat; 28,015 of barley; 5,981,805 of oats; 129,621 of rye; 49,019 of buckwheat; 28,155,967 of Indian corn; 1,837,919 pounds of wool; 38,591 of hops; 30,647 of wax; 1,525,794 bushels of potatoes; 178,029 tons of hay; 8,605 of flax and hemp; 1,820,306 pounds of tobacco; 3,727,795 of sugar. The products of the dairy were valued at $742,269; of the orchard, at $110,055; of lumber, at $420,791. There were made 10,365 gallons of wine; and value of skins and furs $390,883.

Iron and coal have been found in this state, and there are some salt springs, and Epsom salts are found in a cave near Corydon; but the mineral productions have no great interest.

The climate is generally healthy and pleasant; the winters are mild in the southern, and more severe in the northern parts.

The Ohio river washes the whole southern border of this state, and furnishes great facilities for trade. The Wabash is the largest river in this state, being 500 miles in length. It rises in Ohio, and passes westwardly and southwestwardly through the state, when it forms a part of the western boundary for 190 miles, and enters the Ohio 30 miles above Cumberland river. It is navigable for steamboats to La Fayette, 300 miles, a part of the year. White river, its largest branch, is 200 miles long, and is navigable in its w. fork for steamboats to Indianapolis, in season of floods. It consists of an e. fork and w. fork, which unite about 30 miles above its junction with the Wabash. The White Water river runs in the eastern part of the state, and enters the Great Miami a little above its mouth. The St. Joseph's river enters the n. part of the state from Michigan, and after a course of 40 miles, passes through Michigan into Michigan lake. Lake Michigan touches this state in its n. w. part.

The largest place in the state is New Albany, on the Ohio river, a little below Louisville. Indianapolis, Madison, and Evansville, are flourishing places. Vincennes, Terre Haute, La Fayette, Logansport, and Fort Wayne, are growing centres of trade in the interior.

There were in the state in 1840, 11 commercial and 26 commission houses engaged in foreign trade, with a capital of $1,207,400; 1,801 retail drygoods and other stores, with a capital of $5,664,687; 767 persons employed in the lumber trade, with a capital of $90,374; 2,705 persons engaged in internal transportation, who, with 337 butchers, packers, &c., employed a capital of $582,165.

The amount of home-made or family manufactures, was $1,299,802. There were 24 fulling mills, and 37 woollen manufactories, employing 103 persons, producing goods to the amount of $58,967, and employing a capital of $77,954; 12 cotton manufactories, with 4,983 spindles, employing 210 persons, producing articles to the amount of $135,400, with a capital of $142,500; 7 furnaces, producing 810 tons of cast iron, and 1 forge, producing 20 tons of bar iron, employing 103 persons, and a cap. of $57,700; 47 persons produced 242,040 bushels of bituminous coal, with a capital of $9,300; 3 paper manufactories, producing to the amount of $96,457, and other manufactories of paper producing to the amount of $54,000, the whole employing 100 persons, and a capital of $68,739; 261 persons manufactured flax to the amount of $6,851; 88 persons manufactured tobacco to the amount of $65,656, with a capital of $24,706; hats and caps were manufactured to the amount of $122,844, and straw bonnets to the amount of $2,048, the whole employing 183 persons, and a capital of $69,019; 428 tanneries employed 978 persons, and a capital of $299,687; 579 other manufactories of leather, as saddleries, &c., produced articles to the amount of $730,001, and employed a capital of $247,549; 45 potteries employed 79 persons, produced articles to the amount of $35,835, with a capital of $13,685; 26 persons produced drugs and paints to the amount of $47,720, with a capital of $17,964; 130 persons produced machinery to the amount of $123,808; 83 persons produced hardware and cutlery to the amount of $34,263; 47 persons manufactured 865 small-arms; 2 persons manufactured the precious metals to the amount of $3,500; 23 persons manufactured granite and marble to the amount of $6,720; 1,007 persons produced bricks and lime to the amount of $206,751, with a capital of $140,469; 30 persons made 1,135,560 pounds of soap, 228,938 pounds of tallow candles, 111 pounds of wax and spermaceti candles, with a capital of $13,039; 323 distilleries produced 1,787,108 gallons, 20 breweries, produced 188,392 gallons, the whole employing 500 persons, and a capital of $232,316; 5 rope walks, employing 11 persons, produced cordage to the amount of $5,850, with a capital of $2,270; 481 persons manufactured carriages and wagons to the amount of $163,135, with a capital of $78,116; 204 flouring mills manufactured 224,624 barrels of flour, and with other mills, employed 2,224 persons, producing articles to the amount of $2,339,134, and employing a capital of $2,077,018; vessels were built to the amount of $107,223; 564 persons produced furniture to the amount of $211,481, with a capital of $91,022; 346 brick or stone houses, and 4,270 wooden houses, employed 5,519 persons, and cost $1,241,312; 69 printing offices, 6 binderies, 4 semi-weekly, and 69 weekly newspapers, and 3 periodicals, employed 211 persons, and a capital of $53,505. The whole amount of capital employed in manufactures was $4,132,043.

Indiana College, at Bloomington, was founded in 1827; South Hanover College, at South Hanover, was founded in 1829; Wabash College, at Crawfordsville, was founded in 1833; the Indiana Asbury University, under the Methodists, was founded in 1839. In these institutions there were in 1840, 322 students. There were in the state 54 academies, with 2,946 students; and 1,521 common and primary schools, with 48,189 scholars. Of white persons over 20 years of age, 33,100 could neither read nor write.

In 1836, the Baptists had 334 churches, and 218 ministers; the Presbyterians had 109 churches and 70 ministers; the Methodists about 70 preachers. The Lutherans in 1840, had 30 congregations, and 8 ministers. Besides these there is a considerable number of Friends, and some Episcopalians, Roman Catholics, and some Presbyterians, Methodists, and Baptists of different descriptions.

In the commencement of 1840, there was one bank, with 12 branches, in the state, with a capital of $2,595,231 and a circulation of $2,965,370. At the close of 1840, the state debt amounted to $13,667,433.

The governor is elected by the people for 3 years, and may be once re-elected. At every election of governor, a lieutenant-governor is elected, who is president of the senate, and who discharges the duty of the governor in case of his death, resignation, or removal.

The senators and representatives are apportioned among the counties according to the number of white male inhabitants over 21 years of age. There can never be fewer than 36 nor over 100 representatives; and the number of senators can never be less than one third, nor more than one half the number of representatives. The representatives, and one third of the senators, are elected annually by the people. The legislature meets annually at Indianapolis, in December. The judges of the supreme and circuit courts are appointed for the term of 7 years. The judges of the supreme court are appointed by the governor, with the consent of the senate; the chief justices of the circuit courts by the legislature; and the associate judges by the people. The right of suffrage is enjoyed by all male inhabitants, over 21 years of age, who have resided in the state one year immediately preceding the election.

The greatest work of internal improvement undertaken by this state, is the Wabash and Erie canal, which extends from Lafayette, on the Wabash, 187 miles to Lake Erie, at Toledo, on the Maumee bay; 87½ miles of it being in Ohio, and 99½ in Indiana. The Whitewater canal extends from Lawrenceburg, 30 miles to Brookville. This canal, when completed, will connect Cambridge, on the national road, with the Ohio river, the entire length being 76 miles, at an estimated cost of $1,400,000. The Central canal is designed to connect the Wabash and Erie canal at Peru, with the Ohio river at Evansville, passing through Indianapolis. The entire length will be 290 miles, and the estimated cost $3,500,000. Parts of this work have been completed. Terre Haute and Eel River canal will connect Terre Haute, the southern termination of the Wabash and Erie canal, with the Central canal in Greene county, at a distance of 40½ miles, and an estimated expense of $629,631. This work is not completed. The Madison and Indianapolis railroad extends from Madison, on the Ohio river, 95 miles to Indianapolis. It is nearly completed. Several other canals and railroads have been projected.

In 1730, the French made a settlement at Vincennes, when they were attempting to extend their posts from Canada to Louisiana. At the peace between France and England, in 1763, this country came into possession of the English, who, however, made no attempt to settle it until after the revolutionary war. In 1787, the United States took possession of Vincennes, and erected a fort on the opposite bank of the river, as a defence against the natives. The inhabitants at this period consisted of French, of Canadians, and of Indians. In 1801, this region constituted a part of the Northwest Territory, and a territorial government was established over it. About 3 years after, a considerable portion of the territory was purchased of the Indians. This country suffered much from the Indians and British, during the last war with Great Britain; but they were defeated at the battle of Tippecanoe by the Americans, under Gen. W. H. Harrison. In the year 1816, Indiana was admitted to the Union, since which time, its progress has been rapid in population and improvement.

INDIANA, county, Pa. Situated centrally toward the w. part of the state, and contains 770 sq. ms. The surface is hilly. Coal and salt are abundant, and some iron ore is found. The soil is loam mixed with sand, gravel, and clay, and in many parts very fertile. Drained by the head waters of the w. branch of Susquehanna r., and by branches of Conemaugh r. Capital, Indiana. There were in 1840, neat cattle 18,199, sheep 35,994, swine 24,377; wheat 195,254 bush. produced, rye 78,021, Ind. corn 171,018, buckwheat 80,806, oats 356,046, potatoes 103,807, sugar 12,982 pounds, bituminous coal 483,280 bush., salt 70,890; 3 commission houses, cap. $7,500; 69 stores, cap. $171,116; 1 furnace, 1 forge, 5 fulling m., 5 woollen fac., 26 tanneries, 7 distilleries, 3 potteries, 3 flouring m., 51 grist m., 74 saw m., 3 printing offices, 3 weekly newspapers. Cap. in manufac. $119,474. 2 acad. 55 students, 23 sch. 1,413 scholars. Pop. 90,782.

INDIANA, p-b., capital of Indiana co., Pa., 155 w. n. w. Harrisburg, 208 W. It contains a court house of brick, jail, 4 churches—2 Presbyterian, 1 Lutheran, and 1 Methodist—an academy, 1 female seminary, 124 dwellings, and 674 inhabitants. Organized in 1805. It has 14 stores, cap. $37,000; 1 brewery, 1 pottery, 2 printing offices, 2 weekly newspapers. Cap. in manufac. $2,787. 1 acad. 23 students, 1 sch. 70 scholars.

INDIANA, t., Alleghany co., Pa., 10 n. e. Pittsburg. The surface is hilly; soil, loam. Drained by Long, Deer, Squaw, and Pine creeks. It has 5 stores, cap. $6,000; 1 fulling m., 2 woollen fac., 1 forge, 1 saw m. Cap. in manufac. $11,000. 12 sch. 480 scholars. Pop. 2,697.

INDIANAPOLIS, p-v., capital of Marion co., and of the state of Indiana. Situated in Centre t., on the e. side of White r., which is navigable to this place, in time of high water. It contains a state house, governor's house, court house, a U. S. land office, 6 churches—3 Baptist, 1 Episcopal, 1 Lutheran, 1 Presbyterian, and 1 Methodist, a female institute, a county seminary, a steam flouring and saw m., and 2,692 inhabitants. The national road passes through the place; and the most important roads in the state centre here. The place was originally laid out on a mile square, with streets crossing each other at right angles, and additions have been made to it on the different sides. In the centre, is a circular area of several acres, from which 4 streets diverge, crossing the other streets diagonally. In the centre of the circular area was originally a mound, on which stands the governor's house, in a very commanding situation, with a circular street around it, 80 feet wide. The state house is a fine building, 180 feet long, by 80 feet wide, and 45 feet high from the ground to the cornice, with an appropriate dome. It is after the model of the Parthenon at Athens. A bridge crosses White r. here, which cost $25,000. There were in Centre t. in 1840, 30 stores, cap. $92,600; 1 fulling m., 1 cotton fac. 500 sp., 2 tanneries, 1 brewery, 2 printing offices, 2 binderies, 2 weekly and 1 semi-weekly newspapers, 1 flouring m., 4 grist m., 9 saw m., 3 oil m. Cap. in manufac. $31,630. 3 sch. 78 scholars. Pop. 1,452.

INDIAN CREEK, p-o., Monroe co., Va., 241 w. Richmond, 278 W. It has 2 sch. 42 scholars. Pop. 572.

INDIAN CREEK, p-o., Giles co., Tenn., 92 a. Nashville, 737 W.

INDIAN CREEK, p-o., Gallatin co., Ill., 176 a. e. Springfield, 787 W.

INDIAN CREEK, p-o., Monroe co., Mo., 91 n. Jefferson city, 931 W.

INDIAN FIELDS, p-o., Colleton dist., S. C., 82 a. Columbia, 586 W.

INDIAN KEY, p-v., Dade co., Florida. It is 1 m. s. of New Matcumbe, 75 a. w. Cape Florida, 75 n. e. Key West. It contains about 7 acres, the whole a Madrepore rock. Much of it is improved as a garden, being covered with a bed of mold, drawn up from the channel. It contains several dwellings, a superb hotel, and several large stores, supported by the wrecking business. The climate is healthy and pleasant, and it is becoming a fashionable place of resort by invalids from the n.

INDIAN LAKE, N. Y., lies in Hamilton co., surrounded by a wild and mountainous region, the peaks of which are from 1,500 to 2,000 feet above the surrounding country. It is 4 ms. long and 1 wide, and abounds with various kinds of fish.

INDIAN RIVER, hundred, Sussex co., Del. It has 4 stores, cap. $1,750; 4 grist m. Cap. in manufac. $3,825. 4 sch. 135 scholars. Pop. 1,755.

INDIAN RIVER, p-o., Watson t., Lewis co., N. Y., 155 n. w. Albany, 454 W.

INDIAN, r., N. Y., rises in Lewis co., and passes through Jefferson co. into St. Lawrence co., where it enters Black lake, through which it flows into the Oswegatchie r., and thence into the St. Lawrence.

INDIAN, r., Flor., is a vast lagoon. Its length, from its head branches to Juniper Narrows, is about 100 ms. In some places it is 4 ms. wide; in others, not 50 yards. In some extensive reaches, it would float a frigate; at others, 6 feet of water can scarcely be found across the channel. The depth of water greatly varies at different seasons, being greatest when the southern inlets are closed, before it acquires sufficient force to open them. It is on the e. side of the peninsula, running nearly parallel with the coast.

INDIAN, r., N. H., one of the head branches of Connecticut r., which it enters a little above the 45° of n. lat. after a s. w. course of 30 ms.

INDIAN SPRINGS, p-v., Butte co., Ga., 52 w. Milledgeville, 659 W. Situated 10 ms. w. of Ocmulgee r., in the fork of 2 creeks, tributaries of the Ocmulgee. The waters are sulphurous, and efficacious in rheumatic and cutaneous complaints. It is the most fashionable watering place in the state, having a large hotel, capable of accommodating 100 persons, besides 30 or 40 small buildings for families.

INDIAN STREAM, t., Coos co., N. H. It has 2 grist m., 3 saw m. Cap. in manufac. $2,550; 3 sch. 75 scholars. Pop. 315.

INDIAN TAVERN, p-o., Morgan co., Tenn., 160 e. Nashville, 552 W.

INDIAN OR WESTERN TERRITORY.

THE INDIAN TERRITORY is a tract of country west of the settled portions of the United States, which has been set apart by the general government, for the permanent residence of those Indian tribes that have been removed, chiefly from the southwestern states of the Union. Here they are to be secured in governments of their own choice, subject to no other control from the United States, than such as may be necessary to preserve peace on the frontier, and between the several tribes. It is about 600 miles long from s. to n., and from 300 to 600 miles in breadth, from e. to w. It has the Platte river on the n., the states of Missouri and Arkansas on the e., the Red river on the s., and a desert country on the w. This country contains, within the habitable district, an area of 130,000 square miles, or 76,800,000 acres. The number of the different tribes now occupying this territory, is about 70,000, exclusive of the wild tribes of the prairies. The country, for about 100 miles west of the eastern boundary, is in general fertile, moderately elevated, and gently undulating, but not hilly, except in the southeastern parts, where it is traversed by several ranges of hilly and elevated lands. The principal rivers are Red river, Canadian, Arkansas, Neosho, Kansas, and Platte rivers, with their tributaries. The largest of these rivers rise in the Rocky mountains, and flow e. into the Missouri and the Mississippi. A considerable portion of the country is prairie, but the margins of the streams are generally covered with wood. Red river and the Arkansas are navigable at certain seasons to within the Indian territory by steamboats, and the Kansas by boats. The climate of this region is generally healthy, rather cold in the winter, in the northern part, as it is exposed to an extensive sweep of the west winds, over the vast plains, from the mountainous region; but in the southern part, the winters are mild. All the productions of the United States, of the same latitude, can be here raised; and the grass on the prairies is particularly favorable to the raising of cattle. The country contains coal, some lead and iron ore, and many saline springs, from which a great amount of salt could be manufactured. Although the Indians felt a reluctance to removal, as it was natural they should regret leaving the scenery of their childhood and the graves of their fathers, yet it will be their own fault, if they do not better their condition by their change of residence. To break up the establishments of incipient civilization, and to commence anew, was in itself a great evil; but removed from the demoralizing influence of profligate white men, they are favorably situated for carrying on the work which they had successfully begun.

The CHICKASAWS and CHOCTAWS, who were kindred tribes on the e. side of the Mississippi, dwell together in the same territory in the w. Their country is bounded north by the Canadian and Arkansas rivers, e. by the state of Arkansas, s. by the Red river, and w. by the western territory of the United States. Their country is about 300 miles long, and 150 broad. The Choctaws are extensively engaged in agriculture, and have good houses and well fenced fields. They raise large quantities of Indian corn; and in the southern part, considerable cotton. They have 7 cotton gins, and several grist and saw mills have been erected on Red river and other streams; and they raise large stocks of cattle, horses, sheep, and swine. They are governed by a written constitution and laws. The nation is divided into 4 districts, each of which elects a chief every 4 years. The general council, consisting of 40 members, meets on the first Monday of October annually, and is chosen by the qualified voters of each district. The council passes all laws, and the chiefs have a veto power, which can be overruled by a vote of the council, of two thirds. When the council assembles, a speaker is chosen, and clerks are appointed to record the proceedings, and the speaker is addressed, and the business transacted with the customary forms of legislative proceedings. The council generally continues in session about two weeks, and the members are paid from the funds of the nation, 2 dollars a day. They have a large and commodious council house. The nation is divided into judicial districts, and a trial by jury and appeal to the highest judicial tribunal are allowed. There is no enforcement of the payment of debts; but this is left to their honor, which is generally sufficient. The military department of the nation is intrusted to a general, elected by the people, with 32 captains in each district. Spinning and weaving are carried on in many parts of the nation; blacksmiths are furnished by the United States, by treaty stipulations,—many of the principals, and all the assistants, belonging to the nation. The Choctaws may be regarded as among the most intelligent of the Indian tribes; and it is their boast, that they never shed the blood of an American in war, but have often entered the military service of the United States. Such a tribe may well be regarded as an important barrier on the western frontier.

The CHICKASAWS have settled promiscuously among the Choctaws; and by an agreement between the tribes, the Chickasaws were to have the privilege of forming a district within the Choctaw nation, governed by the same laws, and now form the fourth district, with a proportional representation in the national council. They receive their annuity separately. The American Board of Foreign Missions have 5 stations, 4 missionaries, and 10 assistants among the tribes; the Baptists have 1 station, the Methodists 1 station, and the Presbyterians have 4 stations.

The CREEKS inhabit a country bounded on the n. and e. by that of the Cherokees; and s. by that of the Choctaws and Chickasaws, from which it is separated by the Canadian river. Their country is fertile, producing Indian corn, beans, potatoes, rice, wheat, pumpkins, melons, &c. Indian corn is their principal crop, and they furnish large quantities to the garrison at Fort Gibson; and as they are industrious, they have supplied themselves with comfortable houses, productive gardens and orchards, and well tilled fields. They generally associate in towns, and cultivate their lands in common. The government of the United States has furnished them with a stock of animals, according to treaty stipulations, consisting of cattle and hogs, and they will be able hereafter to supply themselves. Blacksmiths, wheelwrights, and wagon makers, are furnished by treaty. Their country is not so well watered or healthy as that of their neighbors, but is equally productive. The western winds from the prairies are cold in winter, and they sometimes suffer from drought in summer. They have elected a principal chief, and are engaged in building a council house, where representatives of the whole people will meet annually to pass laws. The Baptists have 3 missionary stations, the Board of Foreign Missions 1, and the Methodists 1, among the Creeks.

The SEMINOLES are considered a constituent part of the Creek nation, speaking the same language, and many of them are the same people. They are by agreement located with the Creeks, between the Arkansas and the Deep Fork of the Canadian river, above the Cherokee settlement. They have made some improvements, and raised some corn; but in general, are averse to labor. They have a blacksmith, under treaty stipulations. They are so well satisfied with their country, that they are anxious that their brethren who remain in Florida, and have been maintaining a hopeless contest with the United States, may be induced to join them. The slaves that they have been permitted to bring into the country, have been an occasion of difficulty.

The country assigned to the CHEROKEES, is n. and e. of that assigned to the Creeks. They have advanced further in civilization than the other tribes. They have a fine agricultural country, comfortable houses, and well cultivated farms, producing in abundance the necessaries of life; and they raise large stocks of cattle and many fine horses, for which their extensive prairies enable them abundantly to provide. They have but few mills, as their streams, at certain seasons, fail Salt springs exist, and salt is extensively manufactured. The Cherokees are governed by written laws: they select annually, members to the general council, which meets on the first Monday in October annually; they have two branches, consisting of an upper and lower house. A speaker and clerk are elected, and the usual forms in legislative bodies are observed. Courts are held throughout the nation, which is laid out in judicial districts. They have sheriffs, and other officers, and collect debts in the customary way, reserving certain property, such as a bed, a work horse, a cow, &c. from execution. They to a considerable extent, manufacture their own clothing, dress in the English mode, and speak the English language. They have blacksmiths, wheelwrights, and wagon makers, furnished by the government, and a large sum vested by the United States, from which they receive a handsome annuity, the result of the sale of their lands e. of the Mississippi, and applied to the advancement of their improvement. The Board of Foreign Missions have 5 stations, 4 missionaries, and other assistants, making the whole number 34. They have also a printing press. The United Brethren have also a mission among them.

The OSAGES are an indigenous tribe, occupying a territory n. of the Cherokees. The United States have labored, by supplying them with agricultural implements, and stock animals, and erecting mills, and supplying blacksmiths, to persuade them to a settled life, and to industrious habits, which would secure in abundance, in their fertile country, the comforts of life. But they are averse to these things, and, in general, prefer their wandering habits; and as the buffaloes are retreating to the west of their lands, they frequently kill the cattle of their neighbors. A few of these, however, are of a different mind; and their industry, and the comforts which it will secure, may persuade their brethren to follow their example. The Osages are among the least civilized of the Indians in the territory, and are not inclined to education.

The SHAWNEES occupy the country between the Osage and Kansas rivers, and are an industrious, frugal, and agricultural people, and have good farms, producing in abundance, Indian corn, wheat, oats, and a variety of culinary vegetables; and they raise stocks of horses, cattle, and hogs. They have a blacksmith, furnished by treaty stipulation, and a grist and saw mill. The SENECAS are mingled with them. The Methodists and Baptists have missionary stations among them, and the latter have a printing press.

West of the Missouri, and n. of the Shawnees, are the DELAWARES. They resemble the Shawnees, and have Methodist and Baptist missions among them.

The KANSAS are an indigenous tribe between the Shawnees and the Delawarees; and like the generality of those tribes, are indolent and poor.

The PAWNEES, the OMAHAWA, and the OTTOBS, who inhabit the country about the Platte river, are native tribes, who retain much of their original habits, and are little advanced in civilization, but are beginning to desire it. The Baptists and Methodists have missionary stations among them.

IOWA TERRITORY.

IOWA TERRITORY is bounded on the N. by the British Territory of the Hudson Bay Company, E. by Wisconsin Territory and Illinois, from which it is separated by the Mississippi river, and a line due north from its source in Itasca lake to the British Possessions; S. by the state of Missouri; and W. by the Missouri river to the entrance of White-earth river, and following this N. to the British Possessions. It lies between 40° 30' and 49° N. lat., and between 90° and 102° W. lon., and between 14° and 26° W. lon. from W. It is about 600 miles long, and, at a medium, 250 miles broad, containing about 150,000 square miles, or 96,000,000 acres. To a considerable portion of this territory the Indian title has not yet been extinguished. The population in 1840 was 43,111. Employed in agriculture, 10,469; in commerce, 355; in manufactures and trades, 1,629; in mining, 317; navigating the ocean, rivers, and canals, 91; learned professions, 365.

This territory is divided into 18 counties, which, with their population in 1840, and their capitals, were as follows: CEDAR, 1,253, Tipton; CLAYTON, 1,101, Prairie la Porte; CLINTON, 821, Co-manche; DELAWARE, 168, Delaware C. H.; DESMOINES, 5,577, Burlington; DU BUQUE, 3,059, Du Buque; HENRY, 3,772, Mt. Pleasant; JACKSON, 1,411, Bellevue; JEFFERSON, 2,773, Fairfield; JOHNSON, 1,491, Iowa City; JONES, 471, Edinburg; LEE, 6,093, Ft. Madison; LINN, 1,373, Marion; LOUISA, 1,927, Wappello; MUSCATINE, 1,942, Bloomington; SCOTT, 2,140, Davenport; VAN BUREN, 6,146, Keosauqua; WASHINGTON, 1,594, Washington. Iowa City, on Iowa river, 33 miles W. N. W. of Bloomington, is the capital.

The face of the country is moderately uneven, without any mountains or high hills. There is a tract of considerably elevated table land, which extends through a considerable part of the territory, dividing the waters which fall into the Mississippi from those which fall into the Missouri. The margins of the rivers and creeks, extending back from 1 to 10 miles, are generally covered with timber, and back of this the country is an open prairie, without trees; and by the frequent alternations of these two descriptions of land, the country is greatly diversified. The prairies cover nearly three fourths of the surface of the territory, and, although they are destitute of trees, present a great variety in other respects. Some have a level, and others a rolling surface: some are covered with a rich coat of grass, well suited for grazing; in others, this is interspersed with hazel thickets and sassafras shrubs, and, in the proper season, superbly decorated with beautiful flowers. The soil, both on the bottom and prairie land, is generally good, consisting of a deep black mold, intermingled in the prairies with sandy loam, and sometimes with a red clay and gravel. The agricultural productions are Indian corn, wheat, rye, oats, buckwheat, potatoes, pumpkins, melons, and all kinds of garden vegetables. The soil and climate are favorable to the cultivation of fruit; and crab-apples, wild plums, strawberries, and grapes, are indigenous and abundant.

The agricultural statistics of this recently settled territory in 1840, give a favorable view of its capabilities. There were 10,794 horses and mules; 38,049 neat cattle; 15,354 sheep; 104,899 swine; poultry to the value of $16,529. There were produced 154,693 bushels of wheat; 728 of barley; 216,385 of oats; 3,793 of rye; 6,212 of buckwheat; 1,406,941 of Indian corn; 23,039 lbs. of wool; 2,132 of wax; 234,063 bushels of potatoes; 17,953 tons of hay; 313 of hemp and flax; 8,076 pounds of tobacco; 41,450 of sugar. The products of the dairy were valued at $23,609; of the orchard, $50; of lumber, $50,280. Value of skins and furs, $33,594.

The climate, excepting some low bottom lands on the rivers and streams, is salubrious; the streams are not sluggish, and, therefore, their borders are more healthy than in some portions of the western country. Winter commences in December, and ends in March; the weather is variable, and sometimes severe, but less so than is common in the same latitude. Summer is not oppressively hot, and is refreshed by frequent showers.

A portion of Iowa is exceedingly rich as a mineral region. The great lead country of the northern part of Illinois, and the southern part of Wisconsin, crosses the Mississippi, and in Iowa comprehends about 80 townships, containing 2,880 square miles. It borders upon the Little Makoqueta river, about 12 miles from E. to W., and extends a considerable distance S., and still further N. along the Mississippi. Zinc and iron ore also abound in this region; some of the latter is magnetic. Limestone is abundant, and there is some beautiful marble.

The Mississippi borders this territory for its whole length on the E., and is navigable in time of high water for steamboats to the mouth of St. Peter's. St. Peter's river rises near the sources of Red river, and, after a course of 230 miles, enters the Mississippi 9 miles below the falls of St. Anthony. The Des Moines river runs in the southern part of the territory, and, forming a part of its S. W. boundary, enters the Mississippi. In high water it is navigable for steamboats 100 miles, and for keel-boats at all times. Checague, or Skunk river, after a course of 150 miles, enters the Mississippi. Iowa river is 300 miles long, and is navigable for steamboats 12 miles from its entrance into the Mississippi, and for keel-boats to Iowa City. Red Cedar, the main branch of the Iowa, is navigable for keel-boats, in high water, 100 miles above its junction. The Wapsipinecon has a winding and rapid course 200 miles to its entrance into the Mississippi, and affords much good water power. The Makoqueta bounds the mineral region on the S., and enters the Mississippi, furnishing in its course the best water power in the territory. Turkey river, after a course of 150 miles, enters the Mississippi. It is not navigable. James and Siour rivers enter into the Missouri. Red river, which rises near the head waters of the Mississippi, runs northwardly into Lake Winnipeg, and finally into Hudson's bay.

Burlington, on the Mississippi, 1,429 miles above New Orleans, is a place of much trade. Du Buque is the metropolis of the mineral region. Fort Madison, and Bloomington, and Davenport, on the Mississippi, are places of considerable business; and Iowa City, in the interior, the seat of government, is a growing place.

There were in 1840, 14 commission houses engaged in foreign trade, with a capital of $92,300; 157 retail drygoods and other stores, with a capital of $437,550; 29 persons were employed in the lumber trade, with a capital of $16,250; home-made, or family manufactures, were produced to the amount of $25,966; 3 tanneries, with a capital of $4,400; 2 distilleries, cap. $1,500; 6 flouring m., 37 grist m., 75 saw m., the whole employing a capital of $166,630; 14 brick and stone, and 483 wooden houses, were built at an expense of $135,987; 4 printing offices, and 4 weekly newspapers, employed a capital of $5,700. Total capital in manufactures, $199,645.

The University of Iowa, at Mt. Pleasant, in Henry county, has been chartered by the territorial legislature, under the direction of 21 trustees. 7 academies have been incorporated. In 1840, 1 academy was in operation, with 25 students. There were 63 common and primary schools, with 1,500 scholars.

The Methodists, Baptists, and Presbyterians, are the most numerous religious denominations. There are some Episcopalians, Friends, and Roman Catholics, and a few others.

The chief Indian tribes of this region are the Sacs and Foxes, the Chippewas, Ottawas, and Potawatomes. The Sioux also inhabit the N. part of the territory.

In 1838 Iowa was separated from Wisconsin, and has since had a distinct territorial government. The governor and secretary of the territory, the judges, U. S. attorney and marshal, are appointed by the president of the U. S., with the advice and consent of the senate. The governor, who is also superintendent of Indian affairs, is appointed for 3 years. A council, or senate, of 13 members, and a house of representatives, of 36 members, are elected by the people; the former once in 3 years, the latter annually. All citizens of the U. S., over 21 years of age, who have resided in the territory 6 months immediately preceding the election, have the right of suffrage. Every 2 years the people elect a delegate to the U. S. congress.

In 1832 this country was purchased of the Indians, and in 1833 the territory began to be settled by white emigrants. Since that time the population has greatly increased, towns have been built, and improvement has rapidly progressed.

Iowa, county, Wis. Situated in the s. w. part of the ter., and contains 1,300 sq. ms. In the n., several small streams flow into the Wisconsin r., which bounds it on the n. The plain on which the v. chiefly stands is surrounded on 3 sides by an amphitheatre of hills, which rise by a gentle ascent to the height of 500 feet, and a part of the v. lies on the hill, commanding an extensive view of Cayuga lake, and the surrounding country. The v. is regularly laid out, with streets crossing each other at right angles. It contains about 700 houses, a court house and jail in the same building, a county clerk's office, 6 churches—1 Presbyterian, 1 Dutch Reformed, 1 Episcopal, 1 Baptist, 1 Methodist, and 1 African—a flourishing academy, and a lyceum. Clinton hotel is one of the largest and most splendid establishments of the kind in the state. Fall cr., Cascadilla cr., and Six Mile cr., in descending from the hills, have falls that furnish a very extensive water power, which is employed in manufacturing establishments. Fall cr. descends 438 feet in the course of a mile, having 3 successive falls—one of 70 feet, another of 50 feet, and a third, which is peculiarly grand, of 116 feet—in an unbroken sheet. Other falls in the vicinity are little less surprising.

Its commercial advantages are very great. Through Cayuga lake and Seneca canal it communicates with the Erie canal on the n., and by the Ithaca and Owego railroad, 30 miles long, it communicates with Owego and the Susquehanna, where it will unite with the Erie railroad, which will afford it a winter communication with the seaboard. Its trade with Pennsylvania is already considerable, receiving iron and coal in exchange for plaster, salt, lime, flour, and merchandise. A fine steambot for passengers plies daily between Ithaca and Cayuga bridge, 42 ms. It was founded about 1800; chartered as a village 1821.
